Though the official thermometer registered only 93 degrees yesterday—as compared with 98 the day before—there were twenty-eight deaths here from the heat as against the ten on Monday. This increase was due partly to the weakening of the victims by suffering on the two previous days of the hot spell, and perhaps as much to the fact that the temperature in the sun-baked streets was at least ten degrees higher than in the Weather Bureau, 400 feet above the surface. Hundreds of heat victims were saved by prompt ambulance and hospital treatment.

While New York sweltered other cities suffered, too. Chicago had a temperature of 101 and Pittsburg thermometers recorded 99. Kansas was the real hot spot, however. Topeka reports 106 and Junction City 109. The deaths in the West did not equal Monday's records. Chicago's victims numbered only nine and Pittsburg fifteen. Philadelphia escaped yesterday with nine deaths.

The third day of the heat wave spread like a hot blanket from New England to Western Kansas, and the Weather Bureau holds out no hope of marked relief.

A slight barometric depression, as the weather sharps say, now forming in the Northwest is the only chance. Unless it grows to a full-fledged rainstorm there is no immediate prospect of rescue from the abnormal temperatures and oppressive humidity which have collected a record-breaking toll of death and suffering.

"No material change east of the Mississippi River during the next thirty-six hours," said the weather man in Washington yesterday, when he assembled the reports of scorching weather in all parts of the country. "Slightly lower temperatures may come by Wednesday night, however, in the North Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley, and the region of the Great Lakes, but they promise no decided break."

Our Hottest Independence Day.

The Declaration of Independence was read in this city and vicinity under the hottest conditions ever recorded on July 4 in this city, and the hottest, perhaps, since the day of the signing of the Declaration itself. No one can tell. United States Weather Bureau records were not taken for New York before 1871, and since then the 93 mark had never been reached on a single July 4 until yesterday. Once, in 1879, the thermometer reached 92, and on two occasions, in 1898 and in 1900, it reached 91.

On the street, however, which, after all, is the natural place to look for a thermometer, the highest recorded temperature was 103. At 11 A. M. the standard thermometer on the ground floor of The Times Building reached that figure, which was two degrees higher than Monday's maximum at that place at the same hour. It is interesting to notice that the official thermometer on top of the Whitehall Building at this hour read only 88, the greatest divergence of official high altitude and street readings reported.

It shows that the third day of the heat spell, although officially declared cooler than the preceding day, was really as hot, or even hotter, in the city streets, the thoroughly baked walls of buildings and the paving of the streets throwing off the heat stored up in them and creating stifling and suffocating conditions worse than experienced on Monday. The increased list of deaths and prostrations reported yesterday further illustrates this fact.

Nevertheless, there was at least a shadow of a sigh of relief when the bulletins announced the official temperature from hour to hour. The maximum of 93, reached at 3:30 P. M., was 5 degrees lower than Monday's and 1 degree lower than Sunday's. The humidity, to be sure, starting at 8 A. M. with 74, higher than Monday's by 21 per cent. and considered unusually high for any time, made it seem even hotter than it really was at that time of the morning. The temperature reading at 8 A. M. was 82, likewise 5 degrees lower than Monday's temperature at the same time. There was only a wind velocity of nine miles at that hour, and it came mainly from the torrid Western States and afforded no relief whatever.

At noon the temperature had risen only 7 points and the humidity had fallen to 61. The wind had risen to 12 miles an hour and in the open spaces it was perceptibly cooler. In the afternoon the thermometer climbed slowly to the high mark of 93, receding by 5 P. M. to 89. The humidity dropped to 50 and the wind also had a fall to 9 miles an hour. The decline of humidity, fortunately, permitted the wind to play around the lower altitudes as well as in the higher, and much relief was found as a consequence in the late afternoon. Few clouds were seen throughout the day except at a very high altitude, and that variety never savors of rain. The early morning shower that touched some parts of Long Island and New Jersey did not get near the city. The barometer maintained an almost steady at the 30 mark.

There was some hope of a shower in the Washington Heights section at about 4 P. M., when the rumbling of thunder was heard. One distinct rolling sound passed over Times Square, but no more was heard of this omen from the heavens, and at the offices of the Weather Bureau it was said that there was no sign that a storm was approaching. And even if it should rain, it was said, all indications pointed to a still hotter spell of weather.

KILLED AT TOP OF A POLE.

Floyd Sexton, 36 years old, a telegraph lineman of Newark, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon by contact with a live electric light wire on a pole at the corner of Mulberry and Green Streets, that city. Hundreds of persons saw Sexton's body fall from the pole.

Sexton had been employed for nearly twenty years by the Newark District Telegraph. About 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon there were several loud thunderclaps that put some of the company's lines out of order. On the pole at Green and Mulberry Streets a fuse was blown out of a transformer that connects the burglar alarm in the telegraph office with private residences in the southern part of the city.

Daniel McNamara, a lineman, was sent out to investigate the trouble. He found that the telegraph wires were burning. He reported the matter to the main office, saying that as he had no spurs with him at the time he was unable to climb the pole to make the repair, and left word to have Sexton do it. The pole is known to linemen as a dangerous one because of the fact that electric light and telegraph wires are strung on it.

When Sexton got among the network of wires he carefully picked his way through them until he reached the top of the pole where the telegraph wire was burning. He was next seen to lurch to one side and fall on a feed wire. There was a puff of smoke, and an instant later Sexton's body was falling through the air. He struck the pavement head first. A score or more of persons ran to where his body lay. Sexton is survived by a widow and two small children.

BREAKS HIS NECK DIVING.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 4.—At the same spot where his brother, Fred, was killed in a similar manner three years ago, Waldorf Miller, 21 years old, of Clinton Avenue, broke his neck by diving from the rocks near the bathing beach at Hudson Park, New Rochelle, last night. Miller and a dozen other members of the Iroquois Social Club of New Rochelle attended a beach party last night, and at his suggestion the young men started for a midnight swim, leaving the young women eating ice crem at the pavilion.

Miller was the first in the water, diving from a high rock in spite of the warnings of his friends. When Miller did not appear after the dive, his friends plunged in after him. John Donovan found him on the bottom about 20 feet from where he dived and being carried out toward Long Island Sound by an undercurrent. The unconscious man was carried to the beach and revived. Then it was found that his neck was broken and he was completely paralyzed below that point. Dr. C. C. Guion was summoned and he took Miller to the New Rochelle Hospital.

It was said at the hospital to-night that Miller's chances of recovery are small.

THIRST TROUBLES IN JERSEY.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., July 4.—Woman's suffrage, the "sane" Fourth, and even the Mormon question were forgotten on trains that passed here to-day, when travelers found tanks full of ice water but no glasses from which to drink, in the heart of a record hot wave and holiday season.

Notices posted in stations carried summaries of the law recently signed by Gov. Wilson that public drinking cups were forbidden in New Jersey, as they have long been in Massachusetts, under a heavy fine, on and after July 5.

Employes of the road said that the companies operating the line would still keep the coolers full, but that it would be as much as their individual jobs were worth to lend a drinking cup to a thirsty traveler. Private dealers sold drinks at a profit freely all along the road, and passengers with the price were supplied with mineral waters in all buffet cars.

"He's helped rum," said the conductor to a casual traveler, "but he still has to face rebellion."

Ice tanks were full, but there were no glasses on the steamers of the Sandy Hook route, which carried returning holiday seekers from the North Jersey coast back to their city homes in great numbers to-night. These vessels come under the law, for although registered as from the Port of New York, they touch at a New Jersey pier in Atlantic Highlands, not far from this place.

CAR KILLS THREE IN AUTO.

Bushes Prevented Menzel Seeing Trolley Going Forty Miles an Hour.

WARWICK, R. I., July 4.—His view cut off by dense bushes growing on both sides of the crossing, Gustav Menzel of Riverside drove his automobile directly in front of an open trolley car moving at the rate of forty miles an hour this afternoon, and as a result three of the occupants of the automobile are dead and Menzel and the fifth occupant are badly injured. The dead are:

BIDWELL, Miss ELLA M., 25, of Providence.
HARTLEY, Miss MILLIE J., 18, Mrs. Hartley's daughter.

The injured are: Gustav Menzel, Riverside, forty years old, back and chest injured and possibly fractured skull; Raymond Hartley, ten-year-old son of Mrs. Hartley, badly bruised about the head and body.

The accident occurred at a point where the so-called Oakland Beach Road, a private highway, crosses the trolley tracks between Long Meadow and Grant's Station. Motorman George E. Lake of the car, which was bound from Rocky Point for Providence, declares that he saw nothing of the automobile until it was squarely on the tracks. No action was taken by the authorities against Lake or his conductor, W. L. Benson.

All the injured persons were alive when the trolley car was stopped immediately after the collision. They were placed on board a trolley car for a quick run to the Rhode Island Hospital in Providence. Miss Hartley, who was a teacher in one of the Providence grammar schools, died on the way; Miss Bidwell died just as she was being taken off the car, and Mrs. Hartley died twenty minutes after she had been placed in the hospital.

Menzel and Raymond Hartley remained in the hospital to-night.

MRS. LEVISON HOME WITHOUT A WORD

NO CLUE TO HER RESCUER

Merely Said Mrs. Levison Had Suffered Heat Prostration and Then Drove Off—Family Asks No Questions.

Mrs. Delia C. Levison, the wife of Benno Levison, Jr., who disappeared on Friday from her home, at 22 West Eighty-ninth Street, was strangely returned to her family yesterday afternoon. She is now resting under the care of a physician. While her family do not know, and perhaps never will know, what befell her in the four days of her absence, they are satisfied that she was a victim of heat prostration.

The Levisons were all packed ready to leave for Lake Hopatcong on Monday. Friday afternoon, after lunching with her daughter, Bianca, Mrs. Levison said that she was going shopping, and after some casual conversation about her plans to meet her brother, Sol Cantrovitz, on the George Washington, incoming Sunday afternoon, she left the house. She was not seen again, and by dark the family was distracted. They began to scour the country, to visit the morgues and hospitals, and to call upon her every acquaintance. The police were notified on Friday evening at 10 o'clock, and the family started a series of newspaper personals. There was no answer, no trace.

Father and daughter broke down under the strain, but Lois Levison, the son, decided to call in the newspapers, and on Monday afternoon he appealed to them to spread over the city an account of her disappearance. Late Monday evening, as the result of an article which appeared in an evening newspaper, a man who had done some business for Mrs. Levison at one time or another called up to tell the family that he had seen her walking up Madison Avenue on Saturday morning. This message brought encouragement, for it meant that she had met with no accident on Friday, and to the distressed family it strengthened almost to a certainty the hope that she was still alive.

All yesterday morning odds and ends of news, threads of clues were sent to the house, wild rumors, most of them.

Then yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock the doorbell rang, and Lois Levison, answering it, found standing in the wide vestibule a tall, rather handsome woman, with iron-gray hair. She was stately in manner and plainly a person of distinction.

"This is the Levison home?" she asked. "I took the address from the newspapers. I read in them of the disappearance of Mrs. Levison. I found a woman wandering about apparently affected by the heat, and she is in my car now. Will you see if that is Mrs. Levison?"

She pointed to the curb where young Levison saw a large, dark Limousine car standing, with the hood up. A chauffeur in dark uniform was in the driver's seat. He bounded down the steps, the strange women following him more slowly. He looked into the car, through the open windows, and there his mother was sitting, looking worn and tired, but quite herself.

He gave a shout of triumph that brought the unhappy family hurrying down from the upper stories, in time to meet the son as he led the mother up the steps of her home, his arm supporting her.

In the hallway, there was nothing but the broken expressions of relieved tension, many kisses, and a few tears. Then the son turning to pour out his thanks upon the woman who had brought his mother home. She was not in the hallway and when he hurried to the front steps, he saw that she had gone, car and all. The fresh tire tracks on the hot asphalt were the only evidence that the car had been there at all.

Meanwhile, the mother was taken to her room, and the doctor summoned. She was left to rest there, with an electric fan playing on her face. The doctor said that the heat had affected her, but she did not seem permanently the worse for it. Mrs. Levison had a sunstroke at the time of the Chicago World's Fair and every year since, the first hot days of Summer have made her depressed and nervous.

When Lois Levison tried to think afterward of all that had been said by the woman who brought his mother home, he realized that she had not told enough to give them any idea where Mrs. Levison had been or what she had been doing. The family do not know when the Good Samaritan found the wandering woman or where.

The condition of Mrs. Levison's costume suggested that she had been in good hands since her disappearance. Everything she had, even her silver-mesh hand bag, was intact. She only appeared terribly weary. Her son said that they had asked her no questions and he believed they never would, so that the four wretched days of anxiety might be for her and for themselves a closed incident. He reiterated his appreciation of the part the newspapers played.

One thing that puzzled the reporters was a personal which appeared in a newspaper yesterday morning. It said: "D. Letter received: everything is O. K.; come back or phone your address at once. Sol."

The reporters, recognizing the signature, asked what the "letter" meant. It was explained yesterday, after Mrs. Levison's return, that in the excitement of Monday evening, in dictating personals, telegrams, letters and messages, the dictation had in some way been confused, so that a telegram became part of the personal, and the "Letter received" became transplanted from a telegram. They had received no word from the missing woman.

WOMAN HOLDS STEAMER HERE

The Captain's wife on board an Erie Canal boat gave a lesson in politeness to the crew of the British steamship Montauk Point yesterday which will cost its owners about $175 for a day's demurrage through having to wait over twenty-four hours to discharge her cargo.

The Montauk Point arrived from Philadelphia last week, where she had discharged part of her cargo of chalk from Fowey, Cornwall, and had nearly finished discharging the rest at Erie Basin yesterday, when one of the firemen, it was said, made a remark to the canal boat skipper's wife alongside, and she reported it to her husband, who thereupon declined to take any more cargo aboard.

After some delay Capt. Pinkham of the steamer managed to get another canal boat to receive the chalk, as he had cleared his ship for Newport News, and wanted to get away. When the other boat went alongside the woman on the first boat told the skipper's wife on the second boat, and she in turn told her husband that he must not take any chalk from the Montauk Point. He, being a married man of many years' experience, obeyed. Because of this incident the steamer could not get away, and remained at Erie Basin all night. Capt. Pinkham hopes to get a boat early to-day.

Mystery of Loss at Gala Opera Performance in London Partly Cleared Up.

TESTIMONY OF A WITNESS

He Says the Jewels, Accidentally Unfastened, Were Snatched by a Lady and Hidden in Her Dress.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, July 5.—The mystery of the loss of a $75,000 pearl necklace by a woman who attended the coronation gala performance at Covent Garden is now complicated by the suggestion that it was stolen by another woman, who was actually a member of the owner's party.

The Times to-day publishes a statement to the effect that an unnamed man has written to those engaged in inquiries regarding the affair that the necklace was snatched from the wearer's neck by another woman who was attending the performance. Investigation shows this anonymous correspondent to be a man of high social position, whose good faith is unimpeachable, and who is positive as to what he saw, regarding which he gives details.

He says that the owner's shawl slipped from her shoulders. The shawl was quickly replaced, but after that she missed the necklace. Presumably the falling shawl loosened the catch and in the crush the necklace became detached. It was at that point, it is alleged, that another lady caught the jewels and placed them in the folds of her dress.

It is stated that the name of the lady who was seen to take the jewels is known, but further developments depend to a great extent on the result of the inquiries now being made in a continental city, where the necklace is supposed to have been sent to be broken up and sold.

FEAR BALLOONIST IS LOST.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Herman Mossner made his first flight in a balloon following the aeroplane meet at "Aeroville" late this afternoon, and when last seen was flying over Lake Michigan. At a late hour to-night life savers who went out to rescue him reported that no trace of him could be found. It was feared that he had been drowned.

Mossner expressed a desire to make an ascent, and borrowed a balloon from a friend who is a professional aeronaut. At about 6 o'clock this evening he bade farewell to the crowd at "Aeroville," where amateur aviators had been flying all afternoon.

Soon the gas bag was a spot in the sky, soaring over the lake at a height of about 2,000 feet. The life savers were warned immediately, and they put out in search of him.

It is thought that Mossner tossed away more ballast than he could spare in order to make a more spectacular flight, and that he was unfamiliar with the apparatus governing the cut-off of the gas bag, which would enable him to descend.

BUY WERTHEIMER TREASURES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 4.—Duveen Brothers announced to-day that they had purchased the greater portion of the collection of works of art formed by the late Charles Wertheimer.

Mr. Wertheimer, who was one of the leading art dealers of Europe, died last April 25. His house in Norfolk Street, Park Lane, London, is full of precious objects, including many masterpieces of the English school of the eighteenth century, an extraordinary collection of snuff boxes, and a number of splendid specimens of the art of the Italian Renaissance.

It was Mr. Wertheimer who bought a year ago at Christie's the famous enameled gold and rock crystal biberon of the sixteenth century that belonged to the late Baron Schröder, paying $50,000 for it. Five years previously he had purchased it for $78,000 at the Gabitas sale, and Baron Schröder bought it from Mr. Wertheimer for a much greater sum.

Paintings and other art objects of an estimated value of about $200,000 were stolen from Mr. Wertheimer's house on the night of Feb. 12, 1907. The greater part of the stolen property was subsequently recovered and the thieves were convicted.

TIMES SQUARE FIRE HUNT.

Blaze Had Been on Hotel Roof and Put Out by a Guest.

A fire alarm from Times Square brought half a dozen fire engines to Broadway and Forty-third Street at 1 o'clock this morning. No one knew where the fire was and no one knew who sent in an alarm. The policeman on duty got a rebuke from the Fire Captain because somebody had pulled the box and got away.

For half an hour there was a hunt for a fire. Finally one man appeared with a charred board and it was thought it must have fallen from Hammerstein's Roof Garden.

A dozen men took up the clue, went to the entrance of the theatre on Forty-second Street, and trooped to the roof. Here it was found that a pile of rubbish on the extension of the Times Square Hotel had caught fire from a carelessly tossed cigarette or a cigar. A guest in the hotel had seen it, poured water on it, and put it out, but not before some one else had discovered it and called the fireman.

A SCORE DROWNED IN NEAR-BY WATERS

MANY VICTIMS ELSEWHERE

Twenty persons were drowned in waters adjacent to this city yesterday. Six of these drownings occurred off the water fronts of Manhattan and the Bronx. Four took place off that part of the shore of Long Island, which is in the Borough of Queens. Three occurred in Jersey waters, and two off the coast of Staten Island. There were only two drownings in Brooklyn and at Coney Island. Two persons were drowned near Atlantic Highland, one death occurred at Port Jefferson, L. I.

Philadelphia reported seven deaths from drowning, and New England six—twenty-three altogether in the Eastern States.

Howard Case, the 28-year-old manager of the soda water fountain in Hegeman's drug shop in the New York Times Building, and Walter, his 20-year-old brother, who was a bookkeeper at Park & Tilford's Eighty-seventh Street branch, were drowned yesterday by the upsetting of their recently purchased 12-foot gasoline motor boat.

James Lavery, who lives with his family at 7 West 103d Street, and Richard Budick, who boards with a Mrs. Clark at 196 West 108th Street, both employes of Park & Tilford, were also in the launch at the time of the accident, but were rescued.

Lavery clung to a rope hanging from the side of a wharf and Budick was rescued by a man on the same wharf, who jumped into the water after him. But neither of the two Case boys could swim and they apparently sank as soon as they were spilled into the water.

The motor boat turned turtle after being swept by the tide under the long ash pier at the foot of West Ninety-sixth Street, North River, during a vain attempt on the part of the party to land there. The Harbor police, members of the Riverside Station of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps, and the two rescued friends of the Case brothers spent the rest of the day grappling vainly for tempt on the part of the party to land the bodies, which apparently had been swept away by the tide.

Howard and Walter Case, according to the story told yesterday by their parents, with whom they lived at 247 West Forty-eighth Street, purchased their little 12-foot motor boat last Autumn. It was rigged with a half cabin or hood. They bought it at a bargain from a man up-State and kept it carefully all through the Winter, having it laid up in a Harlem yard. They had made all sorts of plans about what a good time they were going to have in the boat this Summer, and talked with considerable pride about it to their fellow clerks in the drug and grocery shops where they worked.

After putting it into the water a fortnight ago they took their first trip in it about a week ago and had no mishap. Howard, the elder, always handled the boat, having had some practice in that respect last Summer, his parents say, before he decided to buy it.

With their two friends, Lavery and Budick, the Case boys started out in the boat about 9 o'clock yesterday morning from the wharf at Fiftieth Street and the North River, where they had kept it since it had been in commission. They had told their parents that they would be back at home for dinner at noon, so as to go to the baseball game in the afternoon.

Sweep of Tide Fatal to Them.

According to the story which Budick and Lavery told the police afterward, Howard Case, who managed the boat, had no difficulty in starting it, and kept it on a straight course up the North River for two miles in spite of the heavy outrunning tide. When they got as far up the river as Ninety-sixth Street they found it was only 10:30 o'clock, and, seeing the open and easily accessible pier at that part of the river front, determined to put in there and spend a few minutes ashore.

"The landing can be made easily, and can be made in a few minutes," Howard said confidently to his brother and friends. As he swung the nose of his little boat eastward, bringing her broadside to the tide, he found, however, that making a landing was not going to be quite as easy as he imagined. An eight-mile-an-hour tide was sweeping down the North River. The four young men had already become aware that a strong tide was running, because it had kept them from moving forward quite as quickly as they had expected. But they had not realized what the tide in the Hudson River really can do to a small boat if it catches it broadside on, never having had any experience with it before.

An experienced boatman would have made the landing at the end of the pier, pointing the bow of the little boat northward against the tide and keeping her motor slowly moving until a rope could have been made fast to the pier.

But Case, instead of doing this, brought the boat all the way around to the north side of the pier. The tide was low and the distance between the surface of the water and the flooring of the pier was about six feet. Before any one in the boat realized what was happening the little boat was swept broadside under the pier.

"We tried to grasp the pier with our hands as the boat was swept under it," one of the two young men who were rescued said afterward to a member of the near-by Volunteer Life Saving Station, "but we weren't strong enough to hold it. The boat was carried all the way under the pier and against a scow which was moored on the south side. Then the tide began to push against the boat's keel, and we were tilted slowly over until we were finally all spilled into the water."

Both Budick and Lavery can swim a little, but the two Case boys sank from sight. Lavery found a rope hanging from the scow and climbed up it and got on shore in that way. Budick struggled in the water until his cries attracted the attention of Charles Walters of 49 West Ninety-eighth Street. Walters jumped into the water and helped Budick to climb up on the scow by means of the rope.

Both Budick and Lavery were so exhausted when they climbed up the scow that they could not tell the police where the Case boys lived. The aged parents of the latter did not learn of the accident until late in the afternoon. It was a TIMES reporter, indeed who first told them how the accident happened. Howard, the elder of the two brothers, had been in the employ of Hegeman's for several years and was well liked by his employers and fellow-employes.

"He was one of the most promising young men we had," the Superintendent

LICK OBSERVATORY DAMAGED

OAKLAND, Cal., July 4.—According to information received here to-day the earthquake of last Saturday did considerable damage at Lick Observatory, on Mount Hamilton. The 36-inch telescope was moved three-quarters of an inch out of place on its concrete pier, but was restored without trouble.

The case of the Riefler clock was wrecked and minor damage was done to the working parts.

The chimneys of the observatory buildings were injured and a brick structure which houses a number of astronomers was cracked so as to be unsafe for occupancy.

The shock was the most severe felt at the observatory.

CANADIAN PACIFIC DENIAL.

Never Sought Control of Erie, Official Statement Says.

GOMPERS WON'T APOLOGIZE.

Says He Will Go to Jail Rather Than Retract in Contempt Case.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 4.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in addressing a McNamara protest meeting in a Summer garden here to-day said it would be better for murderers to go uncaught than to have a condition prevail where it is possible for accused men to be kidnapped to remove them from the jurisdiction of one State to another.

At one stage of his address he referred to his own experiences in the courts.

"Who knows where I shall be in a few weeks?" he asked. "For I go to Washington, where I am not to be called upon to answer for contempt, but to be given an opportunity of apologizing to the court. Well, if it is to be a choice between an apology and jail, I expect I shall have to go to jail."

JULIA MARLOWE ILL.

The engagement of E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe at the Broadway Theatre in their al-Shakespearean répertoire was discontinued yesterday, and the theatre was closed last night. Miss Marlowe was so overcome by the heat during the performance of "Macbeth" on Monday night that it was only with the greatest difficulty that she finished the performance at all. Yesterday her physician forbade the continuation of the engagement during the present excessive heat, and her condition, though not alarming, was such as to make any further performances impossible. The engagement was to have lasted only one week, ending on Saturday night. All money paid for seats will be refunded at the box office.

Dr. Joseph B. Bissell of 46 West Fifty-fifth Street, who is attending Miss Marlowe, said that he had urged her to take a much-needed rest, to prevent a more serious breakdown of her health.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 4.—At Cliffside, one of the few places in Bergen County where a safe and sane Fourth of July ordinance was not in force, Adolph, the four months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zimmerman, was killed by a bullet as he lay asleep in a baby carriage on the front porch.

The mother took the child to the porch, where a breeze was blowing, while she went to the kitchen to prepare dinner. A few minutes later Mrs. Zimmerman stepped out to take a peek at her baby and was horrified to find blood streaming down his face from a wound in the forehead. The bullet had gone through his head.

The police arrested Ely August, 22 years old, and Joseph Deer, 15, for having loaded revolvers in their possession. August admitted having fired four bullets, but did not know where they went. They were committed to the Hackensack Jail on a charge of murder.

STRIKE RIOT IN MANCHESTER.

Troops Called Out—More Settlements with Seamen Arranged.

MANCHESTER, July 4.—A strike of carters developed in a threatening manner to-day. Twelve thousand strikers forcibly prevented the movement of produce from the docks to the wholesale market. There was a scene of such disorder that soldiers were called out to deal with the mob.

Crowds of women joined the men, stopping traffic and destroying or scattering the market produce in the streets.

The police were engaged until nearly midnight in attempting to disperse crowds of rioters, and made frequent charges with their batons. Many persons were injured by showers of bricks and stones.

LONDON, July 4.—Further settlements in the shipping strike were reached to-day.

Lord Inverclyde, Chairman of the Glasgow Shipowners' Association, presided at a shipowners' meeting in that city, at which it was decided to concede an increase of ten shillings monthly to the seamen and firemen and proportionate advances to other classes of men. These terms were accepted.

The dispute at Fishguard was also settled.

The strike of the dock hands in London has not yet been arranged and riotous scenes continued to-day at Manchester, where the strikers persist in what are considered unreasonable demands.

The provision trade at Manchester has been brought almost to a standstill through the failure of the conference to effect a settlement, but efforts to arrange a compromise continue.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 4.—Flying from Boston to Washington for pure love of the sport of aeroplaning, Harry N. Atwood, the young Boston aviator who took up his flight from New York in his Burgess-Wright biplane at 8:48 this morning landed here at 2:32 this afternoon, having covered approximately 378 of the 518 miles of his journey.

Mr. Atwood's sportsmanship will not go unrecognized. THE NEW YORK TIMES will commemorate his arrival at Washington and the successful completion of his trip by presenting to him a cup.

Atwood was much pleased when told to-night that THE TIMES will present a cup to him after the completion of his flight to Washington. He said he would receive the cup with pleasure.

A representative of the Philadelphia Aero Club called on the airman this afternoon and asked him to change his course, flying to Washington by way of Philadelphia. Atwood is considering this proposition and expects to decide it to-morrow. If the weather is favorable he may start to fly to Washington to-morrow afternoon.

More than 50,000 Fourth of July visitors and natives were on the beach and boardwalk when he came to earth. Despite the fact that the aviator was three and one-half hours behind his schedule, the throng cheered him to the echo. Rather than disappoint them Atwood had bucked a stiff southerly wind which was so strong at times that the aeroplane appeared to stand still in mid-air.

Atwood said that at times he was compelled to use all the power in his engine to make headway at all. He estimated the velocity of the wind that buffeted him as high as fifty miles an hour at altitudes varying from 500 to 1,500 feet.

The course Atwood had mapped out for the flight from New York to Atlantic City he estimated at about 110 miles. After a trying experience lasting nearly six hours he managed to make the journey, but he had to descend three times en route to replenish his gasoline supply. Under normal conditions the gasoline used in the flight would easily have carried him all the way to Washington.

"I got away from Governors Island," Atwood said after landing, "at 8:48, and the minute I struck the coast line I had decided to follow my troubles began.

"Every second of the time I had to contend with adverse winds. Several times I was beaten back by winds that certainly averaged fifty miles an hour, if not more. So busy was I kept fighting for headway that I soon lost track of the time, the result being that when I saw the Long Branch boardwalk I thought I had reached Atlantic City and started to come down. The natives saw me coming and gathered in great crowds to greet me. I found out my mistake, however, and proceeded without landing.

Made Two Mistakes.

"I should explain that this is my first visit to the Jersey Coast cities, and I had an idea that Atlantic City was the only one of them that had a boardwalk. That was the reason for the Long Branch and later on the Asbury Park mistake.

"It was about 10 o'clock when I sighted Asbury Park, and the first thing I recognized was a boardwalk. 'That's Atlantic City, sure,' I said to myself. The walk was jammed with people, and I could see them waving and at times I could hear their cheers. I never was so cetrain of anything in my life as I was that the place under me was Atlantic City, and down I came.

"Remember, all this time I was bucking winds that at times blew with the force of a gale, and the thought that I had managed to plow my way through to Atlantic City in such good time made me as happy as a schoolboy. I was not long in learning my mistake. I landed on the beach in the midst of a great crowd that gave me a splendid welcome.

"A man pressed forward and grasped my hand.

"Is this Atlantic City" I asked.

"No, my son," he answered, "it's Asbury Park. Atlantic City is 106 miles south of here."

"I remained at Asbury Park about ten minutes before resuming my flight. When I got away I realized that the wind had freshened in the ten minutes, and the going was as bad as could be imagined. It was like bucking a stone wall at times, and time and again the machine just stood still up there in the air. A speed of ten miles an hour was fast flying in some of the breezes I had to contend with. All the time my gasoline was being rapidly used up and I was not getting much nearer Atlantic City.

"Between Asbury Park and Seagirt the buffeting I had to contend against quickly reduced the gasoline supply to a minimum, and I decided when I spotted what later turned out to be Seagirt that I would have to drop down and get a fresh supply. I did so, taking in five gallons, and once more I went up and resumed the battle with the head winds.

"It was the same old story. The wind had not abated a bit. In fact, it seemed to be stronger than ever, and I got the full force of it head on. But I had made up my mind to make Atlantic City and kept plugging away. But the gasoline problem again asserted itself and I was still about twenty miles of Atlantic City when I had to come down a second time for fuel. I landed in a field near a little place called Tuckerton. A farmer came out and welcomed me to his place.

Had Heard of Airships.

"'I have heard a lot about these airships,' the old man said, 'but I never expected to see one right here on my own place.'

"I made my wants known and was directed to a place where I got five gallons more of gasoline. I was certain that this with what I still had left would be enough to carry me to Atlantic City, even if it was a fight with a gale all the way.

"I shall never forget those last twenty miles of the flight. The wind conditions were awful before, but that last leg of the journey was the worst experience I ever had in the air. For minutes at a time it seemed as if the machine simply could not buck its way through in the face of such head winds. I just hung there like a ball in the air. An hour passed and I was still in the air, with several miles of the twenty to be made.

"Again the gasoline got low ,and when I was less than three miles from the landing spot in front of the Marlborough-Blenheim I had to come down a third time for gasoline. I landed in a spot called Venice Park just on the outskirts of Atlantic City. This time there was no gasoline to be had, and I would probably be in the park yet had not a kind friend who saw me come down turned up in an automobile. This friend went to Atlantic City and got three gallons of gasoline, and after a delay of thirty minutes I got up again. This time I got to Atlantic City. It was an experience I shall never forget, and I would hesitate a long time before attempting it again under like conditions."

Had Atwood been able to reach here on schedule time it is safe to say that a throng of 100,000 would have welcomed him. From 10 o'clock till 1 the city waited and watched for the signal that the aviator had been sighted. When 2 o'clock came and no signal had appeared thousands concluded he had met with a mishap or else had changed his course and eliminated Atlantic City. They therefore went back to their hotels or homes.

The scene when the aviator finally appeared, a little speck in the air, to the south of the Marlborough-Blenheim, was inspiring. Men and women waved their handkerchiefs and cheered madly. The volume of sound when Atwood swept over the Boardwalk and then gracefully planed down to the landing point was deafening. When his machine came to a stop and he leaped out of his seat the throng swooped down on him, swept the police aside, and showered him with congratulations. Chief of Police Woodruff was the first to greet Atwood.

A Policeman's Greeting.

"Sonny, you're a brick," said Woodruff, and Atwood smiled a "Thank you." Women descended in shoals to voice their compliments, but the aviator was finally rescued and escorted to the Marlborough-Blenheim for luncheon, making his way through a jam of cheering admirers.

One of the first questions put to Atwood when he got to his hotel was as to his plans for continuing the flight to Washington. At first he said he hoped to make it this afternoon, but later, when the wind showed no signs of abating, he decided to wait over night here.

"Will you start to-morrow?" he was asked.

"I hope so," he answered, "but I won't in any such wind as this."

A throng greater by thousands than the one that welcomed his arrival assembled later to see Atwood. Rather than disappoint them he made two flights, both in the face of a strong head wind. In each he ascended to an altitude of about 1,000 feet, pointing his machine into the teeth of the half a gale that was blowing.

Then the throng witnessed a wonderful sight. The machine, its propellers whirling, appeared to be suspended in midair. So far as the onlookers could tell it looked to be stationary. For over five minutes on each flight the machine stuck up there high above the steel pier, apparently not making an inch headway.

Atwood said to-night that after finishing the Washington flight he will begin making plans for a flight from the Pacific to the Atlantic. He hopes to start on that record-breaking flight in August.

Scores called on the aviator to-day and congratulated him on being the first to make the flight from New York to Atlantic City.

START MADE IN A HAZE.

A breeze from the southeast stirred the waters of the upper bay slightly and piled up the mist, in spite of the rising sun, which could be dimly seen through a bright patch in the east. This breeze hastened Atwood's departure.

"I want to get into it," he said. "At the rate the wind is blowing now it will add about the equivalent of 150 miles to the trip to Atlantic City. I believe the wind may increase and I want to get started right away."

Atwood sent for Capt. Jack Madden to witness the start, but when, after about two minutes' wait, the Captain failed to appear, he gave the order to cast off. Just before the signal he shook hands with the nearest of his companions and said "Good bye!"

With a company of mechanicians and assistants, Atwood made his appearance on Governors Island at 7:30. He had an early breakfast at the Hotel Manhattan, where he spent the night. The aviator had with him two propeller blades, having broken one of the blades in his trials the day before. The party walked down through the sunken streets and covered passage ways of Fort Jay to the little plot of open ground, past the Army Y. M. C. A. Building, and set to work to fit one of the new propellers in place of the broken one.

After some inspection Atwood decided not to replace the unbroken propeller. Several tests of the engine showed it to work in good order, and the new propeller revolved satisfactorily.

As soon as these details had been attended to, Atwood showed his impatience to begin the flight. He climbed to his seat and tested all the levers, much as a boy would mount a new hobby horse. He displayed keen delight at the prospect of starting his aerial journey.

Atwood asked then that Capt. Madden be sent for. He inquired the time from one of his attendants and was informed that it was 8:46. He hesitated for a few seconds and then gave orders that he was to be released at 8:48. The men gave the propellers a shove and the motor began to cough. The man who held the watch waved his hand as the seconds indicated the exact time, 8:48, and Atwood shouted over the roar of the motor: "Let go!"

Rising from the ground on a twenty-degree angle for the first fifty yards, Atwood headed south toward the Atlantic Basin, and then rising on an angle of forty degrees whirled gracefully to the east and turned a rising half spiral toward the Brooklyn Bridge, completing the turn like a soaring eagle toward the Statute of Liberty. On his way across the bay, Atwood nearly passed over the heads of the little party which he had left a few seconds before. He was then at an altitude of about 300 feet. As he headed across the bay, he rose and disappeared in the haze in the direction of the Kill van Kull.

The fog lay so thick on the harbor that few vessels were in a position for their crews of passengers to see the flight. The whistles of Municipal Ferry boats in the Staten Island service and several excursion steamers, loaded to capacity with holiday crowds, saluted the airman as he sped on his way.

Just as Atwood passed Castle Williams on the return trip of his circular swing for altitude, Maj. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, mounted on his bay horse and accompanied by a mounted orderly, approached that end of Governors Island on his morning gallop. Gen. Grant reined in his horse, and as the spirited animal danced to and fro on the road near the water's edge, the Commander of the Department of the East gazed after the retreating aviator.

"Bully!" remarked a young lieutenant. "We might have such a picture in actual warfare. Imagine a hostile fleet and army besieging New York and the Commander of the Department of the East dispatching a trusted courier by aeroplane to the National Capitol with messages too confidential to be trusted to cipher by wireless. That's just the way it would look."

After crossing New York Bay, Atwood skirted the New Jersey Coast and was reported at Long Branch, at 10:14 o'clock, approaching from the direction of Keyport and taking a southwesterly course, sailing west of Red Bank. He hugged the coast line and as he passed over Long Branch was two miles inland. Six minutes later the aviator reached Ashbury Park and paused to describe a circle over the Casino before continuing on his course. He was 500 feet in the air and kept this height when he soared above Belmar at 10:24 o'clock.

Atwood made his first landing at Sea Girt at 10:28 o'clock and was up in the air seven minutes later, having remedied defects in the combustion of his engine. He passed Sea Side Park at 11:07 o'clock and arrived at Tuckerton, where he made his second landing for gasoline and water at five minutes after noon. He did not resume his flight until twenty minutes to one. He was then less than thirty miles from Atlantic City. His arrival in Tuckerton broke up a Fourth of July celebration in progress near his landing place. He got a storm of cheers when he sailed away high into the fog.

HIS STOP AT THE STATE CAMP.

On the Ground Twenty Minutes Replenishing His Gasoline Supply.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 4.—Harry N. Atwood, in his Wright-Burgess biplane, caused a sudden cessation of all other holiday activities here this morning, when he flew over town at a height of about 1,000 feet, and later came to the ground at the New Jersey State Camp Grounds for a twenty-minute stop on his trip from New York to Atlatic City. Behind him from this resort to the State reservation was a long string of automobiles, which arrived at the grounds and turned out a crowd of fully 500 persons to greet him in less than ten minutes.

As soon as Atwood landed he lit a big cigar and inspected his engine. He asked for gasoline, which was supplied from the State magazine. He was on the ground 20 minutes, then rose again and started on his course to the tooting of scores of automobile horns.

Before leaving Atwood said that when he came to the Raritan River he missed his course, following that for some distance. He flew at a height of about 1,000 feet, as he said that higher up the air currents were bad. As nearly as he could figure, he had covered about seventy-five miles, but if he had not lost his way the distance would not have been more than sixty.

WASHINGTON READY FOR HIM.

Great Preparations for His Landing Close to the White House.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Assured that Harry N. Atwood, the aviator, who started from New York for Washington today, would certainly arrive to-morrow, the capital prepared to-night to receive him when he alighted from the skies. Granville M. Hunt of the Chamber of Commerce returned to-night from Atlantic City, where the aviator landed in his flight to-day.

"Unless the weather is such that he cannot attempt the flight," said Mr. Hunt, "I have assurances that the last leg of the journey between New York and Washington will be undertaken to-morrow."

The chances are that Atwood will start about noon, when there generally is a lull in the Summer winds. In such a case he should arrive here about 2:30 or 3 o'clock, according to local aviators, who are looking forward to the accomplishment of his feat with great interest.

The plans to-night are to have the aerial visitor alight in the Ellipse immediately behind the White House. He will use the Washington Monument as a guiding mark, and several thousand square feet of dazzling white canvas will be spread on the lawn near the tall shaft to mark the place for his descent. The Ellipse will be thoroughly policed, and everything will be done to protect the great crowd of onlookers expected to witness the end of the flight.

Preparations are completed to give Atwood a great reception. The Chamber of Commerce will entertain him at luncheon, while the Cosmos Club and other scientific clubs and societies also will act as hosts. Atwood is said to plan the sale of one of his type of machines to the Government, and during his stay will probably give exhibitions before members of Congress as well as undertake a number of instructive flights at the army aviation ground at College Park, Md.

UP IN A SUNRISE FLIGHT.

French Aviator's Aeroplane Reflected Colors, Presenting a Spectacle.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 4.—There was a beautiful sunrise aviation spectacle here this morning when André Hupert, instructor of the Moisant Aviation School, made a half-hour flight at an altitude of 2,000 feet. Making a circle of the temporary school grounds here, Hupert went on an inspection tour of the new field, a mile or so east of the present one. Then the machine was seen to ascend. It rose higher and higher, until it soared above the line of the sun which was just appearing over the horizon, its rays tinting the under sides of the planes with pink. The machine looked like a mammoth butterfly in the sky.

With the under side of the wings lined with color and each point and guy wire tipped with light, the monoplane made a striking picture, rising against the darker background of a mackerel sky, until it became a mere speck to the spectators.

When he came down the Frenchman found himself in a strange country, despite the fact that he was within a stone's throw of the Meadow Brook Club. Suspecting he was lost, watchers at the school at this place drove over to him in a taxicab from the Garden City garage and gave him his position.

Every square foot of its two miles by a mile of aviation ground has been rolled to the level of a billiard table. It is expected that this will be made the finest aviation ground in the country.

NASSAU BOULEVARD, L. I., July 4.—Owing to the stiff wind which rose over this section of Long Island about noon today the proposed flight of Thomas Sopwith to Long Beach for luncheon was postponed. The Englishman contented himself with two short flights, taking up Miss Zella Mohr in one and J. Campbell Wood in the other.

Hundreds See Drowning at Coney.

While Carl Mantell, 17 years old, of 21 East Fifth Street, Manhattan, and Carl Schosch of 29 East Twenty-eighth Street were swimming in Gravesend Bay, at the foot of West Thirty-fifth Street, Coney Island, yesterday, Mantell was seized with cramps and began shouting for help. Schosch tried to rescue him, but could not reach him before he sank. Several hundred persons on the shore witnessed the drowning, but were unable to render any assistance. Mantell's body was recovered.

The body of an unknown man fully dressed was found near Fort Hamilton in the Narrows yesterday by Policeman Lavander and brought ashore. It was taken to the Brooklyn Morgue. There were no papers in any of the pockets and no marks of identification on the clothes. The police believe the body to be that of a suicide.

While trying to escape the heat by a swim off Market Street last night, Isaac Finstein, 9 years old, of 154 Allen Street was seized with a cramp shortly after he entered the water, and was drowned before other swimmers could reach him. The body was not recovered.

Frank Belmont of 441 West Forty-fourth Street reported to the police of the West Thirty-seventh Street Police Station last night that he had seen a man drowned in the North River yesterday afternoon while swimming at the foot of West Thirtieth Street. Belmont told the police that he was alone upon the wharf when the man drowned, and being unable to swim, could not go to his assistance. The Harbor Police were notified of the supposed drowning and the river at the foot of West Thirtieth Street was dragged for the body. At a late hour last night the body had not been recovered.

"Jack" Moran Saves Laborer.

Keeper "Jack" Moran of the Harlem Morgue, at the foot of East 120th Street, who has already won five Carnegie Hero Fund Medals for rescuing people from drowning, added one more item to his long list yesterday by saving Antonio Ferro, a forty-nine-year-old laborer, who had fallen into the East River while working on the Morgue grounds.

Ferro is one of a gang of laborers who are constructing a sewer under the Harlem Morgue. At lunch time yesterday, he walked over a temporary planking which runs along the east side of the Morgue, between the building and the river. Being tired and cramped from his work under the building, he walked unsteadily and tripped over the bulkhead, falling into the water.

The cries of the Italian as he floundered about in the river attracted Moran, who was in the Morgue at the time. The keeper ran out and only stopping to pull off his coat plunged in. He clutched Ferro by the shirt and held him at arm's length until he could get a safer grip on him. Then he swam with Ferro to a place where they could both climb out. Neither was the worse for the ducking. Besides his five Carnegie medals, Moran has received for four rescues as a member of the Volunteer Life Saving Corps $25 each time.

While diving from a float about fifty feet off the Staten Island shore opposite Miller's Hotel, South Beach, yesterday, Isaiah Torping of Wheeler Avenue, Castleton Corners, found a man struggling on the bottom. The water is about seven feet deep at this point. Torping brought the man ashore and Dr. George Mord, who was on the beach, was summoned.

The man died, however, without recovering consciousness. He was in a bathing suit and evidently was a patron of one of the bathing pavilions along the beach. He had apparently been seized with cramps while in the water and had sunk without being noticed. The only way the police said they could obtain an identification of the body last night was to wait until every one had left the bath houses late in the evening, when all of them would be searched for the dead man's clothes.

While the launch Aronel was passing Midland Beach yesterday afternoon Lester Vanderhoof, a clerk in the Newark office of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, fell from the stern of the boat and was drowned. The Aronel belongs to the Eureka Yacht Club of Newark, and with a number of members of the club aboard had been down to Princes Bay for a day's fishing. She was on her way back to the Hackensack River when the drowning of Vanderhoof occurred. Vanderhoof was 27 years old and lived at 140 Monmouth Street, Newark.

Fatalities in New Jersey Waters.

Three persons were drowned in near-by Jersey waters yesterday. Two of these were Annie Dolan, 23 years old, and Bessie Mulvane, 24 years old, both of Newark, N. J. They were drowned in the Raritan Bay. They had gone from Newark to Keansburg on the Raritan with a party of friends, and were wading in the neighborhood of a bathing pavilion along what seemed to be a shelving bottom when they stepped into a deep hole. They sank before their friends could reach them. Their bodies were recovered later and were taken to Newark.

George Panoples, the 22-year-old cousin of James Panoples, who operates concessions at Verona Lake Park, near Montclair, N. J., was drowned in the lake while diving from a boat early yesterday morning. A friend was with him, but could not find his body. Later it was found sticking head downward in the lake's muddy bottom.

Amelia Campbell of 659 Boulevard, Bayonne, and Helen Shonessy of 677 Boulevard, each about 16 years old, yesterday saved the life of Joseph Hoffman, aged 12, who was swimming in Newark Bay off Twenty-sixth Street. The boy was taken with cramps and with a cry sank. He was sinking the third time when the two girls, who are good swimmers and were bathing a short distance away, got to his side. They grappled him and each placed one of his arms about her neck. Thus they swam ashore together, while a crowd applauded. The boy was brought around and taken home by companions.

Given Up, Then Resuscitated.

Samuel Smith, a member of the Thirteenth Regiment of the National Guard, which is in camp at Fort Hamilton, had a narrow escape yesterday. Smith, who is 27 years old and lives at 360 Gates Avenue, was bathing at the foot of Bay Ninth Street, Bath Beach, when he was taken with cramps. Some of his comrades brought him ashore, but he was unconscious and seemed to be dead.

His comrades even ceased to work over him. Police Sergeant Card, however, who happened to be passing along the beach, gave Smith all the artificial respiration treatments he had ever heard of and in this way was able to bring him back to consciousness after half an hour's work. It was said last night at the fort that Smith would surely recover.

Benjamin Levy, 24 years old, of 286 Reid Avenue, Brooklyn, was diving from Tholl's bathing pavilion at the foot of Emmons Avenue, Sheepshead Bay, yesterday when he struck a submerged raft. He injured his spine so badly that he had to be rescued from the water by his companions. He was taken to the Coney Island Hospital.

Could Not Swim Well Enough.

Lawrence Donohue, 18 years old, of 2 West 135th Street, was drowned yesterday while swimming in the Harlem River at the foot of West 136th Street. Donohue, who could not swim very well, was bathing with some other boys. They were all jumping off a log which was tied by a rope to the wharf. Donohue most of the time selected the log as soon as he jumped into the water. He started to swim out a little way from it. But he shouted for help and sank before he had swum out more than a few feet. Abraham Holman, another 18-year-old boy, of 2,210 Fifth Avenue, tried to rescue Donohue, but was not strong enough. After Donohue sank for the last time Holman even tried to recover his friend's body by diving after it. He was unsuccessful. The body was recovered about a half hour later last night.

Benjamin Boschen, 20 years old, an elevator boy of 243 East Thirteenth Street, was drowned in Pelham Bay. He had gone to the Pelham Bay Baths with Nathan Shapiro and Aaron Finkelstein, two friends, and, hiring a boat there, had rowed out about fifty feet from shore. Boschen could not swim. The water immediately beneath the boat was only about four feet deep. After he had dived several times into the shallow water on the side of the boat nearest the shore he dived from the other side. The water there seems to have been deeper, for after disappearing beneath the surface he never came up. His body was not recovered.

The body of 9-year-old William Vergin of 430 East Fifteenth Street, who was drowned off the foot of East Nineteenth Street last Saturday, was recovered yesterday near the place where the boy went down by Capt. John Conn of the schooner Watson Tomkins.

Gave Up His Life for Another.

Seeking vainly to save his friend from drowning, William Ward, 21 years old, of 267 Skillman Street, Brooklyn, gave up his life yesterday in the waters of Jamaica Bay. The friend whom Ward gave up his life for was Herbert Merker, 17 years old, of the same address. Merker was also drowned.

The drowning of Ward and Merker occurred at Hook Creek, between Jamaica and Far Rockaway. According to Morton Ketcham of 490 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, who was with Ward and Merker when they were drowned, the three boys had hired a boat at Red Hook and, after putting on bathing suits, rowed through Hook Creek, which is an inlet from the Jamaica Bay.

Then Ward and Merker jumped overboard and began swimming about the creek while Ketcham, who is only sixteen years old and cannot swim, remained in the boat. Pretty soon, Merker, who had got some distance from the boat, was seen to be in difficulty.

"I've got a cramp. Save me," he cried.

Ward swam toward him, but the incoming tide swept his friend further and further away. Finally Merker sank and Ward, continuing to swim to the place where he had gone down, also disappeared.

Ketcham, meantime, was trying to pull the heavy rowboat to where they were diving. Before Ketcham could reach Ward, the latter cried out that he was exhausted.

"Bring the boat. Row hard. Hurry," he shouted to the younger boy.

He sank, however, before Ketcham could reach him. Ketcham rowed to the shore and notified the police of the Jamaica Station. The bodies of Ward and Merker were later recovered. They were taken to Everett's Morgue.

Leaped in Together, Fully Clad.

What seemed to spectators on the shore to be a double suicide by drowning occurred in Powell's Cove, off Whitestone, L. I., yesterday afternoon. The two persons who apparently died together by mutual agreement were Jarcslav Androzak, 27 years old, of 332 East Seventy-seventh Street, and a young woman who is known in the neighborhood as "Paula." Androzak and the woman were seen together in a boat, rowing around the cove, during the afternoon. They could be plainly seen talking and gesticulating to each other, but they were too far offshore for the spectators to hear what they said. Suddenly they both rose in the boat, and, without removing any of their garments, leaped into the water. They seemed to regret their act almost as soon as it was committed, for they both began to scream.

A boat put out from the shore to their rescue, but both man and woman were drowned before it reached them. The bodies were recovered and taken to the Police Station at Whitestone.

Charles Lampe, 18 years, of 215 Norman Street, Evergreen, L. I., was drowned yesterday while swimming in Jamaica Bay, off Canarsie, yesterday afternoon. Lampe, with Alfred Renner of 182 Irving Avenue, a friend, were out in a boat together. Lampe took off his clothes and jumped into the water for a swim, while Renner remained in the boat. Lampe in a few moments became suddenly exhausted and, in answer to his cries, Renner jumped into the water, too, with all his clothes on. He was unable to support Lampe, however, and both young men sank.

Fred J. Barnes of 146 Weirfield Street, Brooklyn, in his launch Denrat of the Canarsie Yacht Club happened to be near. He gave the wheel to his brother William and dived overboard at the place where the two had gone down. He brought them both up, grappling together on the bottom, and brought them both to the surface. Both young men were taken aboard the launch and were revived by Dr. McDermott of St. Mary's Hospital.

Drowned While Playing with Dog.

Ella Farrell, 18 years old, was drowned yesterday afternoon while bathing in Port Jefferson Bay, near the harbor entrance. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Farrell of Holtsville, L. I., and was employed in Clagette's steam laundry. The yong woman was seen playing with a dog, which accompanied her. Suddenly Miss Farrell called for help, and sank before anybody could reach her.

Seven Drown in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 4.—Seven men and boys were drowned to-day in and about the city. Two men and three boys met their deaths while bathing at different points in the Delaware River. A ten-year-old boy was drowned in the East Park reservoir when he fell overboard in an attempt to catch a ball. A deckhand on the steamer John W. Garrett was drowned at Race Street wharf.

SUMMER OPERA OUT MANAGER AND FUNDS

Chorus in Tears, While the Director and Press Agent Are Consumed with Wrath.

"CARMEN" PUT ON THE SHELF

Up at Terrace Garden, Fifty-eighth Street and Lexington Avenue, where lately the members of the Van den Berg Opera Company sang the stirring songs of "Carmen" evenings and rehearsed "Pinafore" mornings, it was found yesterday that there had been a change to tears and wrath. Manager and Promoter Will J. Block has vanished, as have the available funds of the opera troupe. There are now no pay for twenty-five chorus girls and seventeen chorus men, to say nothing of the stage manager, the press representative, and the director, José Van den Berg. Among the girls there are tears; with Stage Manager Carroll, Press Representative Casad, and Director Van den Berg there is wrath, deep and violent, against Block.

Upon his shoulders everybody to be seen at Terrace Garden placed the entire responsibility for the low state to which the financial affairs of the company have come. Block, all agree, had assumed the entire financial and business responsibility. José Van den Berg, whose name was given to the company, and who is director of the orchestra, says he was under a salary agreement. He cannot float the funds for settlement. He thinks, however, that the new backers will be found, and that the company can go on perhaps this week. But the house was dark last night.

The Van den Berg Company began the New York engagement one week ago last Monday, attempting something new in Summer opera. For the price of a first class ticket the company offered a dinner at Terrace Garden, an orchestra chair at the opera, and a taxicab home. They opened with "Carmen" and began rehearsals of "Pinafore." When the end of the week came round and the salaries of the company fell due it was said yesterday that Manager Block did not have the funds for settlement. He was last seen at the theatre on Friday, and was expected to return on Saturday with money enough to pay all the salaries. He did not appear and the efforts of his staff to find him have been without avail.

The members of the chorus are the greatest sufferers. They have received nothing for two weeks of rehearsals and one week's playing. Out of the $3,700 said to have been taken in by the company, only the members of the orchestra, advertising, and the rent of the theatre were accounted for by Director Van den Berg. Ushers and stage hands have received nothing, and nothing has been paid to those of the chorus.

Stage Manager Carroll said yesterday that the company was holding together with the hope that they could secure a new manager this week. Miss Edith Bradford, the prima donna who sang Carmen last week, has left the city, and some of the principals, ten in number, were to be seen.

The amount of the company's funds in the possession of Block no one could exactly tell. The amount due the actors was estimated at $1,200. In addition to this there were said to be bills for costumes and properties which the missing manager had overlooked.

SEIDEL BURNED BY HEATER.

Flames Scorch His Face on Lighting One in Bathroom.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 4.—Mayor Emil Seidel was burned about the head and face to-day when a puff of flame burst from a gas heater which he lighted in his bathroom.

Mr. Seidel had just returned from the East, where he had made several speeches. He had intended visiting the several parks throughout the city to see how the sane celebration of the Fourth was being carried out, but prior to his outing prepared for a bath.

In lighting the heater the flames burst forth in his face, singeing his eyelashes and slightly burning his cheeks. The Mayor thought at first that the burns would prove serious, but after examination by a physician they were declared not to be serious.

The Mayor expects to be back at his office within a day or two.

BOY DISCOVERS THE BODY

Victim Had Received Threatening Letters Since Three Robbers Tied Him Up Last April and Escaped.

Three Italians entered the little shop kept by August Marcion, an old Frenchman, late on the night of April 15 last. Marcion was alone in the shop, on one side of which he ran a barber business with a helper and on the other, divided by a partition, he had a candy and cigar store, where he mostly tended the counter himself. The Italians bound him and then for five hours searched the store and his small living room behind for money. They left, finally warning him that if he told the police they would return and kill him.

Last night Marcion was found dead in his shop with stab wounds in his jaw and over his heart.

Thirteen-year-old William Husbands of 1,313 Leland Avenue, Westchester Village, found the old man. He stopped in the little shop for some candy. The lights were still glowing inside. He didn't see Marcion at first, but presently observed the little old man crumpled up in a heap against the partition separating his living room from the store. The counter half concealed his body.

Husbands, frightened, ran into the street and hailed a car on which Policeman Peiser of the Westchester station was riding. The policeman entered the store and then immediately called Dr. Sheridan from Fordham Hospital. The surgeon could tell nothing except that Marcion was dead, killed by the wound over his heart.

Marcion has received many threatening letters recently, say his neighbors, who frequently have found him in his store apparently frightened half to death by some letter which he had received, for Marcion was a timid little man.

To fuss about the little candy store and to watch his barber attending to the business across the partition was all Marcion desired of life apparently. He was 75 years old—some say older—and his wants were few. That the story should soon have got abroad that he had money was not strange, therefore. But Marcion always denied it. He had no wealth, he said. The income from his little shop sufficed to pay his expenses, no more.

Next to his unwillingness to admit that he was making a comfortable income, the timidity of the little man was his most pronounced characteristic, though, in addition, he was famed through the neighborhood for his goodness of heart and his continual sunny disposition.

It was when a customer found him early on the morning after his hold-up that he exhibited the greatest timidity. For a long time he wouldn't tell what had happened to him, and when he did it was with the prayer that his confidant should not tell the police.

"They'll come back and kill me if you do," he said. "They said they would."

But after the police were told they set a guard over the little old Frenchman's shack, and for weeks he lived in peace. Then the threatening letters began, say his neighbors. These, too, Marcion kept to himself for a while, only speaking of them when he became so terrified that the only relief to his fears was to discuss them with some one else.

Whether the men who robbed him once now have completed their threats to kill him if he told the police cannot be learned, apparently, for no one seems to have seen any one enter or leave his little shop. All that the police know is that some time yesterday little Marcion puttered about behind his counters and that some other time yesterday some one stabbed him.

3 BROTHERS' WEIRD TALE.

Arrested for Murder, They Tell of 20 Assailants Descending from Roof.

Three brothers, none of them in this country more than five months, were held by Magistrate Murphy in the Jefferson Market Court in connection with the shooting on Monday night of Paul Capolo of 203 West Thirtieth Street, who died later in the New York Hospital. The brothers are Joseph Mastropolo, 24 years old; Louis, 18 years old, and Frank, 15.

Louis was held without bail, charged with shooting Capolo. Frank was held in $2,000 bail as an accessory, and Joseph was detained in default of $100 bail as a material witness.

The brothers were arrested Monday night in Twenty-eighth Street, near Sixth Avenue, by Policeman Bernstein of the Tenderloin station. They live at 152 West Twenty-eighth Street. Bernstein told the Magistrate that he found a crowd outside the place and saw the brothers suddenly break away and run. Then, he said, he saw Frank hand Louis a revolver and the latter fire. Capolo dropped.

The brothers said that twenty men had let themselves down from the roof by a rope, entered their room, and given them a beating. When they could escape, the brothers said, they ran into the street. Then some one—not they—fired, they said, and a bullet intended for them struck Capolo.

FALLING STAND HURTS 26.

Two May Die as Result of Collapse at Reading Ball Park.

READING, Penn., July 4.—Twenty-six persons were injured, two of them seriously, by the collapse of the small grand stand at the Reading Tri-State Baseball Park to-day. Herman J. Folkman, a well-known merchant, had his back broken and will probably die. Mrs. A. J. Fisher had her spine injured and was hurt internally. Slight hopes are entertained for her recovery. District Attorney Schaffer sustained slight internal injuries.

The second floor of the stand filled before the first, causing it to become top heavy and fall on the spectators below, crushing them. Many saved their lives by jumping.

Dances Himself to Death.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 4.—John McCloskey, 40 years old, a widower, of Kingsland, danced himself to death at a Fourth of July ball early this morning. He suffered from the heat and a hemorrhage followed.

Kills a Man Celebrating with Gun.

EASTON, Pa., July 4.—Charles McCluskey was shot and killed to-day by Edwin James, who was celebrating Independence Day in West Easton. James was firing a .44-calibre revolver and a shot entered a hotel in which McCluskey was employed, striking him in the head. James was arrested.

COUNTRY SWELTERS IN KILLING HEAT

TEMPERATURE 109 IN KANSAS

PITTSBURG, July 4.—Pittsburg's heat figures to-day exceeded any in the last twenty-four years, reaching 99.6 at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Weather Bureau on a skyscraper, while the street kiosk showed 106. On July 17, 1887, the official temperature was 101, while the hottest known in the city was 103, on July 12, 1881.

Fifteen deaths were added to the heat toll to-day, one being a suicide.

With the excessive heat all hopes for a "safe and sane Fourth" seemingly were dashed to pieces, for there were 17 fires, 36 youngsters lost fingers or eyes or were severely burned, while the heat prostrations taxed all hospitals to such an extent that the lawns look like battlefields where tents have been pitched to care for the sufferers. Tent and awning firms have been drawn on for the canvas shelters and private parties are loaning them to the institutions.

CHICAGO, July 4.—To-day was the hottest, with two exceptions, in the history of the local Weather Bureau, the thermometer at 5 P. M., indicating 101.5 degrees. The exceptions were in July of 1901, when a mark of 102 degrees was followed the next day by one of 103 degrees.

The Weather Bureau figures do not approximate the heat on the street levels, but at many points on Madison, State and other streets in the loop district thermometers during the afternoon registered as high as 106.

Nine deaths and twenty prostrations due to the intense heat were reported.

Among the victims of the heat was Rabbi Nathan Michnich, 60 years old, of Lake Charles, La., a guest at the Hotel Grace, who came to Chicago six weeks ago to escape the heat and who died suddenly while seated in a chair in the hotel.

At 7 A. M., the mercury stood at 85 degrees, but rose steadily till 5 o'clock when the season's record was passed. The Government register at the street level at the same time indicated 104 degrees, and showed those who remained in the city just what they were enduring.

No one who could get out remained in the city. Railroads leading to Summer resorts ran special trains, which were crowded, and lake boats were jammed to the legal limit. The parks were populous with exhausted persons and thousands fled the heat into the waters of the lake.

As has been the case many nights during the record breaking torridity, dwellers in the tenement districts slept on roofs, sidewalks, and alleyways.

SIX STRICKEN IN KANSAS.

State's Crops in Danger from Drought and Heat.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 4.—Five deaths, due to the heat, and many prostrations were reported here to-day. A temperature of 103 this afternoon established a new record for the year.

The city is threatened with an ice shortage. Plants are running full capacity, and the reserve supply is almost exhausted.

One death from heat occurred at Atchison, Kan., where the thermometer registered 108, the hottest July 4 on record.

The highest temperature reported in Kansas was at Junction City, where the thermometer showed 109 degrees. Topeka and Salina reported 106 and Abilene 105.

In Topeka a few drops of rain fell this afternoon, but afforded no relief. A slight sprinkle is also reported from Muskogee, Okla. There the thermometer went to 104 and one prostration was reported.

Southwest Missouri continued to swelter, the maximum temperature at Joplin being 104.

Approximately 100 of the 114 counties in Missouri are greatly in need of rain. A report issued to-day by T. C. Wilson, Secretary of the Missouri Board of Agriculture, declares that with plenty of rain from now on, an immense yield of corn is assured, but that if the drouth continues the crop will be ruined.

The wheat harvest is unusually early. The preliminary estimate on yield is 14.8 bushels per acre; last year, 13.2.

The drouth has virtually ruined the oats crop, says the report, and nearly all new clover and timothy is dead. The potato crop is almost a failure. The State estimate on fruit is 51 per cent. of normal.

Drought has done much damage to Oklahoma crops, according to a statement by Secretary Ben Hennessy of the Oklahoma Board of Agriculture.

The Kansas Board of Agriculture will give out no information as to crop conditions, but press reports indicate that rains within a week will assure a fairly certain crop. Pastures are drying and many stock men are marketing half-fattened cattle because of the shortage of water.

ALBANY'S NEW HEAT RECORD.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 4.—The hot weather record of yesterday of 102 degrees was of short duration, for to-day the temperature went two degrees higher, equaling that of Lexington, Ky., of yesterday. There was a wind of from ten to twelve miles an hour from the southwest and an absence of humidity.

The air was dry and hot and the mercury continued to climb until it registered 104. This was at 2 o'clock. From that hour up to 4 o'clock the temperature fluctuated between 101 and 104. The heat record prior to yesterday was 100 degrees on July 3, 1898.

FIVE NEWARK VICTIMS.

Other New Jersey Cities Had Many Prostrations, but Few Fatalities.

Five deaths occurred from heat in Newark yesterday, and there were numerous prostrations. The victims were John Manning, saloon keeper, 368 Central Avenue; Mrs. E. Zander, 50 years old, 148 Howard Street; Caroline Webk, 79, 1,138 Springfield Avenue; Fred Knox, 5 months, 389 High Street, and Lucy Wassridge, 5 years, 903 Mount Prospect Avenue.

The heat wave claimed its first victim in Trenton yesterday, when Mrs. Mary Borkas was stricken with apoplexy as a result of the warm weather, and died a short time later. There were five prostrations reported.

NINE DEAD IN PHILADELPHIA.

Total of Twenty-four Within the Last Two Days.

PHILADELPHIA, July 4.—Nine additional deaths from the heat were reported at the Coroners' office to-day, making a total of twenty-four deaths within the last two days.

The maximum temperature here to-day was 96 degrees, which was reached at 4 o'clock this afternoon. A high percentage of humidity prevailed all day.

BALTIMORE'S DEAD, TWO.

Col. Joyce, Marshal of Parade, Among the Eleven Prostrated.

BALTIMORE, July 4.—Two deaths and eleven prostrations was the record up to 2 P. M. to-day due to the excessive heat, which has continued unabated since last Sunday. One of the dead was James Shadrick, an English fireman on the British steamer Everett; the other an employe of a local transfer company.

Four of those overcome were musicians in the Fourth of July parade. Three of these, members of the same band, were stricken almost simultaneously at Madison Street and Eutaw Place. It was also reported that several boy scouts doing patrol duty along the line of march were slightly overcome.

The thermometer registered 100 degrees.

Col. Jerome Joyce, Marshal of the parade, was prostrated. He was removed to his hotel in a serious condition, but to-night his condition was improved. Three members of the Fourth Regiment state troops were prostrated on the march, and several others were compelled to drop out of the line.

RAIN COOLS ST. PAUL.

Northwestern City Welcomes an All-Night Downpour.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 4.—Rain, which began falling during the night and continued almost steadily until nearly 10 o'clock this forenoon, cooled the temperature in the early part of the day.

The official temperature to-day was 67 at 7 o'clock.

HEAT'S TOLL ELSEWHERE.

Four Deaths in Detroit, Two in Columbus, and One in St. Louis.

DETROIT, Mich., July 4.—Four deaths due to the heat were reported to-day, making a total of eight in Detroit for three days, one Sunday and three Monday.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 4.—The heat wave continues in Columbus to-day and two deaths are attributed to the high temperature.

ST. LOUIS, July 4.—One death from the heat was reported to the police to-day. The temperature at 11 o'clock was 95 degrees. The minimum during the night was 82.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 4.—Although the temperature here averaged two degrees lower than yesterday, the weather to-day seemed to cause more suffering and many cases of prostration were reported, but no fatalities. The official maximum temperature of 92 degrees was reached at 5 P. M. At the same time the Weather Bureau kiosk on the street level registered 102 degrees.

CINCINNATI, July 4.—Yesterday's temperature record of 100 degrees bade fair to be surpassed to-day. The thermometer registered 90 degrees at 10 o'clock, 2 degrees higher than yesterday at the same hour.

IN RICHMOND AND QUEENS.

Band Concerts Features of the Day in the Suburban Boroughs.

The official celebration of the Fourth in the Borough of Richmond was at the Curtis High School field in St. George. The Rev. Duncan Browne of Christ Episcopal Church, New Brighton, opened the exercises with prayer and the Rev. Father Cassidy of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church of New Brighton read the Declaration.

Addresses appropriate to the day were delivered by Congressman Connell of Poughkeepsie and Eugene Lamb Richards, and then there was a band concert.

In the evening fireworks displays and band concerts were given in every town on Staten Island, the celebrations being under the management of the three Aldermen of the borough.

In Queens John Anderson Leach was in charge of the celebration. He arranged for a band concert in the morning on the steps of the County Court House, and himself made a short address. The Declaration was read by John Nagel, a student of the Bryant High School, and Eugene N. L. Young also made a speech.

CHURCH BURNS; BOYS BLAMED.

Fire Also Destroys Houses and Buildings in North Ashburnham, Mass.

NORTH ASHBURNHAM, Mass., July 4.—Boys celebrating the Fourth are thought to have started a fire which burned the Old Congregational Church, five dwelling houses, and other buildings to-day. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

The church building was 70 years old. It was formerly owned by the Congregational Society, but lately has been used as a general place of worship. Boys who climbed the old belfry to ring the Fourth of July bells are supposed to have dropped a match or cigarette, which started the fire.

400,000 at Coney Island—Thousands Take Water Trips.

Many thousands considered that the safest and sanest thing to do yesterday was to get out of town. From an hour after dawn there was no such thing as a vacant seat or a vacant spot on which to stand on any outgoing train or steamboat. The Staten Island ferry boats were crowded to the rails, hundreds paying out fare after fare just to ride to and fro between St. George and the Battery in preference to braving the landward heat waves.

There stood at the Battery throughout the day a crowd of 50,000 of the disappointed. The personnel of the crowd changed with every hour, as thousands got aboard boats for Coney Island, West Point or Rockaway, and thousands more pressed in from behind. In the cooling breeze that came in off the sea in the evening, those that got started nowhere sat down on the waterfront and drank in the better air with all the zest of those who had managed to get away.

The Inspectors who counted folks on and off the steamboats to see that the laws about crowding were observed said at 8 o'clock last night that in the preceding twelve hours they had counted aboard the outward bound vessels at least 175,000 passengers. These went for the most part to the Highlands and Red Bank on four Patten Line boats, to Glen Island on five boats, to Rockaway Beach on three, and to other points, including Coney Island, on twenty other vessels. The Coney boats, each holding 1,500 passengers, were so crowded that round trip tickets were refused, the company fearing it would be overwhelmed on the late return trips.

At Coney Island itself the glaring dawn found 20,000 sleepers on the beach, and their number had increased at sunset to 30,000. It was too hot a day for extensive celebration of the hilarious sort at Coney Island. In quietness and comparative peace the throng of 400,000 that came to spend the day paraded up and down Surf Avenue, crowded into the ocean, and went away to leave the sleepers in unmolested possession of the beach.

The police, because the heat did their work for them, had only occasional need to exert themselves in the daytime, and at night their chief duty was to see that pickpockets kept away from the throngs upon the sand.

When the last of the singing throngs were coming ashore at the Battery early this morning it was estimated that the Coney Island boats had landed 20,000 passengers in the evening, while the boats from the Fishing Banks brought back 2,500, the boats from Red Bank and the Highlands 4,000, and the boats from Glen Island 6,000.

Many of them lingered at the Battery to witness the fireworks display on the river and to let the jam in the Subway and on the elevated lines dissipate before braving the final lap of the journey home. The piers along the Hudson, up as far as 129th Street, were as closely packed at 1 o'clock this morning as they ordinarily are at 8 o'clock in the evening. Wherever the people were together the new spirit of celebrating the Fourth seemed to have caught the crowd's imagination. Jollity was everywhere, but rowdyism was almost unheard of.

Powder burns and premature explosions also caused a considerable quota of accidents. Those treated included Allen Anderson, 11 years old, 481 Edson Avenue, powder burns on face, Lincoln Hospital; Mrs. Mary Noonan, 357 Pearl Street, laceration of right eye from firecracker, St. Gregory's; James Kiernan, lacerated finger, St. Gregory's; Thomas Bellery, 418 Cherry Street, lacerated hand, St. Gregory's; John Allen, 14 years, 881 Westchester Avenue, powder burns on hand, Lebanon; John Cimente, 16 years, 649 St. Ann's Avenue, powder burns on hands, Lebanon; Frank W. Burns, 13 years, 356 East 150th Street, burns on hands, Lebanon; Benjamin Hasan, 11 years, 59 Vandam Street, powder burns on left cheek and ear, Hudson Street; Joseph Smith, 92 Varick Street, blank cartridge wound in hand, Hudson Street; Daniel O'Rourke, 17 years, contusions of chest from explosion of shell, Gouverneur.

No Break in Heat Wave in Sight.

The records of short hot spells in the past show a consistent tendency to begin and end with a moderately high temperature with one excessively high temperature sandwiched in between. The present spell, unlike these short spells, was ushered in with a record-breaking temperature which was exceeded on the second day and which dropped only a little on the third. This is an indication, the forecaster said, of a record-breaking heat duration test. After all, he said, the wind is the saving balm. If it swerves to the east it will be an ocean breeze and cool weather will follow. Old Aeolus could, if he were so inclined, turn the sun's rays back into the skies. "Perhaps," suggested the forecaster, waxing classical, "he is now resenting the insult declared against him by the rejection of the theory of the gods."

The hot Fourth of July in 1879, when the temperature reached a maximum of 92, according to the newspaper accounts of the heat of that day, was not as oppressive as was yesterday. No deaths or prostrations from heat were reported. It was simply said, in an account of the Fourth, that "the glorious day was glorious only in being gloriously hot."

Ambulances Kept Busy.

The clang of ambulance bells was heard all day yesterday and long into the night. Wherever an ambulance stopped a morbid crowd collected. Often an ambulance would make a second stop on the way to the hospital with a patient, the rush being so great in the most congested districts that all the emergency ambulances were out.

There was one case on the east side in which a quick search for a restorative almost lead to death. Mary Heckman, 13, of 604 East Sixteenth Street, had been suffering with the heat since the beginning of the hot spell. Yesterday afternoon she became suddenly faint and with her remaining strength rushed to a chest where medicines are kept and hastily drained a part of the liquid in the nearest bottle. It was carbolic acid. Dr. Donelly of Bellevue Hospital arrived and took her to the hospital. It is believed that she will recover.

Edward McDonald, 26, living at the foot of West 108th Street with his brother John, under the influence of liquor and heat, tried to kill his brother early in the morning with a pistol. He had been drinking for several days and became incensed when his brother told him to stop drinking. Levelling a revolver point blank at the brother, he fired. The shot went wild, fortunately. The man was locked up and later held without bail by Magistrate Kernochan in the West Side Court. He is charged with attempted murder.

John Kiernan, a patrolman, attached to the East 126th Street Police Station, who has patrolled through many seasons, did patrol duty in Mount Morris Park yesterday morning during the celebration held there. He had just completed his tour and was on the steps of the police station when he was overcome by the heat, falling unconscious to the sidewalk. He was taken to Harlem Hospital.

Two persons went insane from the heat. They were Victor Morell, 54 years old, of 347 East Ninth Street, Brooklyn, and Jennie Davis, 20 years, of 55 Eldridge Street, Rockaway Beach. Morell was found at Lawrence Street and Coney Island Avenue butting his head against a trolley pole. He was removed to the Kings County Hospital by Ambulance Surgeon Duff. The woman was noticed acting queerly and attracting a great deal of attention at Hammels Station, Rockaway Beach. She was removed to the Kings County Hospital.

Seekers for Relief.

Wherever people congregated there was talk of the weather. Groups seeking refreshment at the soda fountains could be heard boasting about the recorded temperatures they saw on such and such thermometers, and many made light of the relatively low figures given out by the Weather Bureau. These official thermometers are 440 feet above sea level and are incased in hutlike inclosures. Any breezes which happen to be playing about at that altitude strike the thermometer house, of course, but do not come within two feet of the instruments themselves. The conditions for taking temperature are the same in all of the United States Weather Bureau offices, and the complete list of temperatures from all parts of the country, therefore, furnishes an accurate average of conditions, even though the street readings are not taken account of.

Many thousands of persons went to the beaches to seek relief from the heat. It is estimated that half a million persons bathed at Coney Island, Brighton, and Manhattan Beaches yesterday.

About 30,000 persons slept on the beach at Coney Island last night, as on Monday night. Capt. Murphy and twenty-five patrolmen of the Coney Island Police Station patrolled the beaches throughout the night.

Staten Island beaches accommodated 200,000 during the day. Everywhere the sand was blistering hot, however, and immersion was practically the only balm.

Louis Ast, 24, of 149 Ridge Street, Manhattan, went to Coney Island early in the morning to seek relief on the bathing beach. He had been in the water only a short time when he felt faint, falling at the water's edge. An ambulance from Coney Island Hospital took him away. His case was not serious, and he was dismissed in the afternoon. He went again to the beach to see where he had been overcome. When he reached the spot he again grew faint and fell to the ground a second time. He was again taken to the hospital, this time in a serious condition.

LIST OF HEAT VICTIMS.

Nineteen Died in Manhattan and Nine in Brooklyn.

The number of deaths due to heat in New York up to midnight was 27. Of this number 19 died in Manhattan and the Bronx and 9 in Brooklyn. No deaths were reported by the police from Queens. Two persons were driven insane by the heat in Brooklyn.

DEATHS IN MANHATTAN AND BRONX.

BEEDE, FRANK, 87, clerk, of 319 West Sixteenth Street; overcome at his home and died while being attended by Dr. Howard of New York Hospital.

DONNELLY, WILLIAM, 38, longshoreman, of 103 North Moore Street; overcome at his home and taken to Bellevue Hospital, where he died later.

Dispute Over Fare, a Free Fight, Surgeons, and Cells Follow.

When William Drew, father of a numerous family, invited all to go along for a trolley ride, last night, several visiting sons-in-law and daughters-in-law went along, too. As the Drews and guests trooped aboard a Flushing Avenue car near the Brooklyn and Queens line they formed about half of its passenger capacity of fifty persons.

Various other Queens County residents completed the car's carrying capacity, but long before the ride was over the Drews had the car all to themselves. A little later in the evening they had a section of the Long Island City Station house, also especially set aside for them, except the women, who were taken to Greenpoint because the accommodations there were better.

A fight, in which one motorman, one conductor, one trolley car inspector, one policeman, six detectives, William Drew, Margaret Drew, Jeremiah Drew, William Drew, Jr., Patrick Drew, and Frances Drew participated, ended the evening's outing. It had its beginning in a dispute about fares, and before it was over the motorman's controller handle, the switch iron, a section of a bell cord, and a spare broom had all been brought into play.

Two surgeons had to spend an hour with the patients on both sides before they were fit for jail cells, and an ambulance instead of a patrol wagon had to be requisitioned to carry two of the disputants to the police station.

The dispute over fares was between William Drew and Conductor Mooney, who declared that Drew had handed him two fares short. Drew was willing to pay again, to end the controversy, but Mrs. Drew came to his assistance with the declaration that that would never, never do. The conductor summoned the company's inspector as the car drew into Woodside, and the father paid the inspector the two extra fares. Then Mrs. Drew flew at the inspector, gathering a fair hold in his hair, and raining blows with her free hand upon his neck and shoulders.

William Drew, Jr., got the controller handle and was ready for policeman J. C. O'Connor when he arrived. Six detectives who responded to his whistle had others of the Drews waiting to receive them, and the affair became a general engagement. Policeman O'Connor and the elder Drew fared worse than the others. All those engaged will be in court this morning to tell how it happened.

KILLS FIANCEE ACCIDENTALLY

Special to The New York Times.

KEYPORT, N. J., July 4.—A pistol accidentally exploded in the hands of Frank Cook in his mother's home here this afternoon and the bullet he did not know was in the barrel pierced the heart of his fiancée, Miss Anna Sitzsinger, 20 years old, of New York.

Miss Sitzsinger was the guest over the holidays of Cook's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Cook, at her home in Pine Street. The accident occurred after a jolly dinner, at which Cook and his fiancée had discussed the recklessness of Fourth of July celebrators.

CITY NOT YET FREE OF 4TH ACCIDENTS

Fewer This Year, but a Long List Still of Casualties Due to Reckless Pistol Shooting.

MURDER TO START THE DAY

Janitor Shoots Child and Father Because the Little One Fired a Cracker—Five Hurt by One Bullet.

According to the hospital surgeons at various large institution of this city last night the number of accidents was small compared with previous Fourth of July records. Nevertheless, the number was formidable and included many children. A larger percentage of accidents than usual owed their origin to the use of revolvers, loaded with ball cartridges. A stray bullet struck five persons last night on the steps of the house at 212 and 214 East Eighty-first Street. Two of the victims were women, one was a child, and the other two were men, one of them 75 years old.

Following the discharge of fireworks by 3-year-old Louis De Lamo at 253 North Eighth Street, Williamsburg, Joseph Vitale, the 60-year-old janitor, discharged a revolver and killed the boy's father, Michael, and fatally wounded the child and Frank Condolora, who was on the opposite side of the street. Vitale was locked up in the Bedford Avenue Station, charged with murder.

Alexander Mutterholzer, 16 years old, of 434 East Fifth Street, was arraigned before Magistrate House in Essex Market charged with having discharged a pistol in Seventh Street, near Avenue A. Magistrate House, after finding that the gun contained only blank cartridges, discharged the boy and confiscated the pistol. He said he was in favor of a safe and sane Fourth, but had no desire to make a criminal of the boy by punishing him.

One of the victims, Joseph Keeting, an eleven-year-old boy, died from a revolver shot. He was the only son of Mrs. Minnie Keating, who lost her husband, Jeremiah, by death two weeks ago. The little fellow died from a shot fired by one of two boys who were shooting salutes will ball catridges.

Little Joe was playing in a large rock-filled vacant lot in the rear of his home, 575 Roberts Avenue, the Bronx, with a score of boys of his own age, when two older boys came along Trinity Avenue, shooting in the air. Walter Gross, one of the little fellows, high upon a rock pile shouted to his companions to hide themselves behind rocks, and all but little Joe found protection. He was struck in the left lung. He ran 200 yards to his home and fell dead on his mother's door step.

Lydia Greeves, the two year old daughter of Horace Greeves, of Carlton Avenue, Rockaway Beach, had both of her little legs peppered with bird shot from her papa's gun yesterday. Her father was cleaning the gun preparatory to putting it away when it was accidentally discharged. The little girl was taken to the Rockaway Beach Hospital, where it was said that her condition is serious.

Edna May Huitt, a 9-year-old schoolgirl, who lives at 233 West Eighteenth Street, was shot in the right leg yesterday at Seventeenth Street and Seventh Avenue. Nichlosa Montana of College Point, L. I., who was celebrating the Fourth by firing ball cartridges, was arrested, and the little girl was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

John Maloney, 32 years old, the owner of the Continental Hotel, Eighth Avenue and Fifty-first Street, was shot in the side and painfully wounded by a blank cartridge. Tony Castilliono, 28 years old, of 161 West Fifty-seventh Street, who discharged the revolver, was arrested.

Henriette Buckley, 24 years old, of 302 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, was shot in the head and received a slight scalp wound aboard the steamer Albion off Glen Island.

At a late hour fifteen cases of Fourth of July accidents were reported from the emergency ward of Roosevelt Hospital, eight for pistol, gunshot, or blank-cartridge wounds and seven for powder burns.

Eugene Kneit, a driver of 1,936 Second Avenue, was shot by a ball cartridge. The shot struck Kneit in the left leg and he was taken to the Reception Hospital. His assailant is not known. Other persons injured by bullets from firearms during the day were:

SAFE AND SANE THE NATION OVER

CITY HALL HAS A BIRTHDAY

Its 100 Years Observed and a Brighter Future Assured for It—Great Crowds Seek the Pleasure Resorts.

The celebration of Independence Day throughout the country this year showed that the "safe and sane" idea is growing. Accidents were few and far between and there was a marked return toward the old idea of what a Fourth of July observance should be.

Of course, there was the usual rush to the country, made all the greater by the excessive heat, and every amusement resort was full to overflowing, but for those who stayed at home the day was less a mere carnival of noise than in recent years, and public officials and private citizens united in trying to bring out all that the Declaration of Independence implied.

As compared with 24 killed and 1,294 injured on July 4, 1910, and 32 killed and 1,051 injured on July 4, 1900, over the entire country, yesterday's record, from reports available last night, showed about 20 killed. The fire loss, which was $317,815 in 1910 and $533,615 in 1909, also was cut down considerably. In the 24 hours ended at midnight there were 23 street-box alarms and 9 still alarms in this city, as against 80 street-box alarms and 37 still alarms in 1908 and 33 street-box alarms and 21 still alarms.

In this city there were four deaths directly traceable to the holiday, whereas last year there were none, and in 1909 only one. Of these four fatalities two were due to a fight arising over the possession of some fireworks. A boy was killed by the careless use of a revolver loaded with ball cartridges and a girl died of burns through her dress catching fire from fireworks.

In spite of these occurrences it was none the less remarked throughout the city that there seemed a great falling off in the amount of gunpowder let off in the streets, and the day passed off with welcome quietude. Fireworks were a good deal harder to come by this year through the strict enforcement of the municipal regulations, and the knowledge that in all parts of the city fine displays were to be given at night at the public expense persuaded many private persons to dispense with their own purchases.

Official exercises in all five boroughs took the place of the familiar racket. The principal gathering was at the City Hall, and it struck the keynote of all this year's principal celebrations. It brought out as its chief feature the diverse elements that make up the great American people and the historic principles that are molding them into one Nation.

At the City Hall this was symbolized by a remarkable parade of all nations. It was well worth seeing from a spectacular point of view, especially the Chinese portion of the procession, and it was also inspiring in the devotion the newcomers displayed to the Constitutiton of the land of their adoption.

But not less interesting were the sectional gatherings in different parts of the city. In Washington Square French and Italian Americans joined with their native brethren to honor the flag. In Mulberry Square the Italians met and were addressed by Gen. Garibaldi, fresh from fighting for Mexican liberty. In Seward and Hamilton Fish Parks the Hebrews and in Tompkins Square the Hungarians met with the same purpose in view. To all of them the Declaration of Independence was read in their native tongues and was received with profound respect.

In the afternoon and evening the same idea of a general civic celebration was carried out by band concerts in the parks and on the recreation piers and by displays of fireworks arranged by the Aldermanic Committee in the public places. It happened this year that the Independence Day celebration coincided with the centenary of the City Hall. On Aug. 12, 1811, the Common Council of the city met for the first time in the City Hall in the Mayor's reception room, and it was decided to observe that event yesterday. Consequently before the formal Fourth of July exercises in City Hall Park there was a gathering in the hall itself and a special meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

It was interesting in the memories it aroused of the history of the city, and it brought forth two announcements of importance in themselves. Borough President McAneny announced that the city would continue the restoration of the City Hall, already begun by Mrs. Russell Sage, and the Aldermen passed a resolution condemning any further encroachments on City Hall Park and suggesting that it be restored to its former dimensions.

In the evening the City Hall itself and the park were illuminated, and crowds gathered to see the graceful outlines of the famous building outlined in fire. Meanwhile all day long every pleasure resort was crowded to the utmost, and as the mass of people seemed all to wish to return home together, the transportation companies found themselves as usual taxed to the uttermost.

CITY HALL CENTENARY.

Picturesque Parade of Nations Follows Anniversary Observance.

By 9 o'clock the Mayor's reception room, the first part of the City Hall to be actually used in municipal business, was crowded to the doors. Round the walls and in the window recesses sat men and women, descended from the City Fathers of a century ago. Twenty or thirty of the present Aldermen, led by Alderman Frank Dowling, Democratic leader of the board, were accommodated on camp chairs or were forced to stand. Members of patriotic societies, exempt firemen in their red shirts, and city officials gave Lieut. Kennel a hard task to clear a way for Mayor Gaynor to his seat.

Dr. George F. Kunz, President of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society and Chairman of the subcommittee in charge of this particular celebration, called the meeting to order, and the Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossmann uttered an eloquent invocation. Mayor Gaynor was called on, and after he had apologized for a difficulty in speaking, said in part:

"This commemoration is the end of one hundred years since the opening of the Common Council of this city, I think, in this very room. One hundred years in the life of a city and in the life of a nation and in God's great time is a trifle. We think we are now a settled nation because we are now over 100 years old, but as a matter of fact that is a very short time.

"In looking over this programme I see that the names of the Mayor and the Common Council are given, and in reading it I find only Anglo-Saxons and Dutch names, which shows what the population of the city was at that time. De Witt Clinton was Mayor, and all through the list we find names of that kind, except I see here the name of John Moran, which seems to show that there were a few Irishmen around at that time. But since then all the peoples of the earth have come here in great numbers, this being the gateway to the Nation, and they have distributed themselves all over the country; but many lingered here."

Schools Bringing Harmony.

The Mayor went on to say that the great problem was the possibility of making all these one harmonious people.

"We certainly cannot," he declared, "unless we do it through the common schools. There they have the same teachers, the same books, and learn the same songs, and I have always said that the schools would make us all a unit. For my part it seems to be now that the children of all nationalities in the schools come out with a different kind of face to their forefathers. The noses of some are a little shorter and of others are a little longer, and the high cheek bones go down a little in others, and an American face is even now coming out of the common schools, because the mind, you know, does affect the body beyond any doubt whatever, whether in sickness or in health, and in that way we are getting also a uniform mind."

The Mayor spoke of the fear of some men that with uniformity of ideas despotism would gradually creep in. He pointed out that in the laws the people set limits on those elected to office.

"Some people," he went on, "are now beginning to talk about a strong government, and urging those in high office to be above the law and to do things the law does not prescribe. We want to put our foot and our fist absolutely down on that, because that is the entering point of despotism the world over. When you make your laws and put a good man in office, or a man who thinks he is awfully good, you do not care how good he is or how good he thinks he is—you do not want him to go doing things that you have not prescribed by your laws. You want him to stop right there. Maybe he is not as good as he thinks he is, and at all events if he is awfully good by going outside the law he will set only a bad example for his bad successor when he comes along, and he is sure to come sooner or later."

President Mitchel of the Aldermen, after announcing that on Aug. 12, 1811, the Board met for the first time in this Mayor's Reception Room, with a most business-like bang of his gavel bade the Alderman present come to order. The Clerk in tones that sounded strangely familiar in such circumstances began to sing off the roll and then with what seemed like a slight stretch of his conscience announced that a quorum was present.

What They Did in 1811.

The minutes of a meeting of July 1, 1811, were read by Philip Baer, City Librarian. At this meeting the Controller and the Street Commissioner were directed to move the furniture of the Common Council to the new City Hall. Extracts from the meeting of Aug. 12, 1811, the first actually held in the present building, followed. From these it appeared that on that day the Common Council authorized Mayor De Witt Clinton to issue warrants to the extent of $4,881.82, some of the items being:

To John Mandison, donation for extinguishing the fire at the Jail on the 19th of May last, $40; to Saltus Son & Co., cordage for signal poles, $19.90; to James Richardson, for cleaning wells in the First and Fourth Wards and Hell Gate Ferry, $41.87; to William Torrey, chairman of the Lamp Committee, for payment of lamplighters, $500.

Other sums were paid for the improvement or grading of Peck Slip, Stone, Orchard, and Thompson Streets, and the City Council adjourned comfortable in the knowledge that the city still had $23.25 in its Treasury.

Then a commemorative resolution was put to the Aldermen, in which the history of the City Hall was alluded to and a debt of gratitude acklowledged to the great men who had made the city the metropolis of the Nations and the second city of the world. Therefore, it was further resolved:

> That in the opinion of this Board of Aldermen this City Hall should be preserved for future generations, unmarred in its natural beauty, to be a civic monument to the prized traditions which cluster around the park and building, and to symbolize by its stability in the midst of the transient material changes of the surrounding city the vital thread which connects the present with the past and future generations; and
> That it is the further opinion of this Board that, so far as practicable, the ancient area of this historic park, except the site of the City Hall, should be reclaimed rather than further encroached upon, not only for the physical welfare of the neighborhood, but also that the City Hall, as the seat of government and the civic centre of the metropolis, may have a dignified and suitable environment.

Praise for the City Hall.

With another tap of President Mitchel's gavel the board stood adjourned, and Grosvenor Atterbury, architect of the restoration of the City Hall, which was begun through the gift of Mrs. Russell Sage, delivered an appreciation of its architectural beauties. He referred particularly to the care which the City Councilmen of 100 years ago displayed to place the City Hall in an appropriate setting, with its cupola in line with that of the Almshouse to the north and "the mugs in front" in range with Murray Street. Mr. Atterbury quoted Henry James's phrase, the "divine little structure," and Richard Grant White's opinion that the City Hall ranks among the three or four finest examples of Colonial architecture extant. Then he added what ex-Mayor McClellan said:

"Our fellow-citizen sits him down to sleep a Summer's day on a bench in the City Hall Park. If he awakes facing the north you know that he will slouch away a better man for having looked upon that little gem of the Colonial, our City Hall, but if he awakes facing the south, and gazes upon the Post Office, can you blame him if he goes away with homicide in his heart."

Edward Hagaman Hall, Secretary of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, then read a poem written by Arthur Guiterman. It is, in part:

Ere Cabot's prow was Westward turned,
 Before old Hudson came,
Upon this island acre burned
 The Redman's council-flame.

And here the settler's cattle grazed
 Along the bowered track,
And here his bell-mouthed musket blazed
 And drove the savage back.

But yonder rose the gallows-tree,
 Where, calm and fearless-eyed,
Our first sad pledge to Liberty,
 Great-hearted Leisler died.

John Quincy Adams, Secretary of the Municipal Art Society, spoke of the 175 historic portraits in the City Hall, which are interesting not only as works of art and as preserving the features of the Mayors and other personages, but also in their backgrounds. These often show us authentic scenes of the past. Thus one of the Washington portraits depicts Broadway as it was immediately after the evacuation, with King George's pedestal still on Bowling Green, while the other has a representation of the battle of Dorchester Heights.

Edward S. Wilde, grandson-in-law of John McComb, architect of the City Hall, closed the exercises with a brief historical review of the past and present City Halls of New York, and gave these figures as showing the cost of the present structure. From 1802 to Dec. 1, 1812, $498,634.31 was expended, of which $3,803.87 was used to provide the furniture for the Council room. Mr. McComb himself only received $5 a day for his services and the difficulties surmounted were great, as all the marble had to be hauled from the Berkshires by ox team and bridges had to be built for the passage of the loads.

Folk of the Nations Gather.

Meanwhile, in the green on the west side of the Hall a gaudy assemblage had been collecting. Even as the Mayor was speaking he had been interrupted by the fifes and drums of the Sons of the Revolution as they arrived at the City Hall. But they were entirely eclipsed by the marvelous hues of the representatives of the Chinese, Greek, Hungarian, Swiss, and other nationalities who were to show in a parade organized by ex-Controller Metz, the diverse elements of which the United States of to-day is built up.

Mayor Gaynor, Mgr. Lavelle, Archdeacon Nelson, and other special guests were escorted from the City Hall to their places on the reviewing stand by members of patriotic societies, garbed in the uniforms of the Continental Army, which had come down to them from their ancestors. On their right hand side were stationed the German singing societies, which later rendered a hymn to Liberty and America to an air which has been suggested as a substitute for that of the British National anthem. Facing them on the stand erected in front of the City Hall was a representation of what Italy has accomplished for the world in a dummy wireless telegraph outfit.

The parade of nations was led off by a party of North American Indians. Braves marched along in all the finery of feathered headpieces and buffalo robes, and they were attended by squaws and papooses with beaded moccasins and painted faces. To them succeeded the Sons of the Revolution to the sound of the fife and drum. One of the banners they bore was simply of red and white stripes. Another had the British union combined with the stripes, and a third showed the buff, blue and white of the Continental Army.

The Exempt Firemen in red shirts and buff overcoats spoke of the times when Boss Tweed and Richard Croker won their way to political prominence by way of the old volunteer fire companies, and then began the series of newcomers from all parts of the earth. San Domingo was represented by a group of men and women in ordinary attire, but the Norwegians had donned the holiday dress of their land. The girls marched bare-headed, some with hair streaming down their backs. Tight-fitting scarlet bodices and white aprons set off their trim figures, and their black skirts cleared the ground by a good six inches.

The Finlanders and the Irish followed, but were content with every-day apparel, and then came the Tyroleans, who wore the short velvet jackets, the tight-fitting knee breeches, and the feathered felt hats so familiar in the pictures of these mountaineers. The Italians in part marched in the garb of gondoliers in the brightest of colors, while their women folk wore white linen, folded flat on their heads and hanging down their backs.

The rear of this detachment was brought up by a squad of Garibaldi veterans, who marched proudly in their red shirts. Gen. Joseph Garibaldi, their hero's nephew, was with them.

Applause for the Greeks.

When the Greeks appeared a murmur of applause went along the stands. They represented both the Greeks of classical and of modern times. Athens passed in shining helmet with spear and target, and she was attended by men in the flowing white robes of antiquity, their arms laden with flowers. Then came a stalwart chieftain, his white dress half hidden by a red velvet cloak heavily embroidered with gold, who led the modern Greeks, each in the curious white kilts that still linger in the mountains of the Peloponnese. Still more modern were a squad of cadets in khaki uniforms that showed how this ancient race had listened to the teachings of the West.

The Swiss were the next in line, one wearing the dress of a burgher of the Middle Ages, and then came the largest and most spectacular company of all the parade, the Chinese. At their head came Sam Ping Lee in the robes of a mandarin with the red button on his circular cap, showing him to be a notable of the Flowery Kingdom. With him were several merchants from Chinatown in tall hats and frock coats, perspiring to show how their race had become Americanized.

Then followed a long array of brightly garbed men and women. Every color of the rainbow found a place in their costumes, but they preferred in every instance the less gaudy shades. They marched to the sound of the tom tom, and bore amid them great triangular flags with marvelous dragons embroidered on them. Here and there riding astride were women in curious linen trousers ending in bright borders. From their coiffures of many hued balls to their slippers every inch of their costumes was brave with embroidery or tinsel, and their painted faces and carefully outlined eyebrows only added to the strangeness of their appearance.

To add special honor to the occasion the Merchants' Association of Chinatown had imported a dragon. It typified every good wish to the day, and as it was borne along with forty-five men supporting its great body it had a sinuous movement as though it were alive, and the two men with poles who ran before it and made lunges at its quivering tongue seemed really to be fighting it.

A smaller dragon followed, and then came the Hip Sing Tongs in the uniforms of the old-time Chinese soldiers. They wore the yellow conical hats of coolies and black blouses with large white circles on the backs inscribed with Chinese characters. Every man bore a spear or a tripod of curious shape in his left hand, and in his right a little black fan Behind them came a string of taxicabs with merchants, some in Chinese, some in American dress.

The Japanese were represented by the Waseda Baseball team and the Hebrews by a contingent from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, who swung by in splendid style to the tune of "John Brown's Body" from their band. The Hungarians came next with every variety of the shako and jackets associated with hussars, and the procession was closed by a group symbolizing the victory of peace. Young girls dressed in white with long trumpets made in lily form halted before Mayor Gaynor, and a small detachment of cadets marched up and handed over to them their rifles in return for banners with peace mottos.

Speeches, Song, and Poetry.

Then the formal programme began. Mgr. Lavelle pronounced an invocation and Mayor Gaynor begged to be excused from a speech. He merely pointed out that it remained to Americans of this day and generation to continue the amalgamation and unification of the people represented by the procession through the process of education through the schools.

The United German Singers rendered Arthur Farwell's Hym to Liberty and then Borough President McAneny spoke briefly, announcing that the city would continue forthwith the work of Mrs. Russell Sage in restoring the City Hall. The money would be appropriated from unexpended balances.

After Stretz's Military Band had played "The Star-Spangled Banner," and President Mitchel of the Aldermen had spoken briefly and the singing of Giacomo Quintano's new setting of "America," Edwin Markham read an original poem inspired by the fact that Washington had heard the Declaration of Independence read and Lafayette had taken farewell to America in City Hall Park. It was in part:

Let there be prayer and praise
On these worn stones and on these trodden ways;
For all around
Is holy ground,
Ground that departed years
Have hallowed with high dreams
(Freedom's immortal themes)
Made sacred, too, with fall of noble tears.

Let there be prayer and praise,
Appeared our Washington,
(Time had no nobler son!)
And here beneath these very skies he heard
From the new page God's last oracular Word—
The word forever old, forever young—
The cry, "Let freedom be
On land, on sea!"
It was the great word that had sounded on
From far Thermopylae and Marathon.

And here once stood the gallant Lafayette,
That soldier who put Freedom in his debt—
Our friend and God's, that high-born son of France
Who joined us in that dark and desperate chance—
Joined with our barefoot band
To build the hope of man in this new land.
Here stood that lofty soul and said Good-bye,
And left to us immortal memory.

Once more the United German Singers gave several numbers, and then Controller Prendergast spoke, thanking the Mayor for his initiative in thus reviving the proper observance of Independence Day, and declaring that the lesson to be drawn from the Parade of Nations was that never should the bars be raised against immigration.

With a benediction pronounced by Archdeacon Nelson the official ceremony came to an end, and the crowd, as it dispersed, was entertained by the Police Department Band.

DEMOCRACY'S HOPES GREET TAMMANY

A MESSAGE FROM CONGRESS

Party in House United to Lift Unjust Burdens from the People, Declares Underwood—Long Talk by Graham.

In accordance with an ancient custom that dates back to the eighteenth century the Society of Tamamny met yesterday morning in the Wigwam to hear the reading of the Declaration of Independence, which was delivered this year by Joseph Johnson, Jr., Waldo's successor as Fire Commissioner. Time was when these Independence Day celebrations would draw such crowds as would overflow the hall, but yesterday there was room to spare, particularly in the balcony, although the main floor was all but filled with a coatless, sweltering audience. One man conservatively estimated the temperature in the room at 906 degrees Fahrenheit.

Several Democrats of prominence sat on the platform, and many others sent messages to be read aloud. Representative Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, gave a report of his party in the House, and gave expression to his belief of the need of compact political organization, although confessing that he felt as if he were bringing coals to Newcastle. Charles F. Murphy sat on the platform next to Mr. Underwood, fanning himself with an almost imperceptible motion, except when the applause was booming, at which times Mr. Murphy's emotions ran away with him to the extent of plying his fan with vigor.

Messages were read from Gov. Dix of New York, Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Gov. Harmon of Ohio, and William Jennings Bryan. Each name was cordially applauded from the floor, but it was Mr. Bryan's that elicited the greatest noise. Gov. Dix took occasion to speak with approval of his own administration. He also spoke well of the Tammany Society. He wrote:

"Originating in a purpose to combat the aristocratic idea which at its birth sought to dominate and control the destinies of the Republic, for more than a century and a quarter the Columbian Order has unfalteringly stood for the fundamental Democratic principles of government. Its history is an unbroken chapter of championship of the cause of the people in the unceasing conflict with privilege.

"Democrats of the State and Nation have every reason to face the future with confidence and courage. At Washington a Democratic House of Representatives is struggling manfully for a downward revision of the tariff. In Albany a Democratic Legislature and a Democratic State administration are exposing and ending Republican extravagance and corruption, and establishing just and uniform laws, and honesty, economy, and efficiency as the true principles of State government."

Gov. Wilson wrote that he realized the importance of the invitation, and that he was "most unaffectedly sorry" that engagements at Ocean Grove prevented his acceptance.

"It would cause much disappointed feeling on the part of my good constituents in this State if I were in any way to ignore or curtail that appointment," he said.

"As in Jefferson's time," wrote Mr. Bryan, "so now, the courts are the last stronghold to yield to the demands of the people for reform, but abuse of power such as was witnessed when the Supreme Court virtually nullified the criminal clause of the Sherman anti-trust law—such an abuse of power will do more than anything else to stir the people to insist upon effective legislation against the trusts.

"Indications point to success in 1912," he concluded, "if the party rejects the overtures of Wall Street."

"To the Society of Tammany: Born in the cradle of American independence, and baptized in the immortal principles advocated by the founders of the Democratic Party, I can say without expectation of contradiction that party organization is a political necessity, and must be maintained for the advancement of the Nation. To-day we have in the National House of Representatives as thorough and as perfect an organization of the Democratic members as was ever witnessed in the history of our Congress. They are not organized for public plunder, but to advance the great principles of the Democratic Party. They are not organized to loot the public Treasury, but to lift from the backs of the American people some of the unjust burdens of taxation placed there by decades of misrule under Republican administration."

After enumerating several things accomplished by the Democratic majority he said:

"We came to the rescue of the President of the United States, discredited by his own party, in his efforts to bring about freer trade relations with the Dominion of Canada. By our organization we have sent the Canadian pact to the Senate, where it will be passed before this session of Congress adjourns."

There were long speeches also by Congressmen Clayton of Alabama and Graham of Illinois. It was Mr. Graham who made the good old-fashioned Fourth of July oration, thundering out the story of liberty from the invention of gunpowder to the crushing of the alien and sedition laws, touching on many points in American history, comparing Hamilton and Jefferson, and winding up with a strong appeal for the maintenance of local self-government. And with these words (on the seventeenth page of his typewritten manuscript) he ended:

"And as the rainbow, which it almost rivals in beauty, is set in the heavens as a sign of God's power and as a promise to man that the earth shall not be again destroyed by a deluge, so may Old Glory continue to wave in the breeze as a sign of the perpetuity of the Republic and a promise to men that liberty shall not perish from the earth."

Manuel L. Quezon, Resident Commissioner of the Philippine Islands, made a long appeal for the independence of his native islanders.

"Is it," he asked, "the irony of fate that I should be asked to speak to you on Independence Day?

"No nation can long endure having at the same time two opposite governmental institutions—one at home and another abroad," he said in closing. "Sooner or later one system will prevail over the other. You will either bring to your home the autocratic government which you have instituted in the Philippines or you will have to apply to those islands the beneficent theories which govern you at home. You cannot, without being untrue to yourselves, continue to celebrate, year after year, the Declaration of Independence, thus reaffirming its doctrines, and at the same time pursue a policy in the Philippines which is in flagrant contradiction with these doctrines. You have either to confess that your fathers were wrong when they revolted against England and King George was right, or at once withdraw your authority over my country."

CELEBRATE IN THREE TONGUES.

A celebration, planned for Italians, French, and Americans, was attended by a good sized crowd in Washington Square Park. A stand had been erected in the shady northwest corner of the park and around it floated many American flags with here and there the French tricolor and the Italian standard. William A. Prendergast, City Controller, was the principal speaker. Other speakers were Henry H. Curran, Chairman of the Committee of 500 who arranged the celebration; Prof. A. Bollaert, who read his French translation of the Declaration of Independence; Frederick C. Tanner, who read the Declaration in English; and Albert Pecorini, author of a book on America for Italians, who spoke in Italian on "Washington and Garibaldi."

There was band music and the New York Banks' Glee Club was led in song by H. R. Humphries.

Among those on the platform were Gen. Nelson H. Henry, Surveyor of the Port; Robert Forrest, Jonathan H. Whipple, Dr. Edward L. Partridge, Dr. John W. Brannan, M. Bailly, Commander of the Rochambeau Grenadiers; Frank A. Nankivell and David W. Humphrey, painters; Victor Salvatore, a sculptor, and Elizabeth Anna Semple, a writer. Col. Giuseppe Garibaldi, recently prominent in the Mexican revolution, was expected, but did not appear.

Not a bomb was heard and not a pistol shot in Washington Square yesterday. A fire engine was the only diverting incident that took away the attention of the audience from the long programme. Hence the celebration is regarded by the committee as a great success.

Controller Prendergast spoke in favor of free interpretation of the immigration laws. He was cheered when he declared that America's door should be open to every God-fearing man. He declared that the war of independence was less a matter of revolution than of evolution and that the American colonies gained their freedom because they were and by right ought to be free and independent.

Albert Pecorini spoke to the Italians in their own tongue. He talked on Washington and Garibaldi, and if his speech was lost to most of the American audience, the Italians found in it much to applaud.

Frederick C. Tanner, former Assistant Attorney General, read the Declaration of Independence and declared that the document, teaching the equality of men before the law, was still a living force in American affairs.

At the close of the exercises the Garibaldi Society arrived in the square and placed flowers upon the Garibaldi statue which stands near the centre of the park.

AT OLD FORT WASHINGTON.

For the first time yesterday the Fourth of July was officially celebrated at Fort Washington, one of the notable battlefields of this part of the country. It was here on Nov. 16, 1776, that a small force of Continentals under command of Washington fought off the Hessians, and for three days thereafter held the redoubt against tremendous odds.

The exercises were under the auspices of the Washington Heights Men's Club, and the procession met at its headquarters. Frederick A. Morny called the meeting to order, and after the invocation had been made by the Rev. Dr. J. J. Hervey of the United Presbyterian Church a bugle sounded, and with rattle of limbers and grinding of wheels the Second Battery, N. Y. N. G., came trotting through the woods in command of Lieut. J. J. Stevens. Then Mrs. Mary A. Bordenhammer, 86 years of age, one of the oldest inhabitants of Washington Heights and a member of the original Daughters of the Revolution, walked to the flagstaff, and with the aid of Boy Scouts raised the National colors.

SUFFRAGISTS PARADE IN STAGE COACHES

Decorate Monuments of Patriots in Protest Against Denial of Liberty Now.

TALK TO STREET CROWDS

In old-time stage coaches decorated with flags and bunting, with drivers in tall hats and Continental blue, to the notes of a horn blown by a little gentleman with cocked hat and red coat, the women of 1911 yesterday celebrated the spirit of 1776. It was the first official Fourth of July celebration by the woman suffragists.

They were the women of the Woman Suffrage Party expressing their indignation against what they call the undemocratic and unworthy treatment they have received from members of the State Legislature, and they made speeches at various points and decorated the monuments of the men who fought for freedom in the early days, and who, they said, would have fought for their cause to-day.

The stage coaches, followed by automobiles, left the Metropolitan Life Building at noon and proceeded up Fourth Avenue to Twenty-sixth Street, through Twenty-sixth and down Fifth Avenue. The first stop for speeches was made at the corner of Thirteenth Street. One of the automobiles held large wreaths and small silk flags, and while the first speeches were in progress the car made a side trip to Union Square, and Mrs. Howard Russell Griffith placed wreaths on the iron fence around the monument of Lincoln, at the base of the statue of Lafayette, and on the iron railing around the statue of Washington.

The second stop was at Bleecker Street and West Broadway, while the Garibaldi statue in Washington Square was decorated, and the last stop at Murray Street and Broadway, while a wreath was laid on the statue of Nathan Hale in City Hall Park.

Only National flags were carried, the suffrage color of yellow being shown only in two big placards bearing in black letters the words: "Spirit of 1776" and "Democracy Must Be Lived." Many patriotic societies were represented by their individual members among the women taking part in the demonstration, such as the Colonial Dames, the Daughters of the Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, Society of Patriots and Founders, and Daughters of the Mayflower.

The meeting at Thirteenth Street was the quietest. At Bleecker Street and West Broadway a saloon near the corner sent out the nucleus of the audience, fifteen or twenty men. Mrs. William Warren Penfield told of Senator Grady's recent remarks in the Senate that the women watchers "went to the polls as they would go to a dog show—to admire the different animals."

"Ignoring the fact," said Mrs. Penfield, "that many of these watchers described by Senator Grady were able lawyers and experts on our election laws, and standing simply for the great principles of liberty and equality to which this day has been consecrated for 135 years, in the name of justice and in the name of decency, we protest against the use of such gross and contemptible language being applied on the floor of the New York State Senate to women who perform a civic duty from motives of patriotism."

"It's all right," said one of the men in the audience to a neighboring suffragist. "If you want anything you've got to fight for it. That is what we have had to do. Some women are fit to vote and some are not, but it's just the same with the men—it is all right for some and for some it isn't."

At each stopping place following the addresses the Declaration of Independence was read, Miss Jeannette Rankin, the color bearer, with the flag, standing beside the rostrum, which was the front part of one of the automobiles.

The stage coaches, drawn each by four horses, were the most picturesque part of the procession, but the passengers who had the honor of riding in them had rather too much of a shaking up to be comfortable on a hot day. Mrs. Penfield, speaking of the coaches, in her address said:

"Some of us have come here in stage coaches, the public vehicle of the historic days of the American Revolution. We visualize for you the difference between coach and motor car. It is as if we placed side by side the handloom and the modern factory. Coach and handloom are discarded. Let us remember that men and women of to-day who would be good citizens and helpful members of society cannot use the methods that were effective in the days of the handloom and the stage coach. We are living in the day of the motor car and the biplane."

Among those taking part in the demonstration were Mrs. Martha Wentworth Suffern, Miss Edith M. Whitmore, Mrs. Augusta C. Hughston, Miss Ida Kraft, Dr. Sarah McNutt, Mrs. Nettie Graham, and Mrs. Katherine Santi. Adolph Major of Brooklyn brought one of the automobiles, in which were Mrs. Grace Walterbeck, Miss Emma Carr, and Miss Elizabeth Low.

Lemonade and sandwiches were served at the headquarters before the party started, and tea was served at the close at the headquarters of the Seventeenth and Nineteenth Assembly District Headquarters of the Woman Suffrage Party, 108th Street and Broadway, where there were short addresses, and again the reading of the Declaration of Independence. On the way uptown the party stopped at the new headquarters of the Fifteenth Assembly District, which is to be opened by Mrs. Sophie Kremer on July 15 with a tea and lunchroom annex.

17 BRONX CELEBRATIONS.

The celebration in the Bronx centred at the Borough Hall, where several thousand persons gathered under the Chairmanship of James L. Wells, one of the old-time residents of that borough. Sixteen other celebrations were held at points of historical interest in the Bronx.

The principal address was made by Joseph Harris Jones, President of the North Side Board of Trade, who appealed for strict adherence to the Constitution. He compared the inspiration of its authors to that of the writers of the Bible, and went on:

"We hear now a cry for the popular election of United States Senators. I believe the remedy would be worse than the disease. Since the Constitution provides a method for the selection of Senators I am not one of those who believe in tearing up that historic document to meet the whims of demagogues."

Mr. Jones also attacked the selection of John Hays Hammond as special representative of the United States to the coronation of King George.

"Why should he have been sent," he asked, "if not for his money? Why should this man who tried to disrupt the Boer Government have been so honored? It was a mistake to make such an appointment when there were many other men more worthy to represent the Nation."

"That's good Bronx patriotism," remarked Mr. Wells as Mr. Jones finished.

A salute of forty-six guns was fired by the Second Battery under Capt. Lansford S. Sherry. The Declaration of Independence was read by Richard W. Lawrence, and the Gettysburg address by Edward Nicholas Smith.

At McKinley Square the observance of the day began with the hoisting of the American flag by the Color Guard of the Morris High School and the Oliver Tilden Camp of the Sons of Veterans at 6 o'clock.

Then at 10 o'clock a children's celebration was held, and Elinor Dorn and Wallace Indenach, as Columbia and Uncle Sam, took part in historic taxleaux. Patriotic recitations by school children and a programme of music furnished by the Catholic Protectory Band and a girl orchestra from the McKinley Square School of Music followed, and a chorus of 250 boys and girls from Public Schools 2, 20, and 40, and the St. Augustine's Parochial sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

In the afternoon were exercises with addresses by Joseph P. Hennesey, Alderman A. W. Herbst, and Gen. George Lord of the New York Department G. A. R. The Declaration and the Gettysburg address were read, and United German Singers of the Bronx gave several numbers.

VERY "SANE" IN BROOKLYN.

Few Turned Out for the Official Observance of the Fourth.

In Brooklyn yesterday the Fourth was really "safe and sane." In fact, as far as the celebration arranged to take place in front of the Borough Hall, which was to be the most important feature, the committee in charge was disappointed over the lack of enthusiasm displayed.

The programme was carried out, but the small number that gathered to witness it could hardly be called an audience. The Borough Hall Building was decorated, at an expense of $850, with flags, bunting, and electric lights. But all this appeared to have been wasted for the purpose for which it was arranged.

The exercises began at 10 o'clock and lasted an hour and a half. Nearly one-half of this time was taken up in an oration by Col. T. H. Roberts. The Colonel had hard work making himself heard with the noise made by the passing elevated trains and the traffic of a dozen or more trolley lines.

Before the celebration began the small audience which filled a very small portion of the seats arranged on the steps in front of the building decided that it was much cooler in the rotunda of the building. So did the 300 United German singers, who took part in the exercises. They were all nicely seated in the shade ready for the first number of the programme when Col. James D. Bell, Chairman of the Borough Committee, arrived and ordered everybody outside in the open, and out all of them went.

Then Mr. Bell made the opening address. He was followed by Edward J. Byrne, Chief Clerk of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, who read the Declaration of Independence. Col. Roberts then delivered the oration of the day.

The United Singers gave a number of selections, among them "The Lord's Own Day," "My Old Kentucky Home," "It Is Sunday," concluding at the end of the programme with "The Star-Spangled Banner," in which the audience joined. Shannon's Twenty-third Regiment Band furnished the music. Similar exercises were also held in front of the Borough Hall in the afternoon, and in the even-

Why Women from Afar Are Sending For Our LINEN SUITS

First of all, they have heard about them from their friends who were well pleased with those they selected. In other words, women realize that our Suits are superior both in style and quality.

Now that the prices of these Suits have been lessened, their desirability has been doubled.

Quality of the linens is all that one may desire, because they were the best possible at the original higher prices. Linens were all water-shrunk.

These Suits are shapely, and will remain thus, as they were man-tailored by specialists.

We do not believe in stereotyped styles. Neither does the well-dressed woman.

Prices are lowered because sizes are broken, but there are many suits of every size at each price. For women, sizes 32 to 46. Young women, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years.

For Women—$5, $7.50, $8.50, $10, $12.50, $15, $18.50, $22.50 and $25

For Young Women—$5, $7.50, $8.50, $12 and $13.50 Third floor

MILLINERY

A Five-Dollar Bill will have magic power in the Medium-priced Salon today, as we have lowered Hats to $5 that were $8.75, $10, $12.75 and $14.75.

Not a few undesirable Hats that have been wall-flowers all through the season, but Hats that express the very latest ideas of Fashion!

The reason for the disposal of these Hats at such ridiculously small prices is because we have been making up our left-over materials and it was as easy to make them in the latest styles.

Flower-trimmed and tailored Straw Hats—also dainty lingerie chapeaux. Third floor

BATHING SUITS

Experience is a good teacher—especially if you forgot to take a Bathing Suit along yesterday. And to be on the safe side the next time it will be wise to get one this very day.

As the days go along, of course, we shall have many pretty styles, but many that are here to-day probably cannot be replaced. So it will be wise not to trust to future luck.

Women's Bathing Suits of excellent quality salt waterproof satin may be selected, at $5.95. The price is small, but the Suits are good—not made of the kind of satin that goes to pieces in a little while. Other Black Satin Bathing Suits, up to $32.50.

Taffeta Suits, $7.95 to $13.50; Mohair Suits, $2.95 to $9.75.

Sizes are complete, 32 to 44—and styles numerous.

Silk Negligees, $10

Any woman who is acquainted with dainty boudoir robes will appreciate the humbleness of this price—$10.

Before we tell about their beauty we shall explain that we are enabled to sell them at $10 because the manufacturer only had forty, so he gave them to us at lessened price—and to you, we shall do likewise.

Fine, but firm quality of China Silk, fashioned in Empire style—and kimono bodice, accordion-plaited skirt. The lingerie collar is fashioned in that charming panel effect created by Mme. Paquin—dotted Swiss, edged with plaited net. Net frills also edge the short undersleeves. Pink, lavender, light blue and white. Second floor

REED FURNITURE

So busy is the maker of this charming Summer Furniture in filling his regular orders at full prices, that it was only as a special favor that he let us have the hundred pieces or more which we place on sale this morning.

STARS AND STRIPES UNFURLED IN LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 4.—Independence Day was celebrated here quietly, yet with all due respect to the occasion. Perhaps more than in any recent year did the commercial element assert itself. Up-to-date tradesmen all over town unfurled the Stars and Stripes, and the casual American here could not help but feel flattered.

Gutter merchants also were not slow to seize the opportunity. One in the Strand was dressed in white with a small American flag stuck in his cap, and did a thriving business selling chewing gum.

Around the hotels Americans celebrated the day in the usual style, and one noticed many Britishers joining in the festivities. There were a number of private dinners given to-night at all the principal hotels.

The chief event of the day was the reception held by Ambassador and Mrs. Reid at Dorchester House. Nearly every American at present in town attended, and a most delightful if crowded function it was, all agreeing that it was the most successful ever held. Everywhere one turned were seen the faces of well-known Americans, the most popular being J. Pierpont Morgan, who was here, there, and everywhere, shaking hands with all and moving about with the agility of a schoolboy. Although there were Duchesses and Countesses and many like notables present, the cynosure of all eyes was Mr. Morgan. It is estimated that over 4,000 attended the reception.

To-night the principal function was a dinner given by the American Society in London, which this year was held at the Savoy. Ambassador Reid, who presided, proposed, among other toasts, one to John Hays Hammond, special envoy for the coronation, and caused great amusement by wishing him "a speedy return." Whether Mr. Reid referred to Mr. Hammond's return to America or to the much debated question of whether he will eventually come back to London as Mr. Reid's successor, is a moot point.

Mr. Hammond, however, has been freely telling all and sundry that he has no ambition to hold another diplomatic mission.

Mr. Reid made a neat hit, which was highy appreciated by his audience of Americans, in speaking of another special envoy of the United States to London, whom he had had the pleasure of meeting in the course of the eight years in which he has headed the embassy here. He described that visitor as "a man with a great career behind him." His reference, of course, was to Col. Roosevelt.

Mr. Hammond's mission here is officially at an end, but he has a number of private engagements to fulfill which will detain him in London until July 11, when he sails for America.

Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Hammond were the sole occupants of the gallery overlooking the banqueting hall. Others sought admittance to the gallery, but were informed that it was not public.

Altogether the day was celebrated in London with more than usual zest, the proceedings having in fact begun the previous evening with a reception at Stratton House, where about a thousand guests paid their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Hammond.

CAILLAUX BACON'S GUEST.

Envoy at Paris Also Receives Several Hundred Americans.

PARIS, July 4.—Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon gave a Fourth of July reception at their residence in the Rue François. Premier Caillaux and several hundred Americans, including most of the delegation from the Boston Chamber of Commerce, were present.

Hanson Cleveland Coxe, American Deputy Consul General, acting as a special delegate from the New York Society of Sons of the American Revolution, placed a floral emblem with an American flag upon Lafayette's tomb in the Picpus Cemetery.

At a Fourth of July luncheon given by Arthur E. Valois, former United States Commissioner to the International Exposition of Paris, and Mrs. Valois, were Consul General and Mrs. Frank H. Mason of Paris, Consul Alphonse Gaulin and Mrs. Gaulin of Marseilles, Consul James E. Dunning and Mrs. Dunning of Havre, and Vice Consul and Mrs. Dean Mason of Berlin. Other guests were Senator and Mme. Guerin of Paris, Mrs. William Sprague, wife of the war Governor of Rhode Island, and Charles J. Loeb. Speeches were made by Senator Guerin, Consul General Mason, Mr. Loeb, and Consul Gaulin.

GERMAN FLEET HONORS DAY.

Warships and Kaiser's Yacht Fly Stars and Stripes—Emperor's Congratulations.

BERLIN, July 4.—The American colony in Berlin celebrated the Fourth at the river suburb of Gruenau with baseball and other sports, a dinner, and dancing. Several hundred persons were present.

At Kiel the imperial yacht Hohenzollern and the German fleet in common with the visiting American war vessels were dressed with bunting to-day in honor of the Fourth of July. The Hohenzollern and the German battleships flew the Stars and Stripes from the maintop. The entire German and American fleets fired a national salute of twenty-one guns. American Commander Coontz, his flag lieutenant and commanders were entertained at luncheon by Prince Henry of Prussia and the Princess at the castle.

The Emperor sent the commander of the Hohenzollern to congratulate the officers of the American warships on the occasion of the American celebration.

OTHER CELEBRATIONS.

The Day as Observed in Rome, Brussels, and Other Foreign Capitals.

ROME, July 4.—Many American flags waved here to-day, especially in the vicinity of the American Pavilion at the International Exhibition. Mgr. Kennedy, Rector of the American College in Rome, gave a dinner to the students and many prelates, the company numbering 200.

The American Pavilion at the Turin Industrial Exposition was beautifully decorated. One thousand invitations were issued for the American reception which was held in the evening.

BRUSSELS, July 4.—The principal feature of the local celebration of the Fourth of July was a luncheon given by Charles Page Bryan, the American Minister, to the Belgian Chamber of Commerce.

Among the guests were Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, and other delegates to the steel conference which will open here to-morrow.

YOKOHAMA, July 4.—The Fourth of July was celebrated here by a dinner given by Americans at the Grand Hotel, at which Ambassador John T. O'Brien was the chief guest. Several prominent Japanese were present, and many nationalities were represented.

The American Consul General, Thomas Sammons, proposed a toast to "The President." In responding, Ambassador O'Brien referred to the friendship between the United States and Great Britain, additional evidence of which had been given by the pending treaty of arbitration. He said that if the youngest of the great nations should join in this treaty it would add solidarity to the combination, which would tend to eliminate war. He concluded by proposing a toast to the Emperor of Japan.

CARACAS, Venezuela, July 4.—The Fourth of July celebration was coupled with the celebration of the centennial of Venezuela's independence.

The special American envoy, Thomas C. Dawson, in the presence of President Gomez, the officials of the Government, the members of the Diplomatic Corps and a great crowd of citizens placed a wreath on Bolivar's statue. President Gomez, accompanied by his Ministers, then proceeded to Washington's statue, on which he laid a wreath. Minister and Mrs. Garrett gave a reception which was attended by the President and the Government officials and many Americans. Marines from the armored cruiser North Carolina acted as a legation guard.

MANILA, July 4.—There was an ideal celebration of Independence Day here in fine weather. The Filipinos joined with the American residents in the public exercises. Fifty thousand persons turned out.

GUAYQUIL, Ecuador, July 4.—Flags were hoisted to-day on the government buildings and consulates here and on the Ecuadorian cruisers anchored in the harbor, in celebration of the American Independence Day.

FLAG RAISING AT DAWN.

Ceremony at Central Park Blockhouse—Memorable Italian Observance.

The earliest celebration of Independence Day yesterday was the hoisting of the Stars and Stripes at dawn over the old blockhouse in Central Park by Richard H. Warner, son of Jay Gould Warner. At 10 o'clock the flag was lowered and patriotic exercises were held in the blockhouse by the City History Club. At their conclusion the flag was once more hoisted by Mrs. C. L. Morehouse, whose husband, who died last January, maintained that he was the last of the genuine Sons of the Revolution.

At Mt. Morris Park also there was a flag-raising, under the auspices of the Harlem Patriotic Society. The flag, twelve feet by eight, was presented to the society on behalf of the city by Alderman Samuel Mark and was hoisted by Boy Scouts and G. A. R. veterans while the First Battery, N. Y. N. G., under command of Capt. John F. O'Ryan, fired a salute of 21 guns.

In addition to the ordinary exercises the children of Harlem had a parade of nations of their own and passed in review before an Uncle Sam and a Miss Liberty.

The Italian celebration in Mulberry Square was made memorable by the presence of Gen. Joseph Garibaldi, who had just arrived from Mexico, where he was one of the leaders of the Madero side. He spoke briefly, expressing his pleasure at attending a celebration of Independence Day by Italians.

A delegation from the Young Men's Hebrew Association paid a visit yesterday afternoon to Grant's tomb. They were received by Gen. Cistern, the custodian, and were admitted into the crypt, where Moryon B. Davidson delivered an address and then placed a wreath on the tomb.

EAST SIDE PATRIOTS MARCH.

Girls in Gay Colors Parade with the Jewish Organizations.

Seventy-five Jewish organizations took part yesterday morning in the Independence Day parade on the east side. The marchers assembled at 9 o'clock at Rutgers Square. The first division included Jewish military organizations and a detachment of Spanish war veterans and the second was formed of girls from the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society and the local schools, who in their white dresses, ornamented with ribbons of many colors, formed the most picturesque feature of the parade.

Labor and commercial bodies turned out in good numbers, and among them was a great diversity of nationalities. Galicians, Poles, Bessarabians, Turks, Syrians, Arabs, and Jews from all quarters of the East were represented. They carried banners setting forth their patriotic and political desires, and among them was a placard calling for the lower taxation of buildings, in the interest of the fight against congestion of population.

Joseph Barondess was Grand Marshal, and when he reached 302 East Broadway, the home of the Daughters of Jacob, Albert Kruger, the Superintendent, came out and introduced Isaac Lippshitz, an inmate who is down on the records of the institution as having long passed his century mark. He presented to Barondess an engrossed address, in which the inmates of the home, deploring that age prevented them from taking part in the parade, declared that they joined in the demonstration of loyalty to a country "that has opened wide the doors of happiness to all persecuted mankind, giving them equal and unreserved opportunities to the pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness."

The parade marched to Seward and Hamilton Fish Parks, and the Declaration of Independence was read in Hebrew. Elukum Zanser, an east side poet, made an address.

FOURTH QUIET ALSO IN OTHER CITIES

NOT A DEATH IN WASHINGTON

But Three Children Are Hurt in Pittsburg and a Few Minor Mishaps Occur in Philadelphia.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Chicago celebrated its second sane Fourth of July to-day with a parade, historical tableaux, patriotic exercises, play festivals, and band concerts in the public parks.

The substitution of these features for the cannon cracker, toy pistol, and fireworks of all kinds in the observance of the National holiday is now an established custom here. To-day's celebration along sane lines was even more successful than last year's, when the movement to suppress Fourth of July noise and accidents was inaugurated.

The programme began with a patriotic pageant, three miles in length, composed of 5,000 men, women, and children, and twenty elaborate floats depicting events in the city's history. Seventeen nationalities were represented in the parade, which was reviewed by Gov. Charles S. Deneen and Mayor Carter H. Harrison. Three hundred thousand people watched the procession in the downtown streets.

Other Western cities experienced their first sane Fourth of July celebration. In Topeka the sale of firecrackers was forbidden, but stands were erected just outside the city limits, and did a thriving business. The hospitals report that there have been no accidents. No arrests were made by the police.

In Kansas City, Mo., fireworks and destructive noise-makers were also prohibited. Water sports and athletics were resorted to as a means of observance of the day. Morning, afternoon, and evening concerts by thirteen bands in parks and squares in all quarters of the city were given by the municipality.

In Milwaukee, under strict police regulations, dangerous fireworks and explosives were banned. Six parks, located on all sides of the city, were thronged, and identical programmes of entertainment were provided in each. The celebration started with parades of school children and of various societies.

Notwithstanding the intense heat Cleveland turned out in force to celebrate a safe and sane Fourth. Thousands heard a concert by a band of 200 in the public square in the morning, and later viewed an immense parade, in which civic and fraternal organizations, school children, war veterans, and others participated. Numerous floats were on display. Not a single firecracker, toy pistol, or gun was fired in Cleveland.

In St. Paul, Minn., Gov. Eberhart and Mayor Keller led the sane Fourth of July parade. Escorted by a band and 5,000 gayly dressed boys and girls, the procession moved to an island park in the Mississippi River, where athletic contests and races took place.

In Denver, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was sung or hummed by more than 100,000 persons. The booming of a great bell in the tower of a down-town department store gave the signal for the offering of the Nation's paean, and the crowds in the streets watching a military and industrial parade, and those in parks, street cars, offices, and stores joined in the song of the Republic.

Santa Fé, N. M., celebrated the day with a historic pageant to commemorate the reconquest of Santa Fé by Don Diego de Vargas in 1693. Descendants of the Spanish settlers in the costumes of the seventeenth century and the Pueblo Indians of Tesuque, Taos, Ildefonso, Santa Clara, San Juan, Santa Domingo, and Cochiti in war costume, participated. The procession halted before a huge wooden cross, erected in the plaza, before which Don Diego, represented by George W. Armijo, read a proclamation in Spanish in the name of King Charles II. of Spain. Indian sports and races were included in the programme. The red and yellow flag of Spain was intertwined with the Stars and Stripes throughout the city.

MISHAPS IN PITTSBURG.

There Three Children Were Hurt—Minor Accidents in Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The third "safe and sane" celebration of Independence Day in the National capital came to a close to-night without a single death and with no injuries as a result of the observance of the day. Thousands gathered on the White House ellipse to witness a brilliant display of fireworks, which was followed by the illumination of Pennsylvania Avenue from the Treasury Building to the Capitol.

The programme for the day, which eliminatedall promiscuous bomb shooting and pyrotechnic displays, opened in the morning with patriotic exercises before the District Building. Day fireworks in the White Lot followed. In the playgrounds throughout the city children participated in the observance, and band concerts were held in the parks. A canoe regatta on the Tidal Basin rounded out a varied programme of sports.

Although every precaution had been taken for a safe and sane Fourth celebration in Pittsburg one child is minus an eye, two others are badly burned, and three buildings were fired as the result of the careless handling of firecrackers. Patriotic exercises were held in the various Pittsburg parks, while in almost every section of that city there was a band concert.

In Philadelphia, despite the safe and sane Fourth of July campaign waged here, many minor accidents occurred last night and early to-day, but the number was not nearly as large as in other years. There were the usual patriotic exercises in Independence Square and in other parts of the city. The city provided music and decorations, a regatta, and display of fireworks.

In Baltimore the day was celebrated by a public demonstration which probably surpassed anything of its nature in the history of that city. Every feature of it was planned with the view to a "safe and sane" observance of the day, eliminating dangerous explosives of all kinds as far as possible. The celebration started with a marine parade, headed by United States torpedo boats escorting the "ship of history," which was followed by steam and motor craft to the number of several hundred. On board the "ship of history" was "Lord Baltimore," the founder of the colony, and "Mistress Margaret Brent," who played so important a part in the history of the colony which afterward became Maryland. These two characters were represented, respectively, by former Sheriff John J. Hanson and Miss Catherine Selfe, both having been selected for the honor by popular vote. They were dressed in the costume of the days they represented. The "ship of history" was met at Pier 4 by Gov. Crothers and Mayor Preston, and the keys of the city were presented to "Lord Baltimore" and "Mistress Margaret" by the Mayor.

KING REVIEWS BOY SCOUTS.

35,000 Gathered at Windsor—Many Had Camped in the Park.

WINDSOR, July 4.—King George, accompanied by Queen Mary and other members of the royal family, surrounded by a brilliant staff of distinguished officers of the navy, reviewed in Windsor Great Park to-day an army of 35,000 boy scouts gathered from all parts of the United Kingdom and from some of the colonies. The weather was beautiful.

Drawn up in a huge semicircle in front of the royal inclosure the boys, dressed in the universally adopted scouts' uniform of blue, khaki, or gray, with flat-brimmed khaki hats, and brilliant handkerchiefs of various hues, formed a picturesque spectacle. They formed in eight divisions, the place of honor being occupied by 2,000 King's scouts, who were selected from the various troops as the most efficient, and made a guard of honor for the King. Just behind these were posted 120 life savers, all of whom have been decorated for life saving.

As the King came on the parade ground the band of one of the Guards regiments struck up the national anthem, and the scouts stood at the salute with their staves while they sang the first verse of "God Save the King."

Then the King rode along the lines, closely inspecting the boys.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the chief scout, was in command, and at his order the patrols of the selected King's scouts gave an exhibition of fire lighting and ambulance work. After this, when the King had taken up his position opposite the middle of the semicircle, there was a wild scene as the entire army of boys at the sound of the "scouts' call" charged at full speed toward him, each of the patrols shouting its own peculiar call as it advanced. Then the "alert" was sounded, and like clockwork they all stood still and silent for a few moments to enable them to recover their breath, after which they sang in wonderful unison two of their most popular scouts' choruses.

The King then expressed his gratification at the success of the movement to its originator, Gen. Baden-Powell, who called for three cheers for his Majesty.

Thousands of the boys had traveled through the night in order to be present, and after a short rest started for home again this evening. Many of the others had camped out in the park, for which purpose they had brought their own tents with them.

On this occasion the War Office officially recognized the movement by sending two superior officers of the General Staff to superintend the day's ceremony.

BOMB BURSTS IN TENEMENT.

Believed by the Police That It Was Placed There by the Black Hand.

The explosion of a bomb in the hallway of a four-story tenement occupied by Italian families at 323 West Fourteenth Street about 10:30 o'clock last night shattered doors and windows. The tenants rushed into the street in a panic. The first floor and basement of the building are occupied by Dr. G. Munna, his wife, and three children. Dr. Munna was away and his wife and children were in the basement.

A hurry call to the East Twenty-second Street Station brought a half dozen policemen to the scene, and later Detectives Neggesmith and Burke. There was no trace of the bomb or of the person who had left it in the hallway. The detectives believe that the explosion was the work of the Black Hand.

Sixth Victim of Accident Dies.

Mrs. Mary Sessler, who was driving the wagon when it was run into by a Rockaway Beach train on Sunday night at Glendale, died in the Jamaica Hospital yesterday of a fracture of the skull, caused by the collision. She is the sixth victim of the accident, the other five having been killed outright. Conductor Crood, who was injured, is said to be doing well at the Jamaica Hospital. His right arm has been amputated.

Boys Killed 1,250,000 Flies.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 4.—One and a quarter million dead flies in one heap, being a pile three feet high and five feet wide, represents the slaughter wrought by small boys as the result of a fly-killing contest which closed here to-day. Robert Basse carried off first prize of $10 with a record of 484,320 flies slain.

Costly Fire Caused by Rocket.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 4.—A skyrocket caused a fire here early this morning, with a loss of about $18,000 to James H. Rowe, a wheelwright and blacksmith, on North Highland Avenue. The rocket crashed through the roof of Rowe's storehouse and set fire to some hay and straw, soon igniting the entire building.

Gen. Teran Slain in Quito.

GUAYAQUIL, July 4.—Gen. Emilio Maria Teran, formerly Ecuadorian Minister to Great Britain, was shot and killed at Quito to-day by Col. Quirola following a quarrel over private matters.

LARGER GERMAN SHIP ORDERED TO AGADIR

FRENCH OFFICIALS HOPEFUL

Believe Means Will Be Found to End the Strained Situation—Ministers Meet at the Elysee.

BERLIN, July 4.—The German cruiser Berlin will relieve the gunboat Panther at Agadir, Morocco. The Berlin is three tims as large as the gunboat.

The official explanation of to-day's decision of the Foreign Office is that the Panther will return to her home port in order to go into dry dock.

The departure of Emperor William from Kiel for his Norwegian trip has not been set for any definite day. The delay is much commented upon, and is attributed generally to the Moroccan complications. The official explanation is that it is due to reports of bad weather in Norwegian waters.

PARIS, July 4.—Opinion in France continues calm and dignified, and no fear is entertained regarding the possible consequences of Germany's intervention in Morocco.

It is generally believed that by sending a warship to Agadir Germany wished to intimate her desire to hasten the beginning of negotiations which were decided upon at a meeting at Kissingen between M. Cambon, the French Ambassador at Berlin, and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg. At this meeting it was decided to settle definitely the Moroccan question and to readjust the Congo and Kamerun boundaries and other points of importance to the two countries.

While Germany's action in taking a decisive step before the opening of pourparlers is not regarded as calculated to facilitate the negotiations, no doubt is apparently entertained in official circles that means will be found to end the strained situation.

The Ministers met to-day at the Elysée Palace, Premier Caillaux presiding. The Moroccan question was discussed, but no statement was given out regarding the outcome of the conference.

FALLIERES AT AMSTERDAM.

Queen Wilhelmina Welcomes President and Crowds Cheer Him.

AMSTERDAM, July 4.—President Fallières, who was accompanied by M. de Selves, the French Foreign Minister, had a most cordial reception on arriving here to-day from Dunkirk. The French President, on disembarking from the armored cruiser Edgar Quinet, was welcomed by Queen Wilhelmina, the Prince Consort, and the civil and military authorities.

The party proceeded to the imperial palace in open landaus through streets decorated with flags and thronged with cheering crowds. The entire route was lined with troops.

WEDS A LONDON POLICEMAN.

Sister of Australian Premier Married to Constable Galt.

LONDON, July 4.—The romantic marriage of Miss Janet Fisher, a sister of the Right Hon. Andrew Fisher, Premier of the Commonwealth of Australia, who has been attending the Imperial Conference, and Constable Galt of the London police attracted a large crowd to-day. Interested spectators thronged the church and its vicinity.

Mr. Fisher gave away his sister, and the bridegroom was attended by good-looking patrolmen of the city police force.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Bulgaria, July 4.—The damage done by the recent floods is enormous. The monetary loss is estimated at $20,000,000. Many buildings were washed away by the rain-swollen streams, and crops and market gardens were ruined in wide areas.

Now a water-famine threatens this city, as the mains have been uncovered and so torn apart that a month will be needed to repair them.

The inhabitants of many villages in the south of Bulgaria have sought refuge in the mountains.

The Athletics did all the Fourth of July celebrating on the Hilltop yesterday at the Yankees' expense. They won the morning game after a rattling attack on Jim Vaughn in the seventh inning by a score of 7 to 4, and grabbed the afternoon game by a plucky uphill fight of eleven innings. With a 7 to 0 lead against them in the first inning, Mack's team scrapped and scratched its way along, making every hit count, and trotted off the field a winner by a score of 11 to 9 after a battle that was saturated with high-powered emotion. The day was too hot for crowds, to run helter-skelter to the ball park as they usually do on holidays, and a gathering of 5,000 saw the morning game, with 8,000 on hand to enjoy the teeming tilt of the afternoon. The Athletics have had a very prosperous visit, and have fattened on four straight wins in two days, which have put them in front in the American League race. They had to go at top speed to do it, and the players are pretty well played out after the last two days' skirmishing beneath a broiling sun.

Scorching Sol and an insatiable appetite for stinging hits has made life a miserable affair for pitchers. A whole galaxy of boxmen, young and old, paraded back and forth from the hillock in the afternoon. It was a highly intelligent bunch of pitchers, too. Cornelius McGillicuddy trotted out an assortment of twirlers heavily laden down with the knowledge of pitching from many of the higher institutions of learning. He first sent Martin of Tufts College out to get his medicine. He didn't last a whole inning, and then Long of Lafayette tried his hand. Next came Leonard of St. Mary's College of California. He got a spanking, too, so Jack Coombs was called upon. He also began to totter at a crucial time in the eleventh, when the Yankees were starting another rally, and Cy Morgan waltzed in and saved the day. The Yankees called upon several of their pitchers to tame the Mackmen. Brockett started, and gave way to Fisher. He didn't last, and Caldwell made an attempt. Same result. Russell Ford went into the fray in the ninth inning with his perilous moist toss, and not even he could prevent the Athletics from bruising the ball. It was while Ford was in the box in the eleventh inning that Philadelphia smashed in the victory.

The Athletics began operations in the morning game in the second inning when Baker cracked a single to left and stole second. He went to third on McInnes's out at first, and scored on Barry's demise, Vaughn to Chase. Another run came in the third, Coombs hit a double to right and scored on Strunk's three-bagger to left.

Then the Yankees got busy and in the next three innings forged to the front. In the fourth inning Knight singled and went to second when Oldring fumbled the ball. Chase shot a two-bagger to centre, scoring Knight. They tied the score in the fifth chapter on a triple by Daniels to right and a sacrifice fly by Hartzell.

New York took the lead in the sixth inning. After Chase's single to right Gardner jammed a double to centre, sending Chase to third. While Derrick was tossing Sweeney out to McInnes Chase scored. Big Jim Vaughn blew up in the seventh when the Athletics went after him hard. Thomas, who succeeded Lapp, was an easy out. Coombs singled. Lord got a double, sending Coombs to third. The Athletics then worked the squeeze play. Coombs galloped in as Oldring tapped a roller to Vaughn and Rube was safe on Vaughn's high throw to Chase. Oldring stole second. Lord scored on Strunk's double and Oldring scored on Baker's sacrifice fly. McInnes singled, sending Strunk across. That lead put the game safely in the hands of the enemy, for Bender was sent in to pitch and held the Yankees from getting too near the front.

The Yankees then introduced their latest pitcher, young Klepfer from Penn State College. In the first half of the ninth Lord singled and stole second. Oldring grounded out and Strunk drew a pass. Baker fanned. Lord and Strunk worked a double steal, Lord crossing the plate. Blair tripled in the last half of the ninth, and Hemphill, pinch hitter, lined to Barry. Blair scored on Daniels's yanked it down, doubling up Daniels at rick's head. He climbed skyward and yanked it down, doubling up Daniels at first.

Yankee runs flowed over the plate in the second game like a cataract. Daniels singled and stole. Wolter beat out a bunt and Hartzell walked, filling the bases. Cree jammed a two-bagger to right, scoring two runs. Knight singled and sent in two more. Martin was then replaced by Long. Chase greeted him with a bunt. Gardner cracked one to left, scoring Knight. Williams fanned and Brockett shot a red-hot grounder through second and sent Chase across. Gardner scored on a wild pitch. Daniels grounded to Baker, and Brockett was cut down between third and the plate. Daniels stole again, the same base twice in the same inning. Wolter ended the weird session by grounding out, Derrick to McInnes. Leonard, from the Coast, then took up the pitching duty.

With that lead safely tucked away the Yankees felt that the hoodoo was at last broken and that they had put away one game out of four, at least. Think again. The White Elephants hadn't started yet. In the third they began to propel the ball against the fence. Lord's double, a pass, Baker's triple, and a sacrifice fly gave them three runs. Three more came in the fifth chapter. Lord singled and the next two men went out. Baker's single scored Lord. McInnes walked. Brockett was chased and Fisher began pitching. Jack Barry walloped a double flat against the left-field fence, scoring Baker and McInnes.

They climbed up, inch by inch. In the sixth Hartsel, batting for Thomas, walked, and was forced by Lapp. Lord's single sent the catcher to third, and he scored on Oldring's sacrifice fly. That tied the score then and there. The Yanks were not to be denied, either. With Coombs pitching, Knight tacked the ball on the right-field fence for a three-bagger. Chase fanned and Gardner flied to Derrick. Sweeney walked. Knight and Sweeney worked a double steal, Knight scoring the run that pushed the Yankees into the lead again.

The Athletics fought up to even terms again in the ninth inning. Oldring singled to centre and was sacrificed by Strunk. Caldwell got his farewell and Ford sailed forth to strike terror into the hearts of the Athletics. Baker grounded out and Oldring went to third. "Stuffy" McInnes then shot a single to left, scoring Oldring with the tally which tied the score again.

Tenth inning, very tame. Fireworks in the eleventh.

Oldring rocked the ball to centre for a single. Strunk spilled a bunt and Sweeney threw it high to Blair at first. Everybody was safe, Rube going around to third. Here comes that person Baker. He could hit the ball with one arm tied behind his back and his eyes blindfolded. A happy little hit sailed into right field, and Oldring and Strunk scored.

Good night, Yankees.

McInnes struck out, but he could afford to do it then. Barry and Baker worked the squeeze, Baker scoring just as Barry tapped a bouncer to the infield and was safe when Blair dropped the ball at first. Derrick lined to Chase, who had switched over to play shortstop, and Hal doubled Barry up at first.

SLIDING WITH THE YANKEES.

Three times did "Topsy" Hartsel argue with "Silk" O'Loughlin about a close decision at third base. Three times and out.

Thirty-two players in the afternoon game. Need an adding machine to keep track of them.

"Connie" Mack's high brow college youngsters still have their heads full of calculus and fine arts. Education is a great thing in baseball, but a singing in-shoot that no one can flirt with is better.

Among those who are directly affected when it' gets hot are stokers, Subway guards, and baseball fans.

Every pitcher on both the Yanks and Athletics were warming up, scattered all over the field. They used to pitch once a week; now they are likely to be called on twice a day.

Wilkinson, another college player from St. Mary's, in California, got into the game with the Yankees. They will be able to start a University Club in baseball circles pretty soon.

Chase, while playing short, didn't cover second base on one of Sweeney's throws, and the ball went to centre field. Hal will be back at first to-day.

Jack Barry shoots the ball over to first so quickly and so hard that some day his right arm will go sailing over with it.

Naps Score Victory in Thirteenth.

CLEVELAND, July 4.—Cleveland won from St. Louis, 6 to 5, in thirteen innings this morning, breaking a league record by using eighteen players, including four pitchers and three catchers. Smith was forced to retire because of being spiked, while Falkenberg and Krapp were knocked out of the box. Gregg finished the game for Cleveland, and won it by singling and scoring on Graney's double. Cleveland had frequent chances to win earlier, but threw those chances away by poor base running. Jackson's home run gave Cleveland an early lead, but St. Louis bunched hits in the eighth and tied it up. Score:

Cobb's Hitting Record Broken.

DETROIT, July 4.—Ed Walsh defeated Detroit in the morning game, 7 to 3. Walsh was invincible in pinches. Manager Duffy did not accompany the Chicago team to this city. Harry Lord was in charge. It was announced that Duffy has been sent out on a scouting trip by Owner Comiskey. This morning's game was the first in the last forty-one games he has played in which Cobb failed to get a hit. TENNEYITES GET AN EVEN BREAK

Tailend Teams Figure in Two Close Battles at Washington Park—Small Crowds Present.

The Superbas and the Forlorn Hopes from Boston sizzled through two games at Washington Park yesterday, and when they dragged their well-baked frames from the scene of battle in the afternoon honors were even. Both games were fast and remarkably well played, considering the weather conditions, each being marked by light scoring and late rallies which brought victory. The Tenneyites nosed out the Dahlen troupe in the morning struggle by breaking a 2-2 tie in the ninth with a pair of successive doubles, and the home team broke a similar tie in the eighth inning of the afternoon contest with a timely double, a fielder's choice and a pair of misplays. Boston won 3 to 2, and Brooklyn came back with a 4 to 2 triumph.

What were undoubtedly the smallest holiday crowds in the history of Washington Park turned out to see the two games. Not more than 2,500 gathered to see the morning battle, and the afternoon attendance hardly reached the 4,000 mark. The bleacher boys showed a disposition to spend a sane Fourth by refusing to roast in the uncovered stands, and the crowds sized up no larger than might be expected on any afternoon at Washington Park.

In the morning game McTigue, the latest addition to Tenney's pitching staff, had the Superbas eating out of his hand for eight innings. They threatened only once up to that time, in the sixth inning, and then he held them scoreless after two passes and a single had filled the corners with only one out. A force-out at the plate and an easy outfield fly ended the danger. In the eighth, with one out, a double, a single, and a pass came in quick succession, and Tenney called Jake Pfeffer to the rescue with the corners filled and Boston leading, 2 to 0. Pfeffer immediately walked Hummel, forcing in Brooklyn's first run, and Coulson's sacrifice fly to Kaiser scored the other.

Boston had scored a run in the second inning on Kling's single, Kaiser's out, and Raridan's single. Herzog's single, R. Miller's out, and Ingerton's single brought in the second run in the eighth. Tooley batted for Knetzer in Brooklyn's half of the eighth, and Rucker pitched the last inning. The Tenneyites got the winning run off Nap on successive doubles by Pfeffer and Sweeney after the first two men to face Rucker had gone out easily.

The Superbas were again outhit in the afternoon, but made the most of their opportunities by gathering a pair of runs in the only two innings which offered any chances. Hub Perdue was effective all the way, but two solid smashes, one by Jake Daubert and the other by Davidson, together with a pair of misplays by his mates, settled the fate of the stocky twirler. With two out in the third inning, Davidson singled to right field, and Daubert followed with a low drive over third base, which rolled to the clubhouse and gave Jake a home run.

Boston got a run in the second inning on Miller's slam to right field, Smith's error, and Kaiser's sacrifice fly to Coulson. They tied the score in the sixth inning on a pass to Herzog, his steal, Schardt's wild pitch, and Ingerton's single.

Brooklyn won in the eighth. Erwin reached first on Sweeney's poor toss, Schardt bunted to Tenney, and Davidson hit over Ingerton's head for two bases. Herzog missed Ingerton's fast return, and Erwin scored, Davidson reaching third base on the misplay. Davidson beat Sweeney's throw to the plate when Daubert bounded a scorcher off Perdue's glove.

A remarkable one-hand stop by Herzog and a running catch by Ingerton, which robbed Hummel of a triple, featured the game. The scores:

REGATTA ON SHREWSBURY.

REDBANK, N. J., July 4.—The biggest and most successful regatta ever held on the Shrewsbury River attracted hundreds of visitors here to-day. It was the first annual regatta held under the auspices of the Redband Motor Boat Club. All along the course were pleasure craft, among which was M. C. Borden's New Sovereign and the Sybilla II., owned by J. F. Betz of Philadelphia.

The feature race was the twenty-mile event between E. D. Godfrey's Mongoose, Howard Borden's Scout, and Jacob Siegal's XP. D. N. C. The first two boats started together and raced like a team throughout most of the race. After the Scout had led for six of the eight rounds the Mongoose pulled ahead by clever manoeuvring and beat out the Scout 15 seconds at the finish. These two craft had a handicap of 12 minutes on the XP. D. N. C., which lapped the others and finished 4 minutes behind. The elapsed time follows: Mongoose, 45:15; Scout, 45:30; XP. D. N. C., 37:44.

Capt. Charles P. Irwin's Irwin won the event for 18-foot boats and under, doing the 20 miles in 1:03:10.

Harry Coon's Artful won the 20-mile event for boats 21 to 32 feet. Pierre Proal's Hellyan, handicapped at 3 minutes, was second. Time: Artful, 50:03; Hellyan, 48:33.

In the open class boats for 10 miles Ernest Oliver's Mist was first, C. W. Moore's Silver Heels second, and Joseph H. Conover's Elcid third. Time of winner, 36:35.

In the cabin boats class Paul Stewart's Wildflower was first, Louis Frick's Louisa F. second, and E. E. Perrin's Mohawk third. Time of winner, 33:52. There were many starters.

Handsome and costly cups were given the winners this evening. The officials were: W. Harold Powers, Commodore; George Frick, Charles E. Hendrickson, Jr., George D. Hendrickson, and Beverly W. Brown.

Hunt Takes Special Prize.

In an eighteen-hole medal play handicap for a special prize over the links of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club yesterday, E. J. Phillips won with a card of 87—16—71. Quite a number also took part in the ball sweepstakes, which was won by E. F. Hunt, 76—2—74. M. S. Flint and James Herbert tied for second share, with 78. The scores in the special handicap were as follows: E. J. Phillips, 87—16—71; L. S. Parsons, 88—15—73; T. E. Niles, 95—21—74; H. G. McKeever, 87—10—77; F. W. Johnson, 83—6—77; N. M. Garland, 88—10—78; James Herbert, 90—12—78; H. L. Parsons, 82—3—79; W. K. Cleverly, 98—16—82; L. H. Losee, 97—15—82; F. H. Webster, 92—8—84; Grant Notman, 99—12—87.

Heat Too Much for Golfers.

Torrid weather and a thirty-six hole programme proved too much for most of the Apawamis Club golfers yesterday. In the early hours they rallied in force, the incentive being a trophy presented by the Metropolitan Branch of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests. F. S. Wheeler, the Apawamis President, played consistent golf throughout the day and won, returning 150 net, the best by a margin of three strokes. So many melted away after their morning round that comparatively few had the courage to finish. The best scores were: F. S. Wheeler, 160—10—150; Seney Plummer, 167—14—153; F. S. Keeler, 169—16—153; J. T. Gwathmey, 167—14—153; A. S. Thurston, 177—16—161.

New Amateur Record for Wykagyl.

T. V. Bermingham broke the amateur record for the links of the Wykagyl Country Club yesterday, going out in 38 and home in 35 for a 73. This lowered the old mark, held by himself, by two strokes. His card read as follows:

Out	4	4	5	3	4	4	3	4	5	38
In	2	4	5	4	4	4	3	3	6	35—73

Later on, in the competition for the June Cup at handicap match play, Bermingham was beaten by W. E. Truell by 3 up and 2 to play. The Independence Day Handicap was won by M. J. Condon with 163—12—151.

Sedgwick Captures Golf Cup.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 4.—At the Newport Golf Club this afternoon a match of eighteen holes, handicap medal play, for a cup offered the club was won by Henry R. Sedgwick with a net score of 81, with Robert Sedgwick, Jr., second, with a net score of 82. The summary: Henry R. Sedgwick, 88—7—81; Robert Sedgwick, Jr., 82—6—82; William Gammell, 92—9—83; Austen Gray, 95—11—84.

McMahon's Briarcliff Cup.

BRIARCLIFFE MANOR, N. Y., July 4.—The eighteen-hole medal handicap tournament on the Briarcliffe golf links for a silver cup donated by Briarcliffe Lodge was won to-day by Joseph T. McMahon of the Briarcliffe Club, with a card of 77 net.

Members Foursomes at Englewood.

Four-ball foursomes were engaged in both morning and afternoon by the members of the Englewood Country Club yesterday. In the early round H. M. Coxe and H. M. Hitchings won with a card of 75—7—68. Later in the day the Class A golfers teamed up, and this time W. C. Adamson and W. Sayer won with 74—9—56, while in the B set E. F. Gaines and F. De Ronde won with 83—16—67.

HUNDRED GOLFERS OUT AT MONTCLAIR

Stifling heat did not prevent the members of the Montclair Golf Club from turning out in force yesterday morning and afternoon, for there were nearly a hundred cards returned in the various events. A special event of the day was the flag contest in which a player's handicap was added to the par of the course, the player planting his flag at the place where the total strokes took him. J. I. Simmons won the contest, finishing his 89 strokes at the twentieth hole.

The feature event of the day was an eighteen-hole handicap in two classes, played both morning and afternoon. J. I. Simmons and J. Hodson, Jr., showed the way in the A division in the morning round, turning in net cards of 76, 9—67, while W. B. Eager topped the list in the B set with 96, 28—68. In the afternoon competition, E. B. Lyford headed the first division with 77, 10—67, while H. M. Robinson topped the list in the second with 84, 14—70.

Simmons and Robinson were again winners of their respective classes, A and B, in a special event in the afternoon at 36 holes, selected eighteen holes to count and three-quarters of the regular handicap being allowed. Simmons had 69, 7—62, while Robinson made 75, 11—64. The scores follow:

Club Handicap; Morning Contest; 18 Holes.—J. I. Simmons, 76, 9—67; J. Hodson, Jr., 75, 8—67; F. E. Donohue, 77, 8—69; S. H. Harris, 79, 9—70; C. J. Turner, 79, 8—71; Paul Harrison, 75, 3—72; C. F. PHILADELPHIA, Penn., July 4.—Hard hitting, fine fielding, and superior pitching combined to give the Phillies two victories over New York to-day and placed the home team in first place once more. The Giants were pushed down into third place. Large crowds filled the park morning and afternoon. The Quakers won the morning battle 11 to 7. The matinée attraction was also captured by the onrushing Phillies by a score of 7 to 5. In the morning Moore started the contest, but was relieved by Chalmers when the Giants became too familiar with his delivery. The youngster held the Giants safe for the remaining innings, being materially assisted by excellent support and some heavy hitting by his colleagues.

In the afternoon Alexander went the nine-inning route alone. He was touched up quite lively at times, and in addition made considerable trouble for himself at certain stages of the game by his lack of control, but the terrific hitting by the Phillies made his victory comparatively easy. New York used three pitchers—Crandall, Marquard, and Ames in the order named. A terrific liner from Dooin's bat struck Crandall a glancing blow on the forehead in the seventh inning and knocked him down, cutting a small gash over his eye. The ball carromed into left field, Devore fielding it to Devlin too late to catch Doolin, who ran from first base on the hit. After a short time Crandall revived and walked to the clubhouse. Marquard finished the inning and Ames worked in the ninth inning.

Interesting from the fact that the Phillies early obtained a lead, which they never lost, by their hard hitting, was the afternoon battle with New York. The contest was hardly exciting, as the Giants never became dangerous, despite the fact that they scored three runs in the seventh inning. But it was a pretty game to look upon. There were many beautiful plays, in most of which the Phillies were the central figures. A crowd of about 18,000 witnessed the game, and the spectators never ceased to cheer from the time the first ball was pitched until the final Giant was retired.

The conspicuous feature of the conflict was the hitting of the league leaders in the early half of the game. In the second and fifth rounds the Quakers developed an epidemic of long drives that aroused the big crowd to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. These two batting rallies, in which seven hits for a total of eighteen bases were accumulated off Crandall's pitching, served to give the Phillies a lead that New York never menaced.

The batting king of this sequential exhibition was Fred Luderus. In each inning the stalwart first baseman looped the ball over the right-field wall for home runs. Unfortunately, no one was on base either time he earned the wild plaudits of the assembled thousands by his batting prowess. Other men to wield the bat with deadly execution were Paskert, Doolan, and Dooin.

The heat visibly affected the players, notably Murray and Crandall. As a matter of fact the entire New York team did not put much spirit in their work after the Phillies scored their 2 runs in the fifth inning. Murray acted like a dazed man at the bat, while his actions in the field made him uncertain of fly balls. Crandall's suit was black from the effects of the perspiration that rolled from him, and he was almost exhausted when he was hit over the forehead by a terrific liner from Dooin's bat in the seventh inning and forced to leave the field.

Alexander opposed Crandall. The sweltering crowd gave the pitching wonder of the year a volcanic ovation as he walked to the middle of the diamond after Umpire Rigler had announced the batteries. Alexander pitched a fair game, not nearly so good a game as he has shown on previous occasions, but still good enough to beat the Giants. The redeeming part of this work was an ability to extricate himself from precarious situations. Time and again he wasted three balls on batsmen, only to retire the succeeding batsmen despite the fact that he was obliged to "groove" the ball. Only once did his skill and luck fail him. In the seventh Merkle met a ball that cut the plate and sent the sphere into the left field bleachers, two men crossing the plate ahead of him.

The battle was filled with pretty and sensational plays. In the eighth Doolan and Knabe executed a play that was little short of marvelous. With big Meyers on first and one out, Becker went to bat for Marquard. The former hit a sharp bounding grounder directly over second base. Both Doolan and Knabe raced for the ball. Mike was nearer to it, and Otto sprang to the base. Doolan just managed to spear the ball with his ungloved hand, and with his face toward the clubhouse he made a back-handed toss to Knabe, who received the ball with his ungloved hand for an out. The crowd cheered the effort to the echo.

In the sixth inning Murray made a staggering catch of Luderus's fly in deep right, and by a remarkably true throw caught the fast running Paskert trying to score from third base by a yard. Devlin twice made one-handed stops while on the run and caught the batters at first base, while Bridwell also figured in two splendid stops and throws.

The Phillies took the lead in the first inning of the second game, when Devore misjudged Paskert's line drive. The ball struck the field about ten feet in front of the bleachers and bounded among the spectators for a home run.

The Phillies opened strong on Crandall in the second inning. Luderus started the fireworks by putting the ball over the right field wall. Walsh was an easy out. Doolan smashed the sphere to right for a triple and walked home on Dooin's double to left. The manager went to third on Alexander's single to centre. When Knabe bunted to Crandall for the "squeeze" play, Dooin easily scored. In the fourth, with two gone, Alexander singled and crossed the plate on Knabe's slashing triple to the clubhouse.

New York got one in the sixth, when Devlin was passed after Bridwell had been retired. On Meyers's infield out Devlin went to second, and came home on Crandall's double, the batter being out on Walsh's throw when he overslid the bag.

The Phillies got two in their half of the fifth inning. With Magee down, Luderus again put the ball over the right field wall. Walsh doubled and came home on Doolan's drive for two bases. The next two men were easy outs. The Phillies failed to score after this inning.

New York got three runs in the seventh inning. With two out Snodgrass made a scratch hit and stole second. Murray walked, and both scored ahead of Merkle on the latter's long drive into the bleachers.

The morning game was a mixture of loose fielding and hard and timely hitting by the home team. The Phillies won it by splendid stickwork, and, as a victory was all the big holiday throng was looking for, the mistakes of Dooin's men in the field were overlooked. Errors on what should have been easy fielding chances resulted in the Giants scoring five of their seven runs. With perfect fielding New York would not have crossed the plate once, the onl inning they had any excuse for scoring being in the ninth.

For two innings Earl Moore held the hard-hitting Giants scoreless, and only one hit in each inning was made off him. The Phillies put three runs over in their half of the second, and this looked good the way Moore was working. But after Walsh had made a fine running catch of Meyers's hard drive and Donlin, batting for Wiltse, had been retired on strikes in the third, Dooin muffed a foul fly off Devore's bat when it would have been easy for Lobert. This proved costly, and it seemed to take the nerve out of Moore. Devore doubled, Doyle walked, Snodgrass singled, and Murray tripled, scoring three runs. Merkle rolled an easy one to Moore, who played it slowly, and when Luderus dropped the throw Murray scored. Bridwell walked and Devlin fanned.

It was Dooin's timely double in the third inning which drove in two runs, after Walsh had singled and stole second and Doolan had walked, so the big crowd was lenient with Charley, and the hard-working manager more than made up for it later, his hitting being the real feature of the game.

Chalmers took up the pitching in the fifth session and finished the game, twirling in clever style and holding New York down close, except in the ninth inning. After the Phillies tied the score in the fourth inning on Doolan's pass and Dooin's two-bagger, New York secured the lead again on three errors.

There were two out in the fifth inning when Merkle reached first base on Doolan's fumble of his grounder. Chalmers tried to catch him napping, and a wild throw advanced him to second. Bridwell hit a fly to short field, and, although Paskert could have got it, Knabe tried for it and muffed it, Merkle scoring. Devlin doubled, but Bridwell was held on third, and Meyers was thrown out by Knabe.

That was all until the ninth inning for New York. In the seventh Snodgrass was hit by a pitched ball and Murray doubled, but Chalmers fanned Merkle and Bridwell and Lehr, who took Doolan's place in the sixth inning, tossed Devlin out at first. Two singles, a pass, and an error gave the Giants their two runs in the ninth inning.

The Phillies used up three pitchers in their slaughter. After Wiltse retired, Ames went to the mound. The Phillies got one off him in the fourth inning on Dooin's double, following a pass to Doolan. Five singles ⅓two passes, and a sacrifice netted five runs in the sixth session, the Phillies setting the crowd wild by the way they slugged the ball to all parts of the field. Doolan started the inning with a pass and finished it by being called out on strikes. He was banished from the game for useless kicking, the Phillies being four runs to the good at the time.

The Phillies got one run off aMrquard in the seventh inning without making a hit and one off Drucke in the eighth on Walsh's two-bagger, following a pass to Luderus.

Cubs Win in One Inning.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Chicago won the morning game from Cincinnati to-day, 8 to 3. Pitcher Keefe of Cincinnati had one bad inning. After walking two men he made an error, and was then touched for five hits, two of which were home runs and one a double. Richter of Chicago pitched a fine game, but weakened in the last inning, when four hits and a base on balls netted two runs. Hoblitzel's home run counted the other run. Clarke's hand was badly hurt in the first inning and he retired. Score:

Reds and Cubs in a Tie.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Cincinnati and Chicago played a two to two tie this afternoon, the game being called at the end of the tenth inning by agreement, to allow the players to catch a train. The locals made their score on a base on balls, two sacrifice hits, a hit and an error, while the visitors made their scores on an error, a base on balls, a sacrifice and a double. Cole was ordered from the grounds by Umpire Eason for disputing a decision, while Smith retired to allow Severoid to bat for him. The score:

Pirates Hit Ball Hard and Win.

PITTSBURG, Penn., July 4.—The afternoon game was easily won by Pittsburg by a score of 11 to 1. They hit the ball hard and often in the third inning, getting seven hits, including two three-baggers, netting them six runs. In the fourth inning G. Laudermilk supplanted Steel and gave four bases on balls, forcing in a run. Then Geyer was sent to the rubber, and three runs were made while he pitched. Hendrix was steady from start to finish. THREE NEW STATE RECORDS.

880, Mile, and Five-Mile Marks Beaten in New Jersey Championships.

BAYONNE, N. J., July 4.—In an open field in City Park, skirting Newark Bay, this afternoon the second annual track and field championships of New Jersey were held, under the auspices of St. Mary's Athletic Club and the Independence Day Association. More than 10,000 persons witnessed some excellent sport. The heat was intense, but occasional brisk breezes from the bay tempered it, and the athletes did not suffer greatly. Three new State records were made—in the 880-yard, one-mile, and five-mile runs—and three records were equaled—in the 100, 200, and 440 yards. The five-mile run was a grueling contest, and at the finish most of the survivors were "all in" from the heat. In the 440-yard run I. Dunne won from A. E. Ford by a close margin. The summaries:

100-Yard Dash.—Won by E. Holweg, Belleville C. C.; A. E. Ford, St. Mary's A. C., second; J. Powers, South Paterson A. C., third. Time —0:10 2-5.

880-Yard Run.—Won by F. Sinclair, St. Mary's A. C.; F. J. Seyfarth, St. Columbia C. C., second; P. Kennedy, Belleville C. C., third. Time—2:04 1-5.

BRIGHTON, England, July 4.—The Harvard and Yale athletes who are to meet the representatives of Oxford and Cambridge in an international competition at the Queen's Club grounds on July 11 resumed training at Preston Park this afternoon. The work was light. The track men went the full distances, but did not attempt speed, while the jumpers merely limbered up. There will be team work morning and afternoon at the park until the night before the intercollegiate meet. Capts. Foster and Fitzpatrick spent the day in London arranging details with the English representatives.

DOLPHIN WINS CLOSE RACE.

Red Bank Yachting Season Opens on North Shrewsbury River.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., July 4.—The opening regatta of the season of the Red Bank Yacht Club, which is composed exclusively of New York people, was sailed over the regular twelve-mile course this morning. Long before the start was made scores of women and their escorts began to assemble on the floating clubhose from the cottages along the North Shrewsbury River.

There was a full-sail breeze blowing, which held out during the race. Two classes were started with one gun, they being Class II., in which were Otto Wagner's Widow and Frank James's May Win, and a handicapped class in which were entered A. Hupfel's Dolphin, William Labaire's Ziz, and John G. Gillig's Papoose.

The yachts got off well together. The Ziz conceded three minutes' handicap to Papoose. The Ziz and Dolphin made a pretty race, finishing close on elapsed time. The Dolphin's time was 1:38:47, beating the Ziz several seconds.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, July 4.—Twenty-five thousand persons witnessed the motor boat races of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association this afternoon despite a temperature of 102 degrees. The day's events opened with a naval parade, nearly three hundred gaily decorated launches taking part. The principal event this afternoon was the championship race for 20-foot launches, which was won by Pronto of Peoria, Ill., closely followed by Leading Lady of Galena, Ill.

Bayside Yacht Club Boats Race.

The Bayside Yacht Club boats raced yesterday in handicap and one-design classes. In the first skirmish of the former type A. Andrews's Kiddo won from A. Nesbit's Edna by a narrow margin, with the Adros, C. L. Willard; Rowdy, Harry Dayton, and Peggy, W. Shiras, trailing in the rear. In the afternoon the Edna turned the tide, with the others in the same relative positions as in the morning.

George Hopewell's Sport won from J. E. Hill's Silver Heel in the morning in the handicap class, and in the afternoon the result was reversed.

As far as the eye could reach Long Island Sound yesterday afternoon was dotted from shore to shore with the white sails of the ninety-one yachts that started between 12 and 1 o'clock in the annual regatta of the Larchmont Yacht Club. It was the record number of starters for an annual race of the club, and included in the twenty classes were yachts from every club at this end of the Sound.

The start off the Larchmont breakwater in a good breeze from the southwest and on the last of an ebb tide was a pretty sight. Timing the signal to a nicety, Capt. John Barr of George Scott's schooner Miladi brought her down from the westward under fine headway. With the balloon jib topsail drawing well, she crossed the starting line just as the whistle of the judge's boat C. P. Raymond blew. On her weather beam was P. H. Johnson's Simitar, and to leeward Robert Toland's Dervish.

These three and the sloops Gardenia, Irondequoit, and Dorello, which crossed the line five minutes later almost "beam and beam," sailed the eleven and a half mile course twice over, their first turn being a dory in the middle of the Sound. From there it was windward work to the buoy off Mott's Point and a "run" to the home mark. The times taken there as they rounded it were: Dervish, 1:55:32; Miladi, 2:02:29; Irondequoit, 2:03:03; Gardenia, 2:05:12; Simitar, 2:05:40; Dorello, 2:08:10. The Dervish held her lead to the finish, winning from the Miladi by three minutes and thirty-three seconds.

Much interest was shown in the "P" class, in which the Corinthian, the Windward, the Joyant, and the Cara Mia were competitors. All four started on practically even terms, with the Windward and the Corinthian at the windward end of the line. After a luffing match these two straightened out on their courses only to find when they approached the mark that it had drifted to the southward. All four put up a great fight in the eight miles of windward work to the Mott's Point Buoy, the Corinthian, handled by C. Sherman Hoyt, doing the best work. She finally won from the Windward by five minutes nineteen seconds.

The Gardenia finished first in her class, but she was beaten on time allowance by the Irondequoit by just six seconds, after covering nearly thirty miles. Horace E. Boucher, Chairman of the Regatta Committee, intimated yesterday that if the yacht owners do not have their boats' numbers placed in the proper position on the mainsail the committee will not time the boats so offending.

The winners in the other classes were: The Nepsi from the Yolande by 4 minutes 53 seconds; the Cliphora from the Rascal by 48 seconds, the Interim from the Sally IX. by 2 minutes 57 seconds, the Fearless from the Scud by 4 minutes 19 seconds, the Chinook from the Rascal III. by 1 minute 16 seconds, the Grace II. from the Robin Hood by 59 seconds, the Hamburg II. from the Wild Thyme by 1 minute 59 seconds, the Scylla, the Chickioker, the Hoyden, the Opal, the Virginia, the Little Dipper, the Drena, the Iney, the Tautog and the Dipper. YACHTS FINISH LATE.

Late finishes marked the Independence Day regatta of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club yesterday. A splendid breeze from the south greeted the yachtsmen when they gathered at the starting line off the Atlantic Yacht Club. The air came from a quarter, however, that caused many soft spots under the lee of Fort Hamilton, and as it petered away during the second round the tars found themselves still racing long after the usual hour for the ending of a lower bay regatta. AROUND STATEN ISLAND.

Seven boats started in the race around Staten Island for cups offered by the National Yacht Club yesterday. The fleet was divided into two classes. The first division was made up of Caroline, Sim Too, and Wanderlust. The winner was Caroline, which defeated Sim Too by 20 minutes and 5 seconds corrected time over the 39-mile course. In the second division empire defeated Canadice for the trophy by 9 minutes and 47 seconds corrected time.

The Regatta Committee of the National Yacht Club yesterday received word from Scotland Lightship to the effect that the times reported on the recent Cape May race are correct. Ilys, therefore, wins the prize. The summary of yesterday's race:

ELENA'S FOURTH VICTORY.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., July 4.—The new schooner Elena, owned by Morton Plant, won the special prize offered by the Eastern Yacht Club for the big schooners, as well as the famous Puritan Cup, to-day. It was the fourth time in three weeks that the Elena has defeated her sister ship, the Queen, now the Irolita. To-day, over a 38-mile course, the Plant boat was a winner by 3 minutes 46 seconds, corrected time. She also defeated the Irolita by the same margin for the Puritan Cup. The other winers of the day were the Taormina, owned by W. S. Eaton, which won in the second division for schooners; the Vagrant, owned by Harold Vanderbilt, in the third division for schooners, and the Avenger, owned by Daniel Bacon, in the sloop class.

To-day's race in Massachusetts Bay was sailed in a moderate southwest breeze, which gave the big schooner a reach, a run, a close fetch, and two more reaches over a triangular course. The Elena led from the start, and it was only in the few minutes in the close fetch from Thatcher's Island whistler to the inside mark, that the Irolita gained perceptibly.

Cedarhurst and Keystone Yachts Win.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BEACH, L. I., July 4.—Jointly under the auspices of the Long Beach Motor Yacht Club and the Nassau Yacht Club the first sailing regatta of the season was held here today over a marked course in Wreck Lead. Hundreds witnessed the races from pleasure craft in the channel and resorts along the shore. Rene La Montagne, D. M. Chauncey, and J. H. Walke of Nw York sailed winning boats. In the last event J. J. Wood and his crew on the Tige narrowly escaped injury when the mast of the craft snapped near the deck in a stiff southwest breeze. The summary:

I.-A. A. C. WINS GAMES OF SCOTTISH CLANS

Gwinn Henry Again Takes Measure of Jim Rosenberger in Sprint Race.

In spite of the excessive heat yesterday at Celtic Park, L. I., the annual games and carnival of the United Scottish Clans of New York proved a great success. The programme included a fine list of athletic competitions, drills, and dances, and 5,000 spectators were entertained with a good entertainment.

The team of the Irish-American A. C. ran away with the point banner by making a score of 57 points.

Gwinn Henry, who on last Saturday defeated Jim Rosenberger at Pittsburg for the 100-yard title, again proved that he is the best sprinter at present when he captured first place in the 120-yard scratch run. Rosenberger, Cloughen, and Dorland were the other starters in the event. From the crack of the gun the quartet began the fight for the tape, and when about half way up the stretch "Rosie" was abreast of Henry in the opposite lane. In the dash for the tape the Texan flier virtually threw himself over the worsted, and won by only inches.

The two-mile relay, in which only two teams entered, proved an easy win for the Irish-American quartet over their opponents, the four representing the Morris A. C. The event was a handicap, and the Winged Fist runners were virtually scratch, starting from the forty-one-yard mark, with the Morris team on the 205-yard mark.

In each of the relays the representatives of the home organization managed to cut down the lead of their adversaries, and when the anchor chase was taken up by Mel Sheppard the National half-miler was confronted with an easy task, as his opponent, E. Newman, was sent off with a start of only fifteen yards.

"Shep" took matters easy and ran with a measured stride which brought him up to the heels of the leader before they passed the finish of the first quarter. All the way to the turn Sheppard followed close behind Newman in the last quarter and when about 90 yards from the finish increased his speed and came up to the tape in fine shape by more than 20 yards. The last half mile of the distance was covered by Sheppard in 1:59.

The three-mile run was the most gruelling of the day and with the intense heat many of the starters found the pace too hot for them and retired. H. McDermott of the Irish-American A. C., who was placed on the liberal mark of 215 yards, made the running from the start and although nearly exhausted managed to last until the end, where he won handily from R. Springsteen of the Yonkers Y. M. C. A.

In the hammer throw P. Ryan of the Winged Fist Club got first place with a throw of 171 feet 8 inches, and Sheridan squeezed in for third with a throw of 126 feet 10 inches.

Only three starters were seen in the two-thirds of a mile scratch run. They were Joe Bromilow, Billy Monument and R. J. Egan, all of the Irish-American A. C. The trio started out on the run as if it were to be a Marathon and jogged around leisurely for the half. In the last part of the run they sprinted a bit and Bromilow came in first with plenty to spare over Monument, who was second nearly 20 yards behind him. The summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap—Won by H. Faber, Irish-American A. C. (3½ yards); C. Hansen, Fast Side House (7 yards), second; J. Waldman, Pastime A. C. (6 yards), third. Time, 0:10.

WOLGAST KNOCKS OUT OWEN MORAN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—The measured swing of Referee Welch's arm tolling off the ten seconds over the writhing body of Owen Moran of England brought victory to Ad Wolgast in the thirteenth round of to-day's international battle with the lightweight championship hanging in the balance. It was a clean-cut knockout, and the decisive victory was earned by the rugged strength and punishing power of the champion.

Right uppercuts to the stomach, followed by a left hook to the jaw, forced the game little English fighter to take the count for the first time in his eleven years in the ring. Moran came up undistressed for the unlucky thirteenth round, although it was plain he was tiring. Wolgast met him with a well-timed rush and forced his way to close quarters. Moran checked him with a left jab, but was backed against the ropes in his own corner. Suddenly Wolgast whipped his right arm free from the clinch, and swinging from his hip sent his glove crashing three times to the pit of Moran's stomach.

Moran's face whitened and twisted with agony under the smear of blood from his cut lips. He groped blindly to smother the smashing blows, then his knees gave under him, and he slipped from Wolgast's grasp to the brown canvas that covered the ring.

The champion whipped over a left hook to the jaw as Moran fell, but it was not needed. Moran rolled on his side and his legs scrambled for a footing, but his mouth was open and his eyes rolled back, and the shouting seconds brought no meaning to his deadened senses. It was several minutes before he regained consciousness.

As Wolgast turned to his corner, more firmly planted than ever on the lightweight throne, a grin flashed across his bleeding lips, and he plucked with his gloved hands at the American flag he wore about his waist. In a second he was smothered in the throng of admirers, who surged into the ring, untied the battle-scarred flag, and waved it over Wolgast's head.

Moran's seconds entered a claim of foul, but the blows in question were plainly seen from the ringside and the protest was disallowed.

Never for a moment during the battle did the terrific pace slacken. The American carried the fight to his opponent from the first tap of the gong, as Moran was never able to keep him at long range. It was in the clinches that the champion showed to best advantage. Moran was unable to perfect a defense against the short, ripping right uppercuts. Wolgast worked to his ribs, and the "loop-the-loop" punch, a right uppercut to the face outside his own left arm, snapped the Britisher's head back repeatedly and kept his mouth bleeding from the first round.

At long range Moran clearly outpointed the Michigan boy, and his clever ducking and foot work extricated him from many a tight corner. It was a battle of a clever and experienced boxer against a tearing, ripping fighter, and the fighter weathered the storm with never a sign of distress.

It was a rough fight from the start. As the first round opened Moran came willingly to close quarters but was met with a volley of short lefts to the face and a right uppercut that brought blood from his lips. It was the champion's round by a wide margin, and Moran came back for the second with instructions to stay away. With wonderful judgment of distance he slipped away from Wolgast's vicious swings, flashing in with clean-cut lefts and rights as the champion opened up. It was Moran's round and he continued to pursue the same tactics throughout the fight. When forced to close quarters in the third Moran fought back viciously. They roughed it head to head, Wolgast working his right to the kidneys and body and Moran ripping his left hand and forearm into Ad's chin and face and holding the champion even. Both were bleeding when the round closed. Moran seemed to gain confidence as the fight progressed. Shifting in and out as lithe as a panther he landed repeatedly throughout the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds, rocking Ad's head with hard, clean punches, and making Wolgast look almost like an amateur by the way he avoided his swings. His cleverness brought frequent applause, but he never stopped Wolgast's steady advance, and Wolgast was plainly the stronger, laughing and nodding to friends among the spectators between the rounds.

In the seventh Wolgast forced the Englishman to the ropes, where they fought toe to toe until parted by the Referee, Moran having all the better of the exchange, but Wolgast evened matters before the round was over by his wicked uppercuts. Wolgast bored in, and although Owen crossed his right often to Ad's head in the eighth and ninth rounds, he was unable to stop him or slow the furious pace, and seemed to be weakening fast.

His seconds worked desperately over him and he came up in the tenth and eleventh rounds with a burst of speed that fairly smothered Wolgast. Timing every blow to perfection, he whipped in rights and lefts, landing straight lefts, right hooks and swings with a speed and force that slowed the champion for the first time. He fought himself out of close quarters as Wolgast attempted to clinch, and beat the champion to numberless punches in the exchange.

His effort was but a flash in the pan, however. Wolgast, strong as an ox, came in eagerly for more in the twelfth, and while Moran continued to land the more often, Wolgast loosened his teeth and started a fresh stream of blood from his mouth, and the Englishman went to his corner in distress. But thirty-three seconds of the thirteenth round passed before the rally came that dimmed Moran's hopes of becoming lightweight champion.

In his dressing room after the fight Wolgast said:

"It was easy all the way. I would have had the decision if the fight had gone to the end. Moran's claim that I fouled him is foolish. He went down because he could not hold on any longer. I pitted him in the stomach five times, all fair, square blows, and then clipped his jaw. That's all there was to it."

RIVERS DEFEATS COSTER.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 4.—Joe Rivers, a local featherweight Mexican, attained pugilistic prominence by giving Joe Coster of Brooklyn a terrific beating through twelve rounds of a twenty-round fight at Vernon to-day. In the twelfth round the New Yorker was down for the count of nine, the bell saving him, and when the gong rang for the thirteenth Coster's seconds gave up the fight. Coster was outclassed by the Mexican and landed less than a dozen blows. These had no steam behind them.

Rivers knocked Coster through the ropes twice in the tenth round and only the latter's unbreakable grip around Rivers's waist saved a knockout.

RECORD CROWD AT DEAL.

Three Events Attract Many Golfers to Course.

Three events attracted one of the largest crowds to the Deal Golf and Country Club yesterday ever known in the history of the organization. It was said that a fuller membership had visited the club in the last four days than at any other time since the club was formed. Owing to the club rule that all players having cards of 76 or less, or multiples thereof, are considered as tied, seven players finished on even terms in the thirty-six-hole medal play handicap. In the ball sweepstakes J. P. Gillespie led the field in Class A with 92, 14—78, while J. C. Vander Oudermeulen and H. H. Sutton topped the list in the B set with 96, 24—72 and 95, 23—72 respectively.

In the Independence Day flag contest, in which the handicap of a player was added to the par of the course, 74, and the player taking the total strokes thus ascertained, Vander Oudermeulen finished the farthest from the first tee, planting the flag bearing his name within ten yards of the nineteenth green. H. H. Sutton was only twenty yards behind the leader, and S. C. Lounsberry was 100 yards behind. The scores follow:

36-Hole Medal Play, Handicap.—H. H. Sutton, 192, 46—146; S. D. Lounsberry, 169, 20—149; Fred Pring, 194, 44—150; J. C. Vander Oudermeulen, 199, 48—151; W. W. Peabody, Jr., 199, 48—151; M. C. Kiggins, 190, 38—152; W. P. Foss, 194, 42—152; J. H. Haggerty, 193, 38—155; John E. Kelley, 184, 28—156; J. T. Gillespie, 184, 28—156; MacIntosh Kellogg, 198, 40—158; J. T. Hettrick, 188, 30—158; H. A. Watson, 205, 46—159; A. E. Allsop, 180, 20—160; A. J. McClure, 181, 20—161; R. E. Larendon, 185, 24—161; J. E. Conklin, 205, 42—163; C. H. Rosenfeld, 196, 32—164; J. G. Turner, 173, 8—165; W. V. Conover, 173, 8—165; P. W. Kendall, 173, 8—165; George A. Burd, 192, 26—166; Paul E. Heller, 188, 22—166.

Ball Sweepstakes, Class A.—J. T. Gillespie, 92, 14—78; J. P. McFadden, 94, 15—79; J. J. Radel, 86, 7—79; A. E. Alsopp, 90, 10—80; P. W. Kendall, 85, 4—81; J. B. Turner, Jr., 86, 4—82; R. E. Larendon, 95, 12—83; V. R. Black, 100, 17—83; J. T. Hettrick, 98, 15—83.

Class B.—J. B. Vander Oudermeulen, 96, 24—72; H. H. Sutton, 95, 23—72; W. P. Foss, 95, 21—74; M. Kellogg, 94, 20—74; H. Borneman, Jr., 101, 26—75; H. MacKenzie, 97, 21—76; Fred Pring, 96, 20—76; J. Henry Haggerty, 97, 19—78; M. C. Kiggins, 98, 19—79; W. W. Peabody, Jr., 103, 24—79; J. E. Conklin, 104, 21—83; F. J. Gubelman, 107, 24-83; W. E. Pulsifer, 105, 22-83.

The members of the Canoe Brook Country Club turned out in force yesterday for their holiday golf. The main contest was a thirty-six-hole handicap, selected eighteen to count, and resulted in Howard Gee carrying off the prize with a 71—1—70. Gee also won the morning sweepstakes with the same score, T. E. Hoffman getting second place with 75—3—72. The afternoon "sweep" was won by A. G. Feuchtwanger. The scores of the leaders in the selected handicap were as follows: Howard Gee, 71—1—70; T. E. Hoffman, 75—3—72; A. G. Feuchtwanger, 76—4—72; J. D. Whittock, 80—7—73; J. A. Higson, 77—4—73; A. C. Rearick, 80—5—75; W. R. Fraser, 79—3—76; R. R. Bamber, 86—7—79.

Whether or not Kid Henry, the colored middleweight of Albany, is the real wonder in the ring that he is said to be will be demonstrated to-morrow night at the National Sporting Club, where he boxes Young Loughrey, who has just come back from abroad, where he won many fights from good men in Paris. Henry, however, is said to be one of the best in the ring to-day, and none of the men whom he has taken on so far have been able to give him a real fight. Sailor Burke found five rounds long enough to stick against Henry and then went down and out; and Jack "Twin" Sullivan and Jeff Smith were each beaten by him. If young Loughrey can withstand the rushes of this latest negro scrapper the bout Thursday night should be a fine one.

PATERSON PLAYS GOOD CRICKET.

Contrary to general expectations, the inter-State match between the Metropolitan District Cricket League and the New Jersey State Cricket League yesterday at Paterson resulted in an easy victory for the New Jersey team by a margin of 60 runs. This is the first victory scored by the Jerseymen in the inter-State series in many years, and proved to be decidedly popular to the large number of spectators gathered at the grounds at East Side Park.

The intercity game played between the New York Veterans and the West Philadelphia Club, played at West New Brighton, resulted in an easy win for the New York team by a margin of 163 runs. The Veterans batted first, and ran up a score of 208, and then disposed of the Philadelphians for 45. F. F. Kelly did the best batting for the Veterans, with an innings of 50.

One-sided and easy victories were the order in the games played at Prospect Park yesterday. The chief game was that played between the Manhattan and Columbia Oval teams, which was easily won by the latter by 82 runs. The totals were: Manhattan, 104; Columbia Oval, 186.

The West Indian team defeated the Jamaicans by 115 runs, the totals being 148 to 33. This was due mainly to the good bowling of A. Clarke and H. Holder, who captured 4 wickets for 8 runs and 5 for 15, respectively.

The Orients had as opponents the Colonial first eleven and deeated them by 41 runs, with totals of 115 to 74. F. Austin, N. Willoughby, and J. Taitt all scored over 20, while the two last named and W. Drayton carried off the bowling honors for the winners.

The Veterans C. C. lost to the Britannias by 86 runs, with totals of 18 to 104. W. Smith bowled in excellent style for the Britannia team, capturing 5 wickets for but 3 runs. For the Veterans, A. Sobers captured 4 wickets for 32 runs.

The match between the New York County Club and the second eleven of the Colonials was won by the former by 94 runs. J. Thibon bowled well for the winners, his record being 6 wickets for 10 runs, while C. Brown secured 3 for 6.

The good bowling of H. R. Nicoll and F. A. W. Ireland proved a factor toward the victory of the Staten Island Club over the Kings County eleven in their match at Livingston yesterday. Nicoll disposed of 7 Kings County players for the small total of 37 runs. The totals were: Kings County, 62; Staten Island, 144.

Handicap at Wee Burn.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 4.—A thirty-six-hole handicap for Greens Committee prizes was the event at Wee Burn to-day. The best eighteen holes counted. W. P. Sears with a net score of 69, was the winner in Class A and C. B. Castle, with 62, was the winner in Class B. The cards:

Class A.—W. P. Sears, 81, 12—69; F. N. Adams, 88, 16—72; J. H. Knapp, 88, 16—72; Dr. Gerret Smith, 87, 14—73; W. D. MacDonald, 79, 6—73; Charlton Wallace, 85, 12—73; Chester Selleck, 81, 6—75; Dr. Frederick Schavoir, 90, 12—78; E. L. Scofield, 97, 16—81; C. W. Gordon, 93, 10—83; F. A. Lockwood, 101, 18—83.

At New Cannan Club, the chief golf event to-day was the match play for the Independence Cup. R. F. Tilney was the winner. In the semi-finals Marshall Stearns beat J. S. Ellsworth, 4 up and 3 to play, and Mr. Tilney beat W. N. Flanders, 2 up. Mr. Tilney beat Mr. Stearns, 4 up and 3 to play in the finals.

Special Cup Handicap.

Good Card for Archie Reid.

Archie Reid was the winner of the thirty-six holes medal play handicap at the St. Andrew's Golf Club yesterday, with 147—2—145. The former Hudson River champion went out in 73 and returned in 74. A. C. Pickhardt was second with 158—10—148.

Governor Sanctions Fights.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 4.—Professional boxing was rehabilitated in this city to-day after Gov. Hadley had personally assured himself that the law was not being violated by the Mozart Club, under the auspices of which several bouts were scheduled.

The visit of the Governor, who was accompanied by the Chief of Detectives and a Police Captain, was unexpected. On information supplied by the officers, who told him their investigation disclosed no violation of the statutes, Gov. Hadley sanctioned the fights. These were all on a restricted scale, only club members being permitted to witness them, the number of rounds being limited to six, without a decision, and the fighters being paid a stipulated sum for their services. The Governor declined an invitation to watch the fights, which were between local men.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The winds above Mount Weather, Va., during the last two days, including Tuesday, have been from the north, northeast. On Tuesday there was very light drift of the lower layers up to about 3,000 feet from the southeast, but there has not been at any time during the continuance of the hot spell any evidence that high temperatures are due to an importation of warm southerly winds. On July 4 temperature at surface was 86 degrees, and at little more than a mile aloft it was 64 degrees, and the wind northeast.

The heat wave continues unabated in the Middle Atlantic States and New England, the Ohio and Upper Mississippi Valleys, and from South Dakota to Northern Texas.

Moderate temperatures now prevail along the Northern border, on the Pacific Coast, and in the Rocky Mountain region and the South Atlantic and East Gulf States.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms have occurred in the Atlantic States from Virginia southward. A barometric depression from the Canadian Northwest will advance slowly eastward, and it is probable that within the next thirty-six to forty-eight hours it will cause areas of cloudiness and scattered thundershowers over the Atlantic and Gulf States, but it is not probable that any decided moderation of the warm wave will result. From the Mississippi Valley eastward the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and probably Thursday, without marked change in temperature.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have moderate, variable winds, mostly west, and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday, except probably local thundershowers; not quite so warm in interior; light, variable winds, mostly south.

New England—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday, except probably local thundershowers; not quite so warm, except stationary temperature in Southeast Maine; light, variable winds, mostly south.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair and continued warm Wednesday and Thursday, except probably local thundershowers; light to moderate south winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

THE FEDERAL INCOME TAX.

If the Assembly makes good the threat with which it adjourned it will take up the Federal income tax amendment when it reassembles. It is lost labor to revive the arguments that the amendment is unfit to pass on account of its form, but it hardly seems that sufficient weight has been given to the fact that after all it is a Federal tax. A New York income tax might have something to recommend it if it were devoted to building the enlarged canals, or reduced the good roads tax, or even went toward reducing generally the impending State deficit. Nobody knows what use the Federal Government will make of the income tax which will be collected so largely from New York. Perhaps it will go toward paying the pensions, or toward building railways which private capital has been discourged from providing in Alaska, or other admirable objects of Federal expense which seem remote from New York enjoyment.

It is a singular thing that those who would not dare to propose an income tax for New York uses are eager to support an income tax for purposes which nobody can trace to a New York beneficiary. Of course nobody enjoys paying any tax, but many enjoy making others pay regardless of the uses to which the proceeds of the tax may be applied. This is the explanation of the mystery of the strength of the Federal income tax. It is not a tax for needed revenue, but a tax for politics, and revenge upon the rich. It is ordered when there is a Federal surplus and no demand upon patriotism to support any meritorious object of National Government. It is a fraud as an economic measure, and will be a nuisance which long will plague those responsible for it when its hardships are experienced. It would be a delightful surprise if a way were found to overlook it, or better yet to defeat it once more. It may be possible that this Legislature thinks that it will not have done enough for obloquy without passing this meretricious Federal income tax.

THE LORDS AND THE REFERENDUM.

Tory Peers are certainly queer. An amendment to the Parliament bill was introduced on Monday which practically provided for the referendum in regard to the bill before it could take actual effect. Whereupon Lord LANSDOWNE, leader of the Conservatives, joined with the Government leader to kill the amendment.

Yet it is plain that the principle of the referendum is the only thing that the Lords can rely on for a justification of their political function, or even existence. It is a long time since they have wielded or really claimed power to do more than call a halt on important measures, until the real purpose of the country could be ascertained. The way used to ascertain that purpose has heretofore been clumsy and defective. Sometimes, as in the case of GLADSTONE's home rule bill, there has been a general election. Sometimes the Lords have been sustained or opposed in a certain number of bye-elections, and the decision thus reached has been accepted as adequate. But in both these methods the result is necessarily indefinite and confused. On the other hand, if the Lords had the recognized authority, under proper restrictions, to require a distinct vote of the country on any one measure, it would have a very sobering influence on the Commons, and on the Peers as well.

In the case of no measure could the exercise of such authority be more clearly proper than in that of the Parliament bill, which proposes a radical change in the Constitution, a change that, by every possible theory of the British system, should have direct, clear, and complete sanction of the electors. But the change has never been submitted to the people by itself. It does not even command, on its merits, a majority of the House of Commons, where the Government is dependent on a coalition with the Irish Nationalists, who don't care a rap for the House of Lords except as opponents of home rule. It might be supposed that the Conservative Lords would jump at a chance to go on record in favor of the referendum, which would give them specifically and completely the right of appeal to the country, which is the only right worth anything that they can lay any claim to. In rejecting it they go a good way to justify the attempt to reduce them to "innocuous desuetude."

THE OLD TWEED QUESTION AGAIN.

In 1811 the City Hall, the centenary of which was celebrated yesterday, stood in the city's one notable park, its principal pleasure ground. Since that time every park acquired by New York has been an object of attack. A vast and ever-growing army of park destroyers has existed and still exists. the sight of a vacant spot owned by the municipality inevitably suggests a new building to a certain reprehensible type of citizen. When Castle Garden had outlived its usefulness as a concert hall it should have been removed and the space it filled thrown into Battery Park. But it was converted into an emigrant station. Battery Park was further injured by the needless intrusion of the Barge Office and the elevated railroads. In 1861 the lower half of City Hall Park was used for soldiers' barracks. The part thus laid waste was afterward transferred by the Tweed Ring to the Federal Government as the site of that architectural monstrosity, the Mullet Post Office. The Tweed Court House, a monument to the malice, ignorance, and greed of its era, was also erected in City Hall Park. The reply to the complaint of protesting citizens was "What are you going to do about it?" The citizens have the same question to answer to-day, in the dawning of the second century of City Hall Park.

The Mullet Post Office can soon be removed. The Tweed Court House must go. There is a chance to restore and preserve City Hall Park as a civic centre, with the handsome old City Hall in its centre as a lasting monument. But today is appointed for a snap hearing by the Mayor on the Stilwell bill passed by a snap vote by the Assembly to locate a huge new Court House in the park. A few sturdy men of large civic pride will attend the hearing to protest against this defiance of the will of the people. But the advocates of the Stilwell bill are numerous and influential. What are you going to do about it?

Every newspaper in this city has protested against this outrage. A good site for the new law courts has been selected near the new Municipal Building. The Bar Association, the City Club, and every important civic society oppose the building of the new Court House in the park. Mr. GROSVENOR ATTERBURY, who has been one of the foremost opponents of the park invasion, delivered an eloquent address at yesterday's celebration on the City Hall as an example of good architecture which should be preserved. It cannot be preserved for long if the huge Court House is to surround it. The Board of Aldermen passed a resolution yesterday favoring the preservation of the City Hall as a historic monument, and protesting against further encroachment of the park surrounding it. This is, indeed, encouraging.

But the Aldermen as a body have no voice in the selection of the Court House site, and the Legislature has played the people false in this matter. Only the citizens themselves, by vigorous and united action, can keep the law courts out of City Hall Park. What are you going to do about it?

THE RIDICULOUS INSURGENTS.

The President and his Cabinet have left Washington for pleasanter places, but Congress cannot go. To-day it must reassemble to hear the insurgents debate reciprocity. The day before the Senate adjourned over the Fourth Senator CUMMINS was ready to have the vote taken on his amendments, and his brother Senators chaffed him about his readiness to have them sent to sleep beside Senator ROOT's. "I found no one who wanted to speak," explained Senator CUMMINS.

He meant, of course, that he found nobody who wanted to listen. He perceives that the President has the country's ear, as he had already perceived that the insurgents have lost the ear of the Senate. Exactly two Democrats and five Republicans were seen in the Senate during one recent session upon reciprocity. It is safe to say that this is more than will listen to the speech of a week or so which Senator LA FOLLETTE threatens to make. He thinks himself the Republican Casabianca. If it were not contempt of the Senate, it might be suggested that his superserviceableness resembles rather that of the excellent MARCELLINE. It would surprise him if he knew how well the show would proceed without him.

Addressing the Chautauqua circuit the Senator is an object of terror. This is the real reason why the Senate sits while the country laughs. Otherwise the Senate would give the insurgents leave to print, and proceed to the votes which must come at last. But this makes the Senate ridiculous instead of the insurgents, and the longer the comedy runs the more farcical it becomes. If the Senate wants to see itself as others see it, it can find faithful reflections in the mirror of almost any newspaper columns, irrespective of politics. When the Senate once gets a good glimpse of itself in that looking glass the voting will be ordered forthwith.

PROGRESS AT AMHERST.

It was announced at the commencement exercises of Amherst College last week that several changes and improvements had become possible within the past year, which are quite in the spirit of the suggestions of the Committee of the Class of 1885 that have awakened so much interest and discussion. We note an inclination to question whether these are due to the report of that committee, or to the initiative of the Trustees and Faculty of the college. That is not a matter of much interest even to the alumni of Amherst, and of none whatever to the general public. The new features and the modification of old features are good in themselves, and all who care for the development of education along the most promising lines will follow the experience of Amherst hopefully.

The most important announcement is that of the completion of a fund for the purpose of paying better salaries to professors. The fund is $400,000 and will yield about $15,000 annual revenue. In the report of the Committee of the Class of '85 figures were given showing that the average expenditures of thirty-nine members of the Faculty exceeded their income from salary by $635 a year. This, it will be noted, for the number of professors reporting amounts to nearly $25,000, so that it may be said, broadly, that the income of the new fund would actually meet about two-thirds of the deficit suffered by this number. In the light of such facts, the provision is not extravagant, or even fairly adequate. But it has the supreme advantage of being a generous beginning along right lines. Beyond doubt, the results to be obtained from the use of it in the way in which it is sure to be raised will incite the friends of the college to further effort.

It was also announced by President HARRIS that the science degree will not be given after the next two years, and that steps have been and will be taken to strengthen instruction in the classical course. This is in the line of concentration upon that general culture, based primarily on classical training, which a college organized as Amherst is can best give, and with which training for a scientific degree, while necessarily in itself relatively defective, must more or less interfere. We regard it as a sound measure. Not that we do not see the pressing need for more and better training in science in its various branches—a need that is bound to grow with time, and one that should be met with the utmost care, energy, and foresight. But that is a need which no small college can really begin to meet unless its work be confined to science. And along with that need there is another just as urgent, just as sure to grow, the need for a broad, thorough, and balanced general culture for which right training in the language, literature, and thought of Greece and Rome is the best-known foundation.

A striking example of what is being undertaken in this direction is the engagement for a course of lectures next Spring of Prof. GILBERT MURRAY of Oxford. No "classical" scholar of the English-speaking race has done more than GILBERT MURRAY to make the study of Greek and of Greece a living thing, to make real to his readers and students that vital chain of continuity which binds the past to the present and the future, and enables men to see the life of the past in its relation to the development of the race. He knows his Greece as he knows his England, and in rare degree enables us to know it, and Greek is no more "dead" for him than German or French, no more isolated or barren of immediate and intimate interest. It can hardly be expected of Amherst that it will be able, certainly not within a long time, to organize its instruction and training in accordance with the standard indicated by the engagement of this remarkable scholar, but the engagement is extremely significant and promising. We have now at Amherst a substantial measure of progress in the direction of better payment of professors, concentration on general culture, and advance in the scope and character of classical training. These are in the direct line of the suggestions made by the Committee of the Class of '85. Whether they are in consequence of these suggestions is, as we have said, a matter of no general interest. The authors of the report and friends of sound education generally can take satisfaction in them.

MR. TAFT'S ENDURANCE.

One cannot help wondering at the endurance of the President in his journey to Indiana. While most of us reduced our exertions to the lowest possible point, and felt oppressed and injured if we were forced beyond the artificial breezes of electric fans, he was varying the tortures of a torrid railway car by a series of a dozen speeches made under the most trying conditions.

Our own admiration at the big man's toughness in such exhausting exercise is tempered with serious disapproval of his rashness. His health and life are precious to the country. He is engaged in a big job of great value and promise, which he has carried to a marvelous stage of advancement. Undoubtedly such words of clear sense and sound humanity as he is scattering at every point in his journey, on the subject of peace, exert an appreciable good influence. His task depends on the support of his countrymen, and he strengthens that support whenever he speaks in public. But in such exertions as those he has been making the last two days, he runs a grave risk of utterly disabling himself. Clearly, that would not pay. It is true that he is carrying out a project formed when present conditions did not exist, and though their occurrence was probable enough, they were not taken into account. He is naturally reluctant to disappoint those included in the plans, or to break any engagement. But surely the heat that scorches the land and the people thereof just now may be held to meet all ordinary obligations.

A NEW NITROGEN DISCOVERY.

Crops of grains, potatoes, and other food plants, that are not leguminous, are limited by the amount of nitrates in the soil. It has long been known that alfalfa, clovers, peas, beans, and vetches manufacture their own fertilizing nitrates by means of bacteria attached to their roots that extract the nitrogen from the air. Soils have been enriched by sowings of legumes and the consequent crops of grain and other foods have been increased both in quantity and in their percentage of protein, which is the tissue-building substance of food. The Scientific American of July 1 calls attention to the researches of T. L. LYON and JAMES A. BIZZELL of the Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station, showing that not only may the soil be stored with nitrogen compounds by turning under the leguminous growths for future crops, but "the growth of legumes may also furnish nitrogenous food to other plants growing with them," and "then influence the nitrification of the soil besides."

Enlightened farmers will, hereafter, mix with their sowings of timothy and oats the seed of alfalfa, red clover, and peas. Messrs. LYON and BIZZELL increase the percentage of protein in timothy from 12.75 to 15.56 by sowing it with alfalfa and from 17.19 to 24.56 by mixing its seeds with red clover. Similar gratifying increases in protein content were obtained by mixing oats with peas:

POUNDS OF HAY PER ACRE.

Once the nitrification begins in the soil it may continue long after the leguminous crop has been harvested. This was shown by testing samples of soil removed from fields where leguminous and non-leguminous crops had been grown, and comparing the rate of nitrification in each. The researches at Cornell seem to have yielded practical results of great value to the country's agricultural interests.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Refused to be Reformed.

In that highly authoritative and reputable journal, The London Lancet, is sadly told a truly lamentable tale about the National Church of Scotland. It seems that at the recent General Assemly of that body Prof. CURTIS of Aberdeen called the attention of the other delegates to the fact that two widely circulated periodicals issued under its direct sanction and control not only sell much of their advertising space to the manufacturers of patent medicines but give them long "reading notices" in other columns.

This sort of puffing, he said, told heavily on the poor, since they were, not unnaturally, much impressed by commendation of the "remedies" coming from a source thought to be so respectable. The professor made no graver charge against the nostrums thus advertised than that they were sold for prices enormously above their value, but he emphasized this peculiarity by mentioning one combination of aloes, ginger, and soap that cost the makers about one-fourth of a penny and retailed at fifty times as much. He argued at length that the dignity of the Church suffered when it made money in this way, but other speakers did not hesitate to declare that the papers in question could not live without the income from patent medicine advertisements or to demand that their business affairs be left to the discretion of their managers.

The outcome of the discussion was the defeat by a large majority of Prof. CURTIS's resolution to exclude from the Church papers "all advertisements of secret or patent remedies of a medical or quasi-medical description, in order that the disinterestedness and Christian character of accredited organs of the Church might be above suspicion in that respect." The Lancet's comment on the episode: "And so the National Church of Scotland is made to connive at, if not to condone, a practice not only discountenanced but pointedly condemned by its sister profession as hurtful to the community, individually and collectively, especially to the poor."

The religious papers of the United States, which used to be among the greatest of sinners as the advertisers, and therefore the accomplices of quacks, have now so much mended their ways that few of them remain open to severe criticism on this score. Whether the change was due to the awakened consciences of their business managers or to the protests of medically enlightened readers, is not recorded. Neither is it recorded that the reform resulted in any journalistic mortalities.

Why Wear White in Summer?

Such weather as that of the past three days leads to a general putting off of as many heavy garments as a liberal interpretation of the proprieties will permit, and the substitution for them of others lighter in color as well as in weight. Women clothe themselves in white and men in some approximation to it. Both believe this to be the best dress for tropic temperatures, and however hot they may be when thus garbed think they would be hotter still in any other color.

This is almost certainly a mistake. Among animals white coverings of fur or feathers are the almost invariable wear not in the tropics but in the arctic regions. They are rare in the temperate zones, and practically unknown in lands where the sun is fierce. This cannot be accidental, and there must be in it a lesson worth heeding. Probably our association of coolness with whiteness is due to the fact that white cloth is usually thin cloth, and the thinness counts for more than the color. There is, however, no reason why cloth cannot be both thin and dark, and of such cloth the coolest garments could unquestionably be made, though it would be many a year before they would look coolest, or enable suggestion to work its mighty spell and give the illusion of comparative comfort.

The army has discovered by actual thermometer tests that blue or yellow tents show a difference of interior temperature amounting sometimes to full 10 degrees when standing beside white ones in the full blaze of the southern sun. Down in Panama all the "administration" houses, barracks, and shops are painted almost black, and the occupants have already lost the feeling that this color is lugubrious because they have learned that black houses are cool, or at least cooler, than those of any other color, and that white houses are the hottest of all.

It must be noted, too, that white reflects or transmits the short length, or actinic, light rays, while the darker tints do it either not at all or to a less extent. Those are the rays, we know, that cause the dermatitis known as "sunburn," and there are excellent reasons for believing that from them, rather than from the heat rays, come most of our Summer sufferings. As regards the "lesson" of the animals there is some force in the suggestion that their colors are largely to conceal the wearers from other animals, their prey or their enemies, but polar bears wouldn't wear white if it didn't keep them warm, or lions and tigers yellow if it didn't facilitate the radiation of their own heat.

Children May be Misled.

One cannot avoid the suspicion that in his Fourth of July letter to the public school children, Mayor GAYNOR was talking, not to these little ones, but over their heads and at their elders. In his opinion, as is well known, too many of us grown-ups have too often expected him to do things for which he could not find warrant in the letter of the law, but we do not remember that the school children have ever grieved or offended him in this way.

Oh, well! whatever the direction of the Mayor's brief sermon, there's no doubt about the soundness of the doctrine that ours is a government of laws, not of men, and that arbitrary exercises of power are reprehensible. But there is some danger that the children, who, poor things, are much more subject to men—and women—than to law, and who feel hardly any power which is not, so far as they can see, quite arbitrary, and if not illegal, unreasonable, may be incited to rebellion by the Mayor's letter and begin to question the authority of their teachers and of their parents dear.

Children are not beaten as much nowadays as they used to be, but their desires are constantly thwarted, their actions constantly coerced on no law or principle more definite or better established than the dubious one that papa or mamma, as the case may be, knows best. It is just possible, therefore, that the Mayor's letter may have an effect the reverse of what he intended it to have, and make both present and future discipline harder to enforce.

SULLIVAN-SHORTT BILLS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many misleading statements, it seems to me, have been made about the proposed gradual reduction of the rate of taxation on buildings until it reaches one-half the rate of taxation on land, as provided in the Sullivan-Shortt bills now pending at Albany.

A particular misapprehension, upon which I feel qualified to speak because of twenty-five years continuous experience in the business of placing mortgage loans, is that relating to the possible effect of the bills, if enacted, upon mortgage securities. President Allan Robinson of the Allied Real Estate Interests, referring to the bill, says:

"It would reduce the borrowing capacity of the city, which is based upon real estate assessments, and it would cause the calling in of mortgage upon a large scale."

There are two gloomy predictions in this statement, and it is hard to imagine a foundation for either of them in the proposed legislation. Reflection must induce the conclusion that the tendency of reducing the tax burdens upon buildings must be to encourage production of more buildings, and, indeed, this view of the matter is taken by many opponents of the bills, who contend that their effect in law would be to cause the production of too many buildings—an absurdity that I am not aiming to deal with now. How the production of more buildings, which under the law must be fully assessed if not fully taxed, is going to reduce the borrowing capacity of the city, is hard to see.

Why anybody who holds a good mortgage on a dwelling house or any other improved property in the city should cancel it in view of the proposed law is equally hard to figure out. The building ordinarily constitutes one-half to two-thirds of the security of the mortgage, since in the average instance the land value is but one-half to one-third of the building valuation. To say that removing a part of the tax burdens upon buildings would reduce the value of buildings as security for loans would be obviously absurd.

As to the tendency of the proposed law to reduce land values I am unable to see that, either, so far at least as it relates to the value of land upon which buildings are erected.

C. O'CONNOR HENNESSY.

I do not think your correspondent in this morning's issue, speaking of the "baffled will to sleep," is quite correct.

He says the authorities care little, whereas I think the authorities care a great deal. Commissioner Edwards is constantly receiving abuse when he should receive support in his efforts. He is doing the best he can, and is entitled to the co-operation and aid that is essential to give us a quiet city. He is laboring constantly to that end, but needs the assistance of all interested.

Let us all see that he gets it. A. W.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to add my thanks to those of the many who rise up to call THE TIMES blessed for its good work in giving us a sane Fourth. Will it not add to our gratitude, and help us to convince Commissioner Edwards that although a dustless city is desirable, it is too dear a luxury if we pay for it with sleepless nights? At 12:30 A. M., awakened by the noise and odors of the reeking garbage carts; at 2 A. M. by the clatter of the ashes, glass, and tin cans being dumped into the ash cart; at 4 A. M. by the milkman—when is the poor New Yorker, obliged to remain in town these hot Summer nights, supposed to get his sleep? VICTIM.

The Russian Passport.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would appear to the judgment of an ordinary layman that the present-day agitation about the Russian passport question is, if intrinsically noble and meritorious, at least illtimed at the present state of feeling, both official as well as unofficial, in Russia. No less a personage than the Finance Minister of that empire has recently given it as his opinion to your correspondent that the Jews "had no right to expect justice at the hands of the Government," being "that they behaved so badly during both the late war and rebellion," and as we see with our own eyes all the hideousness of the reaction in Russia, the revival of obsolete laws against the Jews, the merciless repression of the last hope of freedom and spark of manhood in the breasts of these unfortunates, the renewed expulsions and exclusion from schools, not excluding even the revival of the mediaeval "blood accusation," what chance of acceptance, pray, has the passport agitation of bearing any fruit when the officials are in such a mood?

ZIONISTS GREET GAYNOR.

Join in Fourth of July Celebration and Choose Officers.

TANNERSVILLE, N. Y., July 4.—The Federation of American Zionists in convention here adopted resolutions this morning sending greetings to Mayor Gaynor of New York. All of the Zionists took part in a safe and sane Fourth of July celebration held here.

The following officers were elected: President, Dr. Harry Friedenwald, Baltimore; Secretary, Bernard Rosenblatt, New York; Chairman of the Executive Committee, Louis Lipsky, New York; Administrative Council, Simon Abel, Abraham Goldberg, New York; Executive Committee, Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnes, A. A. Fromenson, Victor Schwartz, Max Brodsky, Meyer Krimsky, all of New York; National Advisory Board, Louis Levin, Baltimore, Abraham Kolinsky, Cleveland, Abraham Baylies, Rochester, Dr. Nusbaum, Philadelphia, Louis J. Freed, San Antonio, M. I. Eisenberg, Hartford, Dr. L. Smirnow, New Britian, Conn., Leon Cohn, Newark, Rabbi M. Hirschman, Detroit, Jacob Dohass, Boston, Simon Goldman, St. Louis, Rabbi C. H. Kauver, Denver M. L. Anver, Pittsburg, S. D. Solomon, Syracuse; International Actions Committee, Harry Friedenwald, Baltimore, Israel Friedlander, A. A. Lubarsky, J. L. Magnes, and Louis Lipsky, New York, and the Rev. Dr. Max Heller, New Orleans.

TO DISTRIBUTE ASSETS.

Hotchkiss to Wind Up Two Co-operative Fire Companies.

ALBANY, July 4.—Supt. of Insurance Hotchkiss has presented his final reports in the liquidation of two co-operative fire insurance corporations, the Empire State Fire Insurance Association and the Citizens' Fire Insurance Association, formerly transacting business at Utica, and has obtained orders from Justice De Angelis of the Supreme Court directing the dissolution of the corporations and the distribution of their assets in the form of dividends to creditors.

In each of these cases, through assessments upon the members of the corporatons, it has been possible to secure sufficient funds to declare dividends of, respectively, 98½ and 96 per cent.—this at a total expenditure in the two cases of 5½ and 6 2-3 per cent. of the amount involved. The liquidation of the two companies has covered a period of less than a year. These results have been accomplished without the services of counsel.

These liquidations, says the report, have been coincident with one of a similar corporation, the Aetna Fire Insurance Association of Utica, which went into the hands of a receiver under general law effective prior to the present liquidation law. In such case, after upward of two years, the receiver has collected but $1,000 as against liabilities of $5,300. Meanwhile, allowances to counsel, receiver, and referee for services and disbursements aggregating $1,700 have been made, and the final distribution is apparently yet far off.

STATE BALANCES FALL OFF.

ALBANY, July 4.—State general and canal fund balances, according to the report made by State Treasurer Kennedy for July 1, aggregate $19,231,097, showing a decrease of $2,866,541 for the month of June. The general fund balance totaled on July 1 $4,204,625, being less by $375,784 than on June 1, and the canal fund balance was $12,158,253, showing a decrease of $2,484,590.

Of the canal fund $1,194,500 is placed in banks outside of cities, and this sum is greater by $20,000 than a month ago. In the Manhattan, Bronx, and Brooklyn State depositories there were no changes in the deposits of general fund deposits, while in canal funds the deposits in thirty-nine banks show changes, all but three being reduced from June 1.

USE OF AEROPLANES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is with the greatest interest as well as with the greatest pleasure that we read your editorial comments on aviation in to-day's TIMES.

Your remarks as to the stunts made by certain aviators in this country are certainly most appropriate, and we feel sure that they will be most appreciated by the people who really care for the art of flying.

We most sincerely congratulate ourselves to see that such a paper as THE NEW YORK TIMES expresses so exactly in its columns the policy of this company by condemning sensational flights, which only harm the progress of aviation in America, and by commending the resumption of cross-country flights with passengers, the only way of showing the practicability and reliability of aeroplanes.

It is with articles of this kind, praising such flights as those made by Messrs. Atwood and Sopwith, that the American people will at last realize that aviation has already passed the experimental stage, and that aeroplanes are to be considered, not as machines good only for circus feats, but as a new means of transportation which is practical, safe, and economical.

English Geography.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of Dr. Jowett's criticism of the American press, I am reminded that an English lady once asked me if Chicago was not in South America, a question I found it hard to understand, until one day on taking up The London Times, I saw under the heading in large type, "The United States," news from South America. After that I have not blamed the English people for getting mixed in their geography. AN AMERICAN.

LITTLE TRIPS AROUND NEW YORK

I felt myself in need of
A quiet, peaceful day away—
The sort of thing you read of.

And so I tried my little "Guide,"
And read that, down the bay some,
A town there lay that those who may Delight to sail away from.

"The place for me," I said in glee,
And hied me where the "Guide" bid;
Alas! the boat could scarcely float
All those who felt as I did.

Again I took my little book
A sylvan glade with brooks and shade,
Which people seldom stray to.

With anxious pace I neared the place,
Disturbed by sounds of shouting,
And found that scores of dry goods stores
Possessed it for their outing.

"Now, how," said I to one near by,
"Can one find peace and quiet?"
"There's but one way on Saturday,"
Said he, "'t were well to try it."

So when I heard his kindly word
I sped without delay, Sir,
And had a basket picnic there
Where Wall Street joins Broadway, Sir.

LIVES IN HOUSE OF MYSTERY.

C. C. Protheroe, a Lawyer, Not Yet Ready to Tell the Reason.

In Park Street, in the Kew district of Richmond Hill, Borough of Queens, stands a three-story house, covered with dingy and weather-beaten shingles. The little knoll on which it stands is covered with long waving grass. The paths which lead up to it are eroded by the weather. Irregular vines twine about its towers. Cobwebs mantle its windows. To casual passersby the house appears unoccupied. A glimpse from the veranda through the uncurtained windows shows that the floors are bare of carpets, rugs, or furniture, and strewn with old papers, bottles, and bits of miscellaneous débris.

The condition of the house has made it an object of curiosity to visitors. Charles C. Protheroe, its principal inmate, would not discuss yesterday the house or the strange story which is said to lie back of its present condition. He occupies a little room on the second floor, containing a bed, a table, and a couple of chairs. The rooms show the lack of a woman's hand.

Protheroe is a lawyer. He said yesterday that he would tell his story at the proper time. He remarked bitterly:

"Once there was more in this house than there is now, but I mustn't talk of that."

Protheroe, who is thin and deep eyed, smoked cigarettes incessantly while he talked with a TIMES reporter. He complained of pain, but declared his illness was only temporary. His appearance indicated that he might be optimistic about his health.

While Protheroe talked his sonu Owen, a boy of about 15 years, listened intently while his father parried the reporter's questions. In a room adjoining his father's the boy had several air ship models he had made. Owen and another boy are their father's only companions in Richmond Hill's bleak house.

Near the Protheroe house is another mansion in excellent condition as to paint and lawns. Servants bustle about its well-screened verandas. The gossip of the neighborhood is that Protheroe has or believes he has some feud with the owner of the well-kept house, which was built when the owners of both were equal in prosperity and good friends. Protheroe laughed yesterday at the report that he and his son went armed to resist ejectment at the hands of emissaries of one of his neighbors.

"I will speak when the time comes. Meantime I bide my time and await the slow justice of the courts. I am a lawyer and would not say anything that is not of record. But when my story is known it will be a good one for the newspapers."

In spite of an hour's attempted persuasion Protheroe was steadfast in his determination to keep silent.

Civic Organizations Say They Are Trying to Kill New Tax Laws.

A number of organizations of this city are charging that some of the larger vacant land owners here are trying to intimidate members of the Legislature into inaction regarding the building tax bills which the Congestion Commission is urging at Albany.

These organizations have adopted resolutions in which they assert their conviction of the necessity for the reduction of the tax rate on buildings by the argument presented by the Mayor's Congestion Commission. They add:

"We appreciate that these are being vigorously fought by owners of vacant land in the city, who have great wealth and who oppose even a moderate encouragement to the construction of buildings through the lower tax rate."

These bodies sign the statement and resolutions: The Brooklyn Central Labor Union, by Otto Nicols, Corresponding Secretary; Tenants Union of New York, by Cornelius Donovan, President; Federation of Churches, by Dr. Walter Laidlaw, Executive Secretary; Wyckoff Heights Taxpayers Association, by Adam Fischer, Chairman of Buildings Committee; South Brooklyn Board of Trade, by Assemblyman Sydney W. Fry, Vice Chairman of the Legislative Committee; People's Institute, by J. Aspinwall Hodges, Chairman Forum Committee; Women's Trade Union League of New York, by Miss Mary E. Dreier, President; Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor, by J. C. Pumpelly; Neighborhood Workers Association, by Dr. Henry Moskowitz; East Flatbush Taxpayers Association, by G. J. Luhn, President; Committee on Congestion of Population in New York, Raymond V. Ingersoll, Chairman; People's Forum, by Dr. Percy S. Grant, President; Central Federated Union, by Thomas J. Curtin, President; New York State League of Savings & Loan Association, by Thomas J. Skuse, President; and Walter L. Durack, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Metropolitan League of Savings & Loan Associations.

MUST PAY FOR HIS TREES.

Charles D. Smith, a broker of Long Island City, has just won a suit against the Commercial Construction Company of Suffolk County, L. I., in which are a number of politicians and leading men of that county, as a result of which the company will have to pay him $1,500 for the value of trees destroyed by the workmen of the company. The suit was decided favorably by the Supreme Court in Brooklyn before Justice Clarke last Fall, and then an appeal was taken to the Appellate Division, because Justice Clarke, following the provisions of the statute, had tripled the amount found by the jury as the value of the trees.

The opinion handed down by the Appellate Division was unanimous, and the decision establishes the rule that owners of country places on Long Island have been fighting for for a long time to prevent the destruction of the fine trees on their estates.

The Commercial Construction Company in July 29, 1907, while moving an old schoolhouse through the streets of Brentwood, cut down sixty trees on the property of Mr. Smith in order to allow the building to pass. Smith demanded the value of the trees, which he fixed at $500. This was refused and he brought suit. The verdict of the jury was for $500, but Justice Clarke tripled it, and this action has been sustained by the higher courts.

MUST HAVE 60 GOWNS.

Fifth Avenue Milliner on Typical Parisian Woman's Extravagance.

Charles C. Kurzman, a Fifth Avenue milliner, who returned from Europe yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., said that the Parisian women change their costumes ten times a day and are the most extravagant women in the world. Their gowns average about $250 each; so that the total was $2,500.

"They wear a habit for riding in the Bois de Boulogne, another for breakfast, followed by gowns for shopping, tea, entertainment, the opera, and then a fresh gown for supper and one for going to bed," said Mr. Kurzman. "That means that a woman has to have about sixty dresses to attend all the functions which are part of the lives of those who figure in the giddy whirl of Paris fashion.

"To keep in the style of the day a well-dressed woman," Mr. Kurzman went on to say, "requires at least sixty gowns, so that she will never put a dress on twice in the same week."

He added that the day of the hobble and tight skirt had departed and that the new styles for the coming season were very becoming.

New Labor Organizer Here To-day.

It was announced yesterday by Ernest Bohm, Corresponding Secretary of the Central Federated Union, that Calvin Wyatt of Pittsburg, who has been appointed by President Gompers general organizer for the New York District of the American Federation, in place of Huge Frayne, who has resigned, will arrive here to-day and take charge of affairs at the New York office, 25 Third Avenue. The general organizer is the personal representative of President Gompers in the district.

PRESIDENT DEFENDS RECIPROCITY PLAN

SEES SANE FOURTH PARADE

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 4.—President Taft here to-day reviewed a sane Fourth of July parade and spoke in defense of the Canadian reciprocity plan, which he declared was good Republican reciprocity and would neither hurt the American farmer nor lower the price of American wheat. The President dwelt upon the advantages to the agricultural interest of the removal of Canadian duties, and declared that the measure, while Republican in spirit, was non-partisan. He added that if it were passed the Democrats of the Senate and House must share the credit.

The sane Fourth parade was designed especially in Mr. Taft's honor, to take the place of the more noisy forms of celebration of other years, and few who saw it regretted the change from the dangerous noise making which has characterized so many Fourths. There were many cheers for the President as he stood with bared head and smilingly approved the various features of the pageant which passed before him, and he in turn often bowed and applauded.

Seeing the parade was only one of the incidents of the President's very busy day. Afterward members of the Marion Club escorted him to their club building in North Meridian Street, whence, after a session of handshaking, members of the Columbia Club in turn escorted the city's distinguished guest to their club building for luncheon. Cordially welcomed there, Mr. Taft was taken in hand immediately after luncheon by the Commercial Club Reception Committee, composed of a large number of representative business men, which escorted him to Washington Park, where he awarded prizes for the best features of the pageant. A long ride to the Fair Grounds followed under the auspices of the railroad men. At the Fair Grounds Mr. Taft saw the head-on collision arranged by the railroad men.

The President was particularly interested in the collision. The two locomotives, starting under full steam on the same track, came together at high speed two hundred yards from where the President sat. Neither one left the track, but both were reduced to scrap iron.

In a brief address at the Fair Grounds the President praised the idea of a "safe and sane" Fourth, and said that he hoped to see other cities adopt it. He liked the sort of celebration that Indianapolis gave better than one of noise and accidents, he said.

At night the President attended a big banquet at the Claypool Hotel under the auspices of the Marion Club. It was there that Mr. Taft made his reciprocity speech.

Mr. Taft's Speech.

The President said:

"I have had occasion elsewhere to say that the three subjects in which I have recently been most greatly interested are not party issues. Certainly this is true of universal arbitration and of the plan of the Monetary Commission for the reform of our currency and banking systems.

"With respect to reciprocity, however, I find that there is a disposition by some Republicans to dispute the proposition that Republicans can consistently support the adoption of the present agreement made for this purpose with the Canadian Government. It is said that this kind of reciprocity is not Republican reciprocity. It is said that this reciprocity covers competitive products of each country, and that the reciprocity of former Republican leaders was intended to include only a lowering or abolition of duties on products of other countries which did not compete with products of this country. Therefore, it is said, that the Canadian reciprocity as now proposed is nothing but a Democratic measure, reducing or abolishing the tariff on goods or products from Canada that compete with those raised by our own people, and that it is especially injurious because it is so drawn as prejudicially to affect the farmers of the country as a class.

"The Republican Party in its last National platform declared in favor of tariff duties which would measure only the difference in the cost of production of articles here and of articles abroad. In other words, the sound Republican doctrine has become the imposition of duties only where the conditions are naturally unequal, and where duties are necessary in order to enable our manufacturers and other producers to meet on a level the competition of foreign producers. The Canadian reciprocity agreement which has been made squares exactly with this doctrine.

Republican Reciprocity.

"The contention that reciprocity was never advocated by Republican leaders so as to include competing products is refuted by the record of history. Mr. Blaine, who is regarded as the father of reciprocity, attempted to secure an amendment to one of the tariff laws in which the subjects for reciprocity mentioned in the amendment were almost all of them articles in which the foreign countries would compete with us in our own markets. More than this, McKinley, who was the second leader as to reciprocity, and who delivered his last speech in its favor just before his tragic death, had negotiated a number of reciprocity treaties, in all of which the duties were reduced or abolished on a number of products which would compete in our markets with those of our own production. The truth is, if you will read the last speech of McKinley, you will see that he speaks in this connection of duties which have become unnecessary, and that might well be abolished. By that he meant duties which could be taken off commodities foreign competition in which we could safely meet in our own markets.

"Another answer to the objection of Republican friends who denounce Canadian reciprocity as a heresy is that the amount of competition which is to take place in our markets between Canadian products and those of the United States under this agreement is very much less than they would by their general statements have you believe. In the first place, they say that by free trade in agricultural products we are giving them a market of 90,000,000 people and taking only a market of 8,000,000 people for the same things, and that necessarily they derive greater advantage. As a matter of fact, in the vast bulk of our agricultural products they can furnish no competition whatever, while this agreement admits all our products free into Canada.

Advantages to the Farmer.

"It is said that this Canadian reciprocity agreement is made wholly at the expense of the farmers, and only in the interest of those who would have farm products at a less price, to wit, the wage earners of the large cities. It is my own judgment that the reciprocity agreement will not greatly reduce the cost of living, if at all. It will, however, steady prices by enlarging the reservoir of supplies for those things that are raised in both countries, and it will make more remote the possibility of cornering commodities and extorting excessive prices for them from the public.

"It is a mistake to say, however, that this agreement is not in the interest of the farmers. Let us examine the statistics and see. The free list is made up almost entirely of agricultural products. The amount of exportation from this country to Canada at present in the articles covered and affected by the reciprocity agreement was for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1910, $48,000,000, and the duties paid on those articles was something more than $7,800,000. The exportation of these same articles into Canada for the year ended March 31, 1911, was $64,000,000, and the duties levied and collected were $10,500,000. The increase, in other words, was about $16,000,000 last year, and the additional duties collected were about $2,700,000. There seems little doubt that for the current year the United States trade covered by reciprocity will reach $75,000,000 and the remission of duties would be not less than $4,000,000 under the agreement. What I wish to call your attention to is that of this remission of approximately $3,400,000, which would have been made on the imports into Canada from the United States if the reciprocity agreement had been in effect, a little less than $2,000,000 would have been on agricultural products.

"The truth is that when the complaint is made on behalf of the farmer and is analyzed, it will be found to be limited to an argument that by the admission of free wheat into the United States the price of wheat will be reduced 10 cents a bushel. The answer to the argument is that this cannot be, for the reason that the price of wheat in the United States and in Canada both is ultimately fixed by the price of wheat in the world, and that the world's price is adjusted and made at Liverpool by the relation of the supply of the exported wheat to the demand for it by countries which do not raise enough to supply their people.

"It may be that the free admission of wheat from the United States into Canada will increase to some extent the price to the Canadian farmer, but it will not decrease the price paid to the American farmer because it will not decrease the demand upon the American farmer for his wheat.

"The diversion from British and European markets to the markets of the United States of 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat annually would not only strengthen the wheat market abroad, but would furnish the American mills with a needed complement of wheat which the world would require just as it has in the past, but it would then be in the shape of American made flour. The effect of increased wheat supplies would be to reduce the cost of manufacturing flour in just the ratio that the mills were able to thereby increase their output. This reduced cost of production would enable the mills to regain in the foreign market the 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 barrels of flour sold in foreign trade annually ten years ago, but which in recent years has fallen to less than 10,000,000 barrels.

Will Not Cheapen Wheat.

"The American grown wheat would not be decreased in value in the slightest, but on the contrary, because of increased marketing facilities and fuller time operation, the mills would be in better position to absorb increased quantities of American grown wheat.

"Wherever the probable course of trade under reciprocity is analyzed as to its effect on farm products, in which Canada can compete, the conclusions vary but slightly from those reached with respect to wheat. As to barley and oats, the next most important grains likely to enter into our international exchange under reciprocity, the quality of the Canadian products will commend them to our use. Their appearance in the American market may cause their substitution to some extent for our own similar products, but such substitution would mean just so much elimination of Canada's products from the markets of the world. Their place needs to be filled and the supply for this purpose would most naturally come from the United States, thus enlarging our own foreign outlet for these grains.

"Farmers who have not broadly considered the subject in all its bearings have overlooked the benefits arising from a more extended field of supply which will accrue to the small farmer throughout the Central and Eastern States, whose expanding possibilities in dairying, fruit raising, stock conditioning, and other specialized forms of farm life have reduced his productive capacity in the raising of grains and hay, and who is becoming among the best of customers for hay, corn, oats, and mill feeds—the products of the farmer of the West and Southwest. These smaller farmers—and their number is large and constantly increasing—will be benefited by the greater measure of uniformity of cost and assured regularity of supply through reciprocity.

Advantages to Indiana.

"Indiana is fairly representative of the States of the Middle West in its relation to Canadian reciprocity. Its consumers will benefit by the remission of duties on food products and by the remission of the duties on fish, and they will share in the advantages of the $1,600,000 remission of duties on the classes of lumber which enter into home buildings as well as by the free entry of gypsum, which is a constituent element in cement that is now so largely used in building construction. They will also gain by the reduction on building stone and other articles.

"When it comes to the Canadian market, Indiana producers will be at a very decided advantage. Indiana vegetables and fruits, including melons of all kinds, will go into the Canadian market free of duty. The Indiana manufacturing industry will be especial benefited by the reduction of duties on agricultural implements and motor vehicles, since the State manufactures all kinds of farm machinery and is well represented in the progress of the automobile industry. Indiana is the headquarters of the thriving new vitrified paving block industry in this country. The rapid growth of Canadian cities calls for large quantities of paving material. Notwithstanding the heavy freight rates entry already has been secured in the Canadian market for this form of paving. The reciprocity agreement gives encouragement to its further extension, since a reduction of the rate on paving brick amounting to 25 per cent. is provided. This will more than compensate for the freight rates, and will insure a larger share of the growing Canadian business. The free entry of tin plates and galvanized iron or steel wire will also be an advantage to Indiana industries.

"I am most earnestly hopeful that the Canadian reciprocity agreement will pass the Senate and will be confirmed by the Canadian Parliament. I am hopeful of this, not for political reasons, because the responsibility and the credit for it will not be wholly with any one political party. The Democrats of the House and the Democrats of the Senate should have their full measure of praise for its adoption should it become a law.

"The present treaty looks to relieving the business of the United States with Canada by lifting a burden of nearly $4,000,000 as customs tax on our exports to Canada, and a consequent great increase in those exports. It looks to the introduction of products which we need in this country. It will add greatly to the prosperity and growth of Canada, and as Canada grows, her consuming power becomes greater and our trade with her will necessarily increase. Such a result by such a method under such conditions is according to good Republican doctrine, and I urgently ask the support of an intelligent, progressive organization like this in aligning the whole Republican Party in its support."

Republican leaders that had been disturbed by alleged indications of disaffection in the failure of the party to carry the last Legislature and return Albert J. Beveridge to the United States SSnate had called to-night's dinner a "harmony banquet," and it was said every effort would be made to bring together the stand-pat and the insurgent elements.

The Marion Club, which gave the banquet, has been known as the organization of the younger progressive Republican workers, and the Columbia Club, where the President had luncheon to-day, is known as an assembly of the older conservative leaders of Indiana Republicanism.

The only note of politics that publicly sounded during the President's visit to Indianapolis was when President Robert F. Davidson of the Marion Club, in introducing Mr. Taft at the banquet to-night said, turning to the President: "We supported you in 1908, and we will support you again in 1912." This sentiment, vigorously expressed, was enthusiastically applauded.

Practically the only unpleasant incident of the day occurred in front of the stand on the Indiana Soldiers' Monument a half hour before the President's arrival to review the parade of floats in the morning. Mrs. Harry Tutewiler, occupying one of the reserved seats, was struck in the thigh by a spent bullet fired by some one whom the police to-night had not identified. Mrs. Tutewiler was not seriously hurt, and the President was not informed of the incident.

Hot Weather Xmas Party.

MARC KLAW BACK; HAS OPERA AND PLAY

WHITNEY HERE WITH OPERAS

Marc Klaw of Klaw & Erlanger, who returned from his trip to Europe yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., said that the hit of the season in London was the musical comedy "The Count of Luxembourg," at Daly's Theatre. The advance bookings amounted to $200,000, he said, when he left London last Wednesday. Mr. Klaw said that he had obtained the operetta for America, and hoped to get Miss Lily Elsie to come over and play the leading part. She was the original Merry Widow.

"I have also secured," Mr. Klaw said, "a play called 'Kismet,' by Paul Knobloch, the author of 'The Cottage in the Air,' which was produced at The New Theatre. 'Kismet' deals with a Persian story of 1800 years ago.

"The author of 'The Pink Lady' is now working on 'The Primrose Villa,' a musical play, with the scenes laid in Paris, which will be produced next season."

Asked about other plays in London theatres this season, Mr. Klaw said that the two best were "Passers By" and "The Buttrefly on the Wheel," which had been secured for America by Charles Frohman.

He added that he saw the coronation procession pass through the streets of London and thought that it was a splendid military pageant, which would have been enhanced in the spectators' eyes by a little more sunshine, a rather scarce commodity in London.

Fred C. Whitney Returns.

Fred C. Whitney returned to New York yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., after an absence of five months abroad, with plans for producing Richard Strauss's new work, "Der Rosenkavalier," and several other important announcements.

Mr. Whitney only intends to remain here a week, but during that period he intends to find theatres to house "Der Rosenkavalier" and also "Baron Trenck." Albini's comic opera. Since he was last here Mr. Whitney has acquired the Strand Theatre, in London, which is now known as the Whitney, and where he expects to make all his large productions, with the exception of "Der Rosengavalier," which is to be done at Covent Garden.

Mr. Whitney says that he has been in consultation with Richard Strauss, in Berlin, for many weeks, and the production in London will be in every respect a reproduction of the original Dresden production. He says that he will have a large cast and chorus and 118 in the orchestra. In order to give the work every night a double cast of principals will be necessary.

Mr. Whitney said that he would engage the principal artists, who have already appeared in the opera, from the casts of Munich, Leipsic, Hamburg, Vienna, and Cologne. Richard Strauss has promised to conduct the first performances of the work in London and New York. Dr. Lowenfeld will be the stage director.

After two weeks at Covent Garden the entire production will be brought to this country, opening here late in November.

For "Baron Trenck," which opened the Whitney Theatre in London, Fritz Sturmfels has been engaged. He was the original Trench in Leipsic. The rest of the cast will be made up here.

Mr. Whitney has also obtained for early production here the Drury Lane melodrama "The Whip." This is a racing play, and among its other sensational features is a scene of a head-on collision between two passenger trains. Mr. Whitney has also engaged Bereny to arrange a musical version of Georges Feydeau's farce, "La Dame de chez Maxim's." During the season here Mr. Whitney also announces that he will produce Lehar's opera, "At Last Alone," and two new comic operas by Oscar Straus, "Mein Junger Herr," and "Meinen Kleine Freunde." He has also a one-act operetta by Straus, entitled "Venus Greunen." Mr. Whitney will also direct the tour of Kubelik, the Bohemian violinist.

"One of my keenest regrets," said Mr. Whitney, "is that Sir W. S. Gilbert was not able to complete the libretto of the comic opera he promised to write for me, the scenario of which was to be finished when I returned from the Continent. I arrived in London the day after Sir William died, and it is believed by his executors that the scenario will be found among his papers. Oscar Straus was to have written the music.

"In London 'The Chocolate Soldier' is running to capacity houses, and there is no reason to believe that it will not stay there for a year more at least. On Sept. 16 I will produce 'The Spring Maid' at the Whitney Theatre. Miss Marise Fairy, well-known in Paris, will sing the leading part. On Sept. 23 'Der Rosenkavalier' will be produced in London, and later I intend to produce Victor Herbert's operetta, 'Mlle. Modiste.'"

GOODWIN'S BOOK ON WIVES.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 4.—"Hers was ambition of a Cleopatra. She used me as a ladder to reach her goal, and found her crowning glory in the blinding glare of a myriad of lights that spelled her name over the portals of a New York theatre. She was one of the cleverest women I ever met. Her dignity was that of a Joan of Arc, her demeanor Nerolike in its assertive qualities, and yet with channels of emotion that manifested womanhood in the truest sense of the word."

This is Nat Goodwin's tribute to Maxine Elliott, his "wife No. 3" to whom he devotes a chapter in his book on his varied matrimonial experiences. He made a portion of it public to-day. "Just to celebrate sanely a bet," he explained. In this chapter she says that her overwhelming desire was to get into British society and to that end he was persuaded to rent "Jackwood" where she entertained members of the nobility and he found the greatest pleasure in associating with the butler—"Really, a very superior man."

He said: "During the early days at Jackwood, my English home, when I was busily engaged in hiring guests to come and partake of my board and room, (I mean the professional diners out,) I found great difficulty in acquiring patrons. I had plenty at my command, as far as professional friends and visiting Americans were concerned, but the fair Maxine had the English bee in her American bonnet and insisted that we must try and get together some of the impecunious nobility and a few army men as guests.

"I know of no one who represented those particular branches of aristocracy and had no desire to, but being under her hypnotic influence I sought a woman, the wife of a friend of mine, an American mining man, who I discovered knew all the swagger members of the 'guards'—one very particular one—and through her influence one of these 'sap heads' was persuaded to visit our humble home from Saturday to Monday. He came, accompanied by one of the present dukes of England (whose father, by the way, died, owing me a paltry $2, borrowed on a race course in France.)

"They all came down this particular Saturday. We had a lovely time—that is, I presume they did—as Maxine insisted on my entertaining the guests between courses with my supposedly funny stories. Very little attention was paid to me, anyway, only when reciting anecdotes and the first of every month, when the bills became due."

BAR "MERCHANT OF VENICE."

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 4.—Urging the elimination from the public schools of the country of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" as a textbook because it tended toward ridicule of the Jewish race, the Central Conference of Jewish Rabbis, in session in St. Paul to-day, also favored keeping off the American stage all productions caricaturing the race. Reports were read assuring the co-operation of Klaw & Erlanger and the Shuberts.

A conference also recommended omitting from the books used in public schools such hymns as "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," on the ground that they were objectionable to Jewish people. The constitutions of Arizona and New Mexico were indorsed as examples for other States, because from them is eliminated all reference to sectarianism.

A new Jewish hymnal for use in the synagogues of the country will be issued in the near future. Rabbi Henry Meyer of Kansas City, Chairman of the Committee on Synagogal Music, reported yesterday that the plans are almost completed. The committee on systematic Jewish theology reported through Rabbi S. Schulman of New York, who said that the work of publication of a book on Jewish theology that was authorized at a former conference had not progressed very far to this time.

RECIPROCITY VOTE BY AUG. 1.

Insurgents Admit the Measure Will Pass Unamended.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Passage of the Canadian Reciprocity bill unamended will constitute the sole tariff legislation enacted at this session of Congress is the view of most of the insurgent Republican Senators, despite their demand for other tariff reductions. This tentative conclusion is subject, however, to a final determination to be reached at an informal conference of the insurgents as soon as the absentees return to Washington, which will be in the next few days.

Notwithstanding the contention of Senator Bristow of Kansas that amendments reducing the duties on cotton, wool, steel, sugar, lead, leather, and other rubber manufactures, should be attached to the Reciprocity bill, and the proposed amending programme of Messrs. Cummins of Iowa, La Follette of Wisconsin, and others, some of the insurgents who believe they reflect the view of their wing of the party generally expressed the opinion today that the Reciprocity bill would be passed about Aug. 1, the wool and free list bills voted down or carried over to the regular session, and that Congress would adjourn quickly after disposing of reciprocity.

Speaker Champ Clark and other House leaders are anxious that the Senate take some action on the measures the House has passed and put squarely before the Senate, even if the measures are defeated.

"I don't believe the House has the slightest disposition to adjourn until the Senate acts on the bills which the House sends over to it," said the Speaker today, "notwithstanding the disagreeably hot weather and the desire of members to get back to their homes. All we ask is that the Senate act on the reciprocity, wool, and free list bills or any other bills we send over, and so long as Congress remains in session we will send bills over as fast as they can be carefully and scientifically prepared. But we are not going to rush about it."

RETURNS, FINDS SON MARRIED

Thomas Franklin Manville, President of the Manville Asbestos Company, with offices at 100 William Street, arrived here yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. from Europe, where he had gone in the hope of preventing his 19-year-old son from marrying Miss Florence E. Huber of Williamesport after a week's acquaintance. The son had not gone abroad, as the father had heard, and during the elder's absence was married twice, once in this city on Saturday and the second time on Monday in Jersey City, to make the ceremony more secure, it was said.

It was expected that Thomas F. Manville, Jr., and his young bride would be at the North German Lloyd pier yesterday to ask his father's forgiveness, but they did not put in an appearance. The father was met at Quarantine by his brother, Hiram E. Manville, and a friend from Georgia. Mr. Manville refused to discuss his son's marriage.

AMERICAN HONOR FOR KING.

George V. Accepts Membership in Society and the Cross.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—King George of England has accepted honorary membership in the American Cross of Honor and the Cross of that organization. Ambassador James Bryce has written Thomas H. Herndon, President of the society, advising him of the King's acceptance.

The organization is made up of Americans who have received medals for acts of heroism. Honorary members are President Taft, Emperor William, the King of Italy, the President of France, Theodore Roosevelt, and Andrew Carnegie.

Killed Holding Frightened Horse.

AVON, N. J., July 4.—As he jumped from his father's wagon in East End Avenue here to-day Charley Wegman, 8 years old, caught his foot in the reins and fell beneath the horse's hoofs. The horse kicked him in the face, and the second kick sent the lad's head against a stone curbing, killing him instantly. Boys were shooting off firecrackers, and Charley jumped to catch his frightened horse by the head.

WINDSTORM SWEEPS LENOX.

LENOX, Mass., July 4.—A windstorm struck Lenox this afternoon at 5 o'clock and tore up trees and shrubbery and laid flat acres of wheat, corn, and other produce on the big estates. At the country residence of Harley T. Procter a huge tree fell across the main drive.

There was an illumination at Erskine Park, the country place of Mr. and Mrs. George Westinghouse, to-night. Electric lights were hung from top to bottom of a 120-foot flag pole, and the trees and shrubs were lighted with colored lights. There were fireworks. A large display of fireworks was made at Elm Court, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sloane, where a house party was entertained over the Fourth. Displays of fireworks were also made at the country residences of J. Woodward Haven, George Turnure, and Giraud Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Kinsman, Mrs. Leslie Carter, W. L. Payne, Mr. and Mrs. A. Westguard, G. W. Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wells of New York are at the Wendell in Pittsfield.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carrington and Mr. and Mrs. George O. Gale arrived to-day at the Maplewood in Pittsfield.

At the meeting of the Lenox Golf Club William D. Sloane was elected President and Robert W. Paterson, Secretary. The vacancy on the Executive Committee of the Boat Club, caused by the death of John E. Alexandre, was filled by the election of Newbold Morris. The annual club luncheon followed the elections.

Giraud Foster has been elected a Vestryman of Trinity Church, to succeed the late George H. Morgan. Other officers elected are: Senior Warden—Capt. John S. Barnes; Junior Wardens—L. C. Peters, William D. Sloane, and William Clifford.

LONDON, July 4.—Miss Elsie Riordon, daughter of Charles Riordon of Montreal, and Major Sir Hamilton John Goold-Adams were married at St. Peter's, in Eton Square, to-day. The church was filled, among the witnesses being many South Africans with whom the Major is popular. The bridegroom served in South Africa in 1899-1901, was at one time Resident Commissioner for Bechuanaland Protectorate, and from 1907 to 1910 inclusive Governor of the Orange River Colony.

The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of Pretoria. Mr. Riordon gave away his daughter and Lieut. Gen. Sir Charles Edmond Knox was best man.

Miss Plaut Weds David J. Gallert.

The wedding of Miss Myra Plaut, formerly of Cincinnati, and David J. Gallert of New York took place in the ballroom at the Hotel Gramatan on Monday evening. Mr. Martin, Dr. Felix Adler's assistant, officiated.

The bride wore a lingerie Summer gown. Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Florence Plaut, who has just graduated from Smith College. Mr. Gallert had for his best man Isaac S. Heller of this city.

Mr. Gallert is a graduate of Harvard College and of Harvard Law School. He is now practicing law in New York City. Mrs. Gallert is a graduate of Barnard.

The bride and bridegroom are now on a wedding trip to the Moscoco Lakes, where they first met. After spending ten days there, they will go to the Pacific Coast and Alaska. They will return late in September to New York, where they will make their home.

McGUIRKIN—CRISS.

ORANGE, N. J., July 4.—Miss Mildred Criss, daughter of Thomas B. Criss of Park Avenue, Orange, and Benjamin Fork McGuirkin of New York City, were married to-night at the home of the bride's father by the Rev. Frank B. Reaseor, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, West Orange.

The bride was attended by Miss Imogen Vanderpool of Baltimore, formerly of Orange, as maid of honor, and by Miss Anna Foster, Miss Eleanor Hawkes, Miss Fay Henry, Miss Helen Holmes, Miss Julia Pupke, and Miss Harriet Pupke of the Oranges, and Miss Minette Causse of New York as ribbon bearers. Malcolm D. B. Hunter of Glen Ridge, N. J., was best man.

The ceremony and the wedding supper which followed were attended by only relatives and intimate friends of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. McGuirkin will reside in Orange.

Organized in Honor of Prof. Woodberry.

Friends and former pupils of George Edward Woodberry, who was Professor of Comparative Literature at Columbia University from 1891 to 1904, have organized a society to advance the ideals of American literature for which he has stood and to cement the ties that bind them in affection and friendship with him and with each other. Among the organizers are Harry Harkness Flagler, (President,) William B. Symmes, Jr., (Secretary,) William Aspenwall Bradley, Goelet Gallatin, Harold Kellock, Prof. J. E. Spingarn, Lewis Sherrill Bigelow, Joseph M. Proskauer, Lewis Nathaniel Chase, James N. Rosenberg, Melville H. Cane, George S. Hellman, and Ferris Greenslet.

Old Trinity Schoolmaster Dead.

David Lindsay Lowson, for twenty-one years Master of Mathematics in Trinity School, died yesterday in his seventy-first year. Mr. Lowson was born in Aberdeen, and was a Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Aberdeen. He was for several years at the head of a private school in England, and later, when the private schools were given up largely, after the passage of the Educational bill in the '80's, he became an Inspector of Schools for the English Government. In 1890 he came to New York, and became Master of Mathematics in Trinity School, which was then situated in Forty-fourth Street. He has been with Trinity since that time, and was known to a host of young men in this city. He had been retired since last May on a pension. He had no family in this country, but was familiarly called "Daddy" Lowson by Trinity boys.

Jacob Weldmann.

Jacob Weldmann, one of the best-known silk dyers in this country, died at his home on Park Avenue, Paterson, N. J., yesterday from heart disease, aggravated by the great heat of the last few days. Mr. Weldmann organized and maintained the largest silk dyeing plant in the world until one year ago, when he retired, selling his interests to a syndicate of French dyers. His wealth is estimated at $10,000,000. He is survived by one daughter, who is the wife of Roberto Zust of Milan, Italy. Mr. Weldmann was 60 years old.

FRANKLIN FYLES IS DEAD.

Dramatic Critic of The Sun for Thirty Years, and Playwright.

Franklin Fyles, for thirty years the dramatic editor and critic of The New York Sun, died last evening at the Hotel Walton, on West Seventieth Street. Death was caused by heart disease. Mr. Fyles, who was born in Troy, N. Y., would have been 64 at his birthday in November.

Mr. Fyles began newspaper work as a boy in Troy, and he was only 20 when he started as a reporter on The New York Sun. Five years later he became the dramatic critic, and his long service in that position made him due to succeed William Winter as the dean of the critics in this city. About eight years ago failing health compelled him to leave The Sun, and since that time he has supplied twenty-five or thirty out-of-town papers with dramatic criticisms and notes of the theatrical season in New York.

Mr. Fyles was the author of several collections of short stories, and he wrote one book on the stage called "The Theatre and Its People." Next to his dramatic criticisms he was best known as a writer of plays. His most familiar work was "The Girl I Left Behind Me," written in collaboration with David Belasco.

This play was produced in the early nineties at the Empire Theatre, Charles Frohman's first production at that house. The cast included such players as Odette Tyler, Edna Wallace Hopper, Katherine Florence, Orrin Johnson, Cyril Scott, and W. H. Thompson. Other plays from his pen were "Cumberland, '61," and "The Governor of Kentucky," in which Crane played.

Mr. Fyles is survived by his wife and their two children, Vanderheyden Fyles and Mrs. George Young Bauchle. Mrs. Fyles was Miss Sarah E. Oliver. They were married in 1871 in this city.

Walter Wright Lee.

Walter Wright Lee, Secretary of the City Trust Company and President of the Frigon Company, died Monday at St. Luke's Hospital. He was born in Cincinnati thirty-seven years ago, and was graduated at the age of 17 years from the College of the City of New York. Mr. Lee was formerly identified with the Gallatin National Banak, was manager of the City Trust Branch of the Trust Company of America, was Secretary of the Reorganization Committee of the United States Shipbuilding Companies, and Vice President of the National Banak of North America. He was a former Vice President of the Dunwoodie Country Club, a member of the Seventh Regiment(and Theta Delta Chi Fraternity. Mr. Lee left a widow and two children|

Saving and Investing

The habit of saving is the first step towards investment. After a savings fund has been accumulated it should not, however, be invested until knowledge is acquired of the principles underlying conservative investment.

It is our function as investment bankers to aid investors in selecting investments that would seem to be best adapted to their requirements, and we are always ready to extend the facilities of our organization to any one seriously interested in this subject.

In these days, it is not a difficult matter to obtain investment bonds yielding approximately 5 per cent., and which, in our judgment, combine:

1. Safety as to principal.
2. Convertibility into cash.
3. Opportunity for profit.

ATHLETES IN CITY'S PUBLIC PARK MEETS

EVERY LOCAL FIELD OCCUPIED

Father Knickerbocker did himself proud yesterday in an athletic way when he sponsored the greatest aggregation of track and field games ever held by any municipality, the whole being centred on Mayor Gaynor's ideas of a safe and sane Fourth.

The result of the many sets of sports in the various parks under the dominion of the Park Department, Board of Education, and several of the local athletic clubs was that never before has there been such an outpouring of devotees of the game.

Two hundred thousand persons of all sorts and conditions, all ages and types, and of both sexes, answered the call for their attendance at the many grounds used for the competitions, and incidentally for the instruction of the uninitiated who were enabled to get a glimpse gratis at many of the world's greatest athletes.

From the Battery to the Bronx, from the outskirts of Brooklyn to Astoria, all roads led to the grounds where the champions were doing stunts of particularly high-class order, premier performances being the rule rather than the exception when the giants of the athletic world settled down to their efforts at attempting to beat each other.

Not alone were the champions catered to in the matter of competition, as in each of the parks there were contests for youngsters of the Catholic Athletic League, Young Men's Christian Associations, Sunday School Athletic League, Church Athletic League, Parochial Schools, Public Schools Athletic League, Playground Centres, Intersettlement League, and Recreation Centres.

That a new epoch was created in the world of athletics almost goes without saying, as, with the attendance and the number of lads well up into the thousands, all getting an opportunity to tally a win for probably the first time in their careers, the movement promised well for the cause which all of the combined organizations are working for.

Seldom, if ever, have world's champions and record holders turned out in such numbers to help such a cause, and a glance over the subjoined list attests that in the number are men who help to safeguard the city in the Police and Fire Departments. Among the most prominent were: Martin J. Sheridan, Pat McDonald, Con Walsh, Gwinn Henry, Jim Rosenberger, Bobby Cloughen, Billy Beckman, John J. Eller, Julian Elliot, B. Gish of Seattle, Warren Fielding, M. McLoughlin, H. McGuire, T. Ryan, Simon Gillis, and A. Pepis.

Probably the greatest outpouring was seen at McCadden Park, in Greenpoint, where the mighty Sheridan scaled the discus over 141 feet, which has only been attained by the great Irishman, who holds the world's record, three times.

In conjunction with these sports, Gwinn Henry, the most recent American champion sprinter, was clocked in 9 4-5 seconds for the century, a remarkable performance, but in keeping with all of the work he has been doing recently.

Jack Eller did a fast seventy-five yards at Battery Park, and showed the denizens of the First and Fourth Wards a phase of the brawn of one member of the Police Department. The summaries of the principal events follow:

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

LONDON, July 4.—Money was plentiful and discounts were easy to-day.

The stock market developed a steadier tone. Consols, foreigners, and gold mines recovered most of yesterday's losses. Home rails continued to be benefitted by better advices regarding the labor troubles. Kaffirs, however, were easy at the close.

American securities opened harder and improved under the lead of Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, and the Erie issues. The closing was steady.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2 1-16 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 2¼ per cent.

PARIS, July 4.—Prices on the Bourse opened better on favorable Moroccan news to-day, but later the market was irregular, and the close was agitated on a rumor that Great Britain was sending a warship to Agadir.

Private rate of discount 2⅛ per cent.

BERLIN, July 4.—Prices on the Börse to-day were firmer on the favorable foreign comment regarding the Morocco situation.

Money 3½ per cent.

MISHAPS AT THE ELKWOOD RACES

Capital racing, which was interspersed with accidents to horses and jockeys, marked the windup of the Elkwood Park steeplechase meeting yesterday at the course near Long Branch.

Seven races made up the day's card, and as a general proposition each held its full quota of exciting incidents.

The first of these came with the running of the second race, the Long Branch Open Steeplechase, at two miles and a half. Four horses had colors up, and Supplement, ridden by B. Wall, who made his début in America last Saturday, came to grief at the paddock jump, throwing Wall forcefully. The jockey lay prone for some few seconds, and arose apparently unhurt.

In the third race for the Seabright Plate Adele C., ridden by her owner, Morgan D. Blair, was caught in a jam at the half-mile pole and thrown. Young Morgan escaped injury, but the mare had broken her off foreleg at the fetlock, and after tearing around for ten minutes, apparently mad with pain, she finally allowed herself to be caught, shortly after which she was destroyed.

Between races the spectators were treated to a footrace across the field, in which Antonio J. Granidetti, an Italian, figured. Granidetti, who, it was found, was on parole from Rahway Prison for forgery, having served a year of a fourteen months' sentence, had been detected robbing the automobiles parked just outside the track. A dozen Pinkerton men and stable hands, aided by the ambulance patrol, cornered him in midfield and he was promptly jailed again.

Four horses accepted for the Long Branch open steeplechase at about two and one-half miles. There was no time lost with the flag, and they got away at the initial asking with Supplement, the Archdale entry, a shade to the good. After they had taken the first jump Supplement landed nicely, and with all on the flat had a length's advantage, Gun Cotton a like distance in front of Mysterious, with Faultless last.

Going by the stand for the first time, the order was Supplement, Faultless, Gun Cotton. This was also the order at the end of one circuit, with B. Wall, the English jockey, rushing Supplement at his jumps strongly. At the stand the second time it was Supplement two lengths from Gun Cotton. The leader tore a hole in the paddock jump and went to his knees, tossing Wall a dozen feet, but, fortunately, unhurt. This accident left it a cinch for Gun Cotton, which virtually won by 200 yards from Faultless. Mysterious broke down and ran off the course. Supplement was remounted by a stable boy, who finished the course, but his third position was disallowed.

The Seabright Plate, at a mile on the flat, attracted seven starters, with O. F. Fleischmann's Dullcare and August Belmont's Raymond sharing the position of favorite. At the post, however, the first named had the call, and after events justified the selection. The start was not the best ever effected, and showed Adele C. off flying with Left and Nosegay her closest attendants. There was a general closing up from the five-eighth pole to the top of the back stretch, where Adele C. was caught in a jam, going down. Her rider, Morgan D. Blair, escaped injury and raced across the field afoot.

Dullcare flashed into the van at the three-quarters, and entered the stretch four lengths to the good of Nosegay, which was five lengths in front of Left, the others strung out because of the accident. The finish was Dullcare by five lengths from Nosegay, which was fifteen lengths ahead of Left, and the time 1:44.

Walter and Frederick Lewisohn added a special cup for the Elkwood Park steeplechase, which developed into a rattling race, and, strange to relate, nary a fall, the first race of the meeting, over the jumps, without some such mishap. The race soon developed into a battle royal between Herculoid, the Pfizer entry, ridden cleverly by Tim Donohue, and Far West, the Archdale nomination, with Sappet up.

Herculoid went away with the flag. After three jumps had been taken, over the brush just before the stand was reached, the four horses rose over the jumps as one, evoking many cheers. From this point on Herculoid and Far West drew away and entering the back stretch were a half length apart, and galloping strongly. Herculoid inclined to "prop" a bit after every jump, but he had speed enough to be a bit shy in his jumping.

Donohue sent his horse at the jumps despite his shortcomings in that direction, and after being just a "bob" in front two jumps from home he rattled him up a bit coming to the last, which he took a length in front, eventually getting home by six lengths from Far West, which was nearly an eighth of a mile ahead of Macedonian.

Eight horses accepted the weights in the Brookdale Plate, at a mile and a quarter on the flat, with Speculator and Grand Vedette the handicapper's selections. As was the case in a similar race on Saturday, Whir, Peter Hauck, Jr.'s, gelding, made the best possible use of his quick breaking ability, and was easily best for the first half mile, leading by an open length from Sir Matthew, to the middle of the backstretch. Grand Vedette ran into second place at the half-mile pole, and was almost immediately overrun by Speculator, which flashed into the lead rounding the last turn, leading by two lengths into the stretch, with Vedette second and Left Over third. Down the stretch Speculator bore out, but was so good that he just galloped the last eighth, finally winning by ten lengths in 2:13 4-5, with Grand Vedette four lengths in front of Sir Matthew.

Peter Hauck, Jr.'s, Essex B. scampered off with the lead from the flag in the three and a half mile race for the Archdale Cup, presented by M. L. and A. C. Schwartz, and which had three starters, the others being Yama Christy and Butwell. Old Essex won from end to end, but had to be driven out at the end to stall off the rush of Yama, which was not ridden any too brilliantly. Essex won by a scant length, with Yama some 200 yards in front of Butwell. On the latter H. L. Bell made the mistake of prejuding the finish, and whipped his horse out a mile before the real finish.

Among those interested in the sport were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Housemann, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wittenberg, Harry Content, J. J. Rothschild, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lamsburg, Edward Steidler, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Casey, Col. William Barbour, Miss R. Wassermann, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Vogel, James R. N. Y. A. C. "FOUR" WIN.

New York Oarsmen Capture Honors In People's Regatta on Schuylkill.

PHILADELPHIA, July 4.—Out-of-town oarsmen were well represented at the People's Regatta rowed to-day on the mile-and-a-quarter straightaway course on the Schuylkill River, in Fairmount Park.

E. B. Butler of the Argonaut Rowing Club, Toronto, won the senior single sculls races in 8:21. S. F. Gordon of the Vesper Boat Club was second, and G. Carter, New Rochelle (N. Y.) Boat Club, third.

The senior four-oared shell of the New York Athletic Club won that event in 7:19. Baltimore was second, and the Argonauts third.

The Detroit Boat Club's eight won both the junior and the intermediate eight-oared shell races. In the former event they defeated the crews of the Vesper Boat Club and the Potomac Boat Club of Washington, D. C., in the remarkably fast time of 7:02 1-5, one second ahead of the Malta crew of this city.

The Argonauts were the only crew entered for the senior eight-oared shell event, but the Vesper Club of this city made up a crew to give the visitors a race. The Canadians won from the local crew in 7:20. Engle and Gordon of the Vesper crew won the senior sculls without opposition. The results of the other events were:

Junior Single Sculls.—Won by S. M. Drew, Malta; H. Lichten, Undine, second; D. F. Hilton, Detroit, third. Time—9:05 4-5.

Intermediate Single Sculls.—Won by J. B. Kelly, Vesper Boat Club; W. M. West, Malta Boat Club, second; R. H. Pearse, Nonpareil Rowing Club, New York, third. Time—9:38.

Fern Hal Wins in Straight Heats.

HILLS GROVE, R. I., July 4.—Fern Hal, a green pacer, owned and driven by W. C. McPherson of Kemptville, Ontario, won the 2:30 pace in straight heats and took a mark of 2:17¼ in the harness meeting to-day.

In the 2:11 pacing event, Cecilian King of Grand Circuit fame, with a mark of 2:07¼, with Harry Brusie in the sulky, drew the pole position and was never headed throughout the race.

Burt Nuthurst, owned by Fred Bright of New Haven, also in the Brusie stable, was handled by Karry Kinsley, and took second money. Cecilian King's best time was 2:11½.

Third Regiment Wins Shoot.

SPRING LAKE.—N. J., July 4.—The team representing the Third Regiment of Camden to-day won the New Jersey National Guard trophy on the State rifle range at Sea Girt from a field of twelve contestants. The match was shot on the 200, 600, and 1,000 yards ranges, 200 rapid fire and skirmish range. Each team consisted of six men, and the winners' total score was 1,361. The Fourth Regiment of Jersey City took second place, and the Second Regiment of Trenton third place.

Belmont's Toggery Wins Stake.

NOTTINGHAM, England, July 4.—The Clumber Maiden Plate of 106 sovereigns, for two-year-olds, distance five furlongs, was run here to-day, and won by August Belmont's Toggery. Hudson Lowe was second and the Patching filly third. There were ten starters.

TO THE BONDHOLDERS OF THE CONSOLIDATED COAL COMPANY OF ST. LOUIS:

The bonds secured by first mortgage on the property of The Consolidated Coal Company of St. Louis will mature on the First day of September, 1911, and are payable on that date at the office of the Mercantile Trust Company, No. 120 Broadway, New York City. A new first mortgage is to be placed on the property of the Company to replace the maturing mortgage. The new mortgage and the bonds secured thereby will bear interest at the rate of Six Per Cent. per annum, and will mature on September 1, 1941. Provision will be made in this mortgage for the establishment of a Sinking Fund.

Holders of bonds maturing September 1, 1911, are offered the privilege to exchange their bonds for bonds of the new issue, on equal terms—bond for bond. Bondholders desiring to avail themselves of this privilege must give notice, either to the undersigned or to the Mercantile Trust Company, No. 120 Broadway, New York City, on or before August 1, 1911.

BOB BURMAN BREAKS MILE AUTO RECORD

Bob Burman was in a record-breaking mood yesterday at the Brighton Beach Motordrome when he established new world's figures for a mile circular dirt track, covering the distance in 0:48.72, which breaks the record, held by Ralph de Palma, by one-fifth of a second. Burman made two trials with his Blitzen Benz car. In his first effort he turned the track in 0:51.07. An hour later he brought out his machine a second time, and after speeding it around the track once, went off on what proved to be a record breaking trip. He kept close to the inner rail and put on terrific speed on the stretches. The announcement of the record was received with liberal applause by the spectators. Burman supplemented his record ride by winning the Remy Brassard, which carries a weekly salary of $75 to Burman as long as he retains it against all comers.

Weather conditions were again favorable for automobile racing, and over 10,000 spectators witnessed an exciting afternoon's sport. Fortunately, no accidents marred the racing and several of the events furnished close finishes. Out of respect to C. H. Frey, who died from an accident on the track Monday, the Mercer cars were withdrawn.

The race for the Remy Brassard was the feature event. On Monday the Benz won the first heat, but in the second and third heats Burman toyed with his competitors and won by a good margin. Ralph de Palma was out of the racing, owing to his car breaking a spring clip.

The opening event for non-stock cars from 231 to 300 inches displacement was reduced by withdrawals to four entrants. The Correga car, driven by Tyron, secured an early lead and maintained it throughout the five miles, winning by a furlong from the Marion, with L. Anderson at the wheel. As Tyron flashed past the stand a winner the tire of his rear wheel exploded and it was with difficulty he kept his seat in the machine.

Six fast cars furnished plenty of excitement in the second event. The National, with Fay Sheets, was the first to show in front, but on the back stretch the Prince Henry Benz went out in front. On the third mile the Pope-Hartford went into third place. These positions were maintained to the last mile, where Disbrow passed the National. The Benz won by over 200 yards, with the Pope-Hartford second, twenty-five yards ahead of the National.

The ten-mile event for the big cars proved disappointing, as the Prince Henry Benz and Simplex were put out of the race by engine and tire trouble. For the first half of the contest the two disabled cars and Len Zengle's National furnished an exciting race, but with Patschke and De Palma out of the running Zengle had the race to himself, and won by over 300 yards from his team mate, Knipper second and Pope-Hartford third.

In a special race at five miles the E. M. F. car won by nearly half a mile, with the Paige second. The Regal and a second Paige dropped out at the end of the third mile.

The Australian pursuit race was limited to four cars, which were distributed at different parts of the track, with Starter Fred Wagner in the centre of the field. The Simplex was the first to secure an advantage, passing the National during the third mile. The second National car, with Zengle at the wheel, passed the Simplex on the fifth mile, leaving but the National and Pope-Hartford as contestants. For ten miles Disbrow was running on a damaged tire, which finally gave out in the twenty-third mile, and the National was declared the winner.

The fifty-mile race found six cars on the starting line, five entrants declining the issue. The National, with Fay Sheets driving, was the first to show the way, closely attended by the second National entry, with Len Zengle at the wheel, and the Pope-Hartford. The last-named car drew up into the second place at the fifth mile, trailing Sheets's National by nearly 100 yards. Disbrow cut the corners very close and picked up considerable distance in the next few miles. After traveling twelve miles Sheets had lapped three cars and had drawn ahead of Disbrow, leading by over 100 yards. The Jackson was hanging on close behind the second National car, which was running in the third position. The Crow was lapped twice, and on the next lap the Jackson passed the second National car, which later pulled into the camp owing to engine trouble.

The contest narrowed down to the National, Pope-Hartford, and Jackson when the drivers began the second half of the long test, but the Jackson lost some time later by a tire change. The mishap lost the car nearly three laps. The National had by this time secured a lead of about 400 yards. The time for the first half was 24:28.20. The National leader met with trouble on the back stretch, and at the twenty-seventh mile was compelled to withdraw from the contest. This left the Pope-Hartford with practically no competitor, especially as the Jackson car, which was second, drew into the camp for a new tire.

On the forty-third mile Disbrow lost considerable time in changing a tire, but luck favored him, as the Jackson was compelled to make another stop just at the time the car appeared to have a chance. Meantime the little Crow was plodding around the track, being the only car that was not compelled to stop during the contest. Disbrow, however, was not troubled during the remainder of the race and won easily.

The final event was a free-for-all handicap at five miles, in which six cars started, with Louis Disbrow in his Pope-Hartford on scratch. The race was won by the E. M. F. with 40 seconds start. The summary:

Five Miles.—Non-stock cars, 231 to 300 cubic inches displacement. Won by Correga, (Tyron;) Marion, (L. Anderson,) second; Crow, (Otto Rost,) third. Time—5:33.21.

Five Miles.—Non-stock cars, 301 to 450 cubic inches displacement, 1,800 pounds minimum weight. Won by Prince Henry Benz, (Patschke;) Pope-Hartford, (L. Disbrow,) second; National, (Knipper,) third. Time—4:43.37.

Ten Miles.—Non-stock cars, 600 inches displacement or less, with minimum weight of 2,100 pounds. Won by National, (Len Zengle;) National, (Don Herz,) second; Pope-Hartford, (L. Disbrow,) third. Time—9:16.80.

Three Miles.—Free-for-all, non-stock cars for Remy Grand Brassard and Trophy; best two in three heats. Second Heat.—Won by Blitzen Benz, (Bob Burman;) Benz, (W. Knipper,) second; Janatzy Mercedes, (Tetzlaff,) third. Time—2:37.38. Third Heat.—Won by Blitzen Benz, (Bob Burman;) Benz, (W. Knipper,) second; Janatzy Mercedes, (Patschke,) third. Time—2:56.08.

Special Race.—Five miles. Won by E. M. F., (Jack Tower;) Paige, (J. Craig,) second. Time—5:24.57.

Free-for-All Australian Pursuit Race.—Non-stock cars. Won by National, (Len Zengle.) Distance, 23 miles.—Time—23:14.97.

Fifty Miles.—Non-stock cars of 600 cubic inches displacement or under, with a minimum weight of 2,100 pounds. Won by Pope-Hartford, (L. Disbrow;) Jackson, (Cobe,) second. Time—51:59.16.

Five Miles.—Free-for-all handicap. Won by E. M. F., (40 seconds,) (Jack Tower;) Pope-Hartford, (scratch,) (L. Disbrow,) second. Time—5:29.77.

Pullman Car Takes Four Races.

YORK, Penn., July 4.—Four of the five automobile races to-day were won by Pullman cars, capturing two five and two ten mile events. In one of the latter a Pullman car crashed through the fence, changed tires, and won the race. The list of competing cars included Simplex, Oldsmobile, and Buick.

Pittsburg Athletes Win Dual Meet.

PITTSBURG, July 4.—In a series of athletic contests here to-day between the Olympic Club of San Francisco and the Pittsburg Athletic Association the local men scored 55 points against 43 made by the California athletes. G. A. Dull of the Pittsburg Athletic Association, junior American champion five-mile runner won the five-mile run from scratch. Roderick Ellsworth of Monongahela, Penn., unattached, who is 13 years old, started from the five-hundred-mark and finished close behind Dull. The little fellow run a remarkable race.

The 100-yard, 220-yard, and 440-yard dashes were all won by the Far Western men. The Pittsburg Athletic Association defeated the Olympic Club in the relay race by ten yards.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

George M. Church, the Princeton interscholastic champion, won his way to the fifth round of the Bronxville Challenge Cup singles yesterday on the lawn tennis courts of the Bronxville Athletic Association. Along with him came A. J. Osterdorf of the Bedford Park Club and Dr. B. F. Drake. Altogether the big field of ninety-two aspirants for the cup held by Gustave F. Touchard was narrowed to thirteen competitors by the day's play. The summary:

Singles.—First Round—D. J. Burns defeated A. K. Taylor by default.

Second Round—M. A. Colton defeated Arthur J. Hoe, 6—3, 6—2; C. D. Taintor defeated R. K. Wupperman by default; K. Pyatt defeated F. Sanborne by default; Dr. E. G. Littell defeated C. T. Third Round—Leo Leventritt defeated C. D. Taintor by default; F. R. Auger defeated M. A. Colton, 6—2, 9—7; W. H. Connell defeated K. Pyatt, 6—1, 6—1; L. H. Roper defeated P. F. Mann, 6—2, 6—1; L. Beekman defeated Dr. E. G. Littell by default; G. M. Church defeated S. H. Voshell, 6—4, defaulted; A. J. Ostendorf defeated T. F. Walsh, 6—3, 6—2; Morris S. Clark defeated A. S. Ingersoll, 6—2, 6—2; W. C. Allen defeated D. J. Burns, 6—2, 7—5; A. D. Hammett defeated C. A. Anderson, 6—3, 6—0; Abraham Bassford, Jr., defeated J. P. Paret, 6—4, 6—3.

Fourth Round—G. M. Church defeated W. L. O'Brien, 6—1, 6—3; A. J. Ostendorf defeated Morris S. Clark, 6—8, 6—3, defaulted; Dr. B. F. Drake defeated S. B. Breck, 6—3, 6—3.

Swiftly played lawn tennis matches brought the North Jersey championship tournament to an end yesterday on the courts of the North Jersey Country Club, at Warren Point, Paterson. Miss Elizabeth H. Moore, the former National champion, was one of the chief competitors. In the mixed doubles, paired with Walter Kinkead as her partner, she won the event by defeating Miss Jane Rowson and Clifford B. Ayers by the score of 6—2, 6—4, 7—5. The line driving of Miss Moore and her passing shots to the corners scored many of the aces for her side. In her semi-final Miss Moore and Kinkead defeated Miss Lewis and the Rev. Dr. B. Canfield Jones by the score, 6—2, 6—1.

Princeton's expert, Harry Magoun, won the men's singles. He worked his way through a strong field, meeting C. Thomas of Ridgewood in the final, which he scored at 6—4, 6-2, 6—4. Magoun played a well-balanced game. He favored the base line, from which he drove with terrific speed and good length. The summary:

Men's Championship Singles (Third Round).—Allen Read defeated Joseph Baker, 8—6, 3—6, 6—3; H. Magoun defeated J. Perver, 4—6, 8—6, 6—2; C. Thomas defeated W. E. Cooke by default; C. S. Faverweather defeated Horace Cleveland, 8—6, 6—3.

Final and Championship Round.—Miss Elizabeth H. Moore and Walter Kinkead defeated Miss Jane Rowson and Clifford B. Ayres, 6—2, 6—4, 7—5.

Junior Championship Singles for Boys Under 18 Years of Age (Final Round).—Allen Read defeated Everitt Cooke, 7—5, 7—5.

The players engaged in the Middle States championship on the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club took chances on being prostrated yesterday, for play was kept up both in the fore and afternoon. Though the heat was intense, luckily there were no prostrations, and after each match the men looked as if they had walked out of a shower bath. Such good progress was made that the semi-final of the singles in the top section was reached, and there was a good hole put in the doubles. The defaults helped more or less in the doubles, the most prominent pair of absentees being Melville H. Long of California, who was paired with Carleton R. Gardner. The first player to reach the semi-final in the singles was Edward P. Larned, and he earned his position by the defeat of Benjamin M. Phillips in the fourth round by the score of 6—1, 6—2. W. M. Hall gained his position in the semi-final in the lower section. The summary:

Men's Singles.—First Round—W. L. Pate defeated C. A. Lindley by default; B. W. Douglas defeated W. F. Johnson by default; R. A. Holden, Jr., defeated L. M. Brigham, 6—2, 11—9; T. T. Cooke defeated H. Brooklyn Manor Tennis Club.

The tennis tournament for the Treasurer's Cup was played at the Brooklyn Manor Tennis Club yesterday. In the finals Bertolino defeated Rasquin for the trophy by the score of 6—2, 6—0. The Secretary's Cup was won by Deleroise, who defeated Drucker in the finals, 9—7, 6—4.

Collins Wins Cycle Race.

BOSTON, July 4.—With attendants throwing buckets of water over them to prevent their becoming prostrated in the intense heat, four men competed in the 25-mile motor paced bicycle race at the Revere track to-day. The event was won by Elmer Collins of Lynn, in 40 minutes, 38 3-5 seconds. Percy Lawrence of San Francisco was three laps behind and George Wiley of Syracuse five laps to the rear. Nat Butler of Cambridge was out at seven miles by an accident.

MIXED RACES AT SEA GIRT.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 4.—Automobile and gymkhana games at the Spring Lake and Sea Girt Country Club drew a fashionable group of spectators, numbering over 1,000, this afternoon, the crowd coming from all along the coast. There were five events, in which there were over thirty entries, but three contestants took five first positions, and all of the place winners were in evidence more than once. William White of Trenton, with a Mercer car, and Will Swain of Philadelphia, with a Winton, each took two firsts.

The most surprising event of the afternoon was the way in which Swain won the slow race. The course was a full mile and the judges decided that it must be negotiated at a rate of twenty miles an hour. Swain started out at the liveliest pace possible and ran that way until within fifty yards of the finish, when he slowed up and fairly dragged his car over the line. It was found that he had guessed right, and made the mile in exactly one and a half minutes.

In the week-end race, cars started at the end of the field and drove to the other, where the driver had to pick up a suitcase and high hat and then carry an assistant to the other end of the field attired in a nightshirt and the high hat. In spite of the heat Swain succeeded in making it in 37 seconds. The summary:

Slow Race, One Mile at Rate of 20 Miles an Hour.—Won by William Swain, Philadelphia, Winton, Beatrice Folmer, New York, Cole, second; Arthur H. Osborne, Spring Lake, Packard, third.

Auto and Bicycle Race, Cars Driven Half-way Round Track, Passenger to Alight and Ride Balance of Distance.—Won by William White and Frank Brown, Belmar; Harrington Sickle and Rawson Underhill, second; Arthur Osborne and Stickney Welles, third. Time, 0:47.

FRIZZELL UNPLACED IN RACES

Special to The New York Times.

DEAL, N. J., July 4.—Swimming races in the outdoor pool at the Deal Casino were the Chief Independence Day attraction here to-day. It was the first of a series of meets that will be held under Amateur Athletic Union sanction throughout the Summer.

The interesting feature of to-day's races was the appearance for the first time in the East this Summer of Richard Frizzell, the Western swimmer, formerly of the Missouri Athletic Club, who has recently joined the New York Athletic Club. Frizzell started from scratch in both the 100 and 220 yard handicaps, but was unplaced. The long pool bothered the metropolitan swimmers, who are accustomed to 75-foot tanks. The local tank is 125 feet long. Arthur McAleenan, the metropolitan champion fancy diver, captured the fancy dive here to-day from C. Behrens, the German champion. McAleenan was the referee of the swimming events. Summary:

100-Yard Novice.—Won by Fred Mayer; J. Henry Harper, second; W. E. Richards, third. Time—1:17.

100-Yard Handicap.—Won by Thomas McCarthy, New York A. C., (21 seconds;) H. G. Hager, City A. C., second; B. M. Leverage, New York Athletic Club, third. Time—1:04.

220-Yard Handicap.—Won by L. C. Goodwin, New York A. C., (3 seconds;) M. Ritter, City A. C., (2 seconds,) second; H. O'Sullivan, New York A. C., (20 seconds,) third. Time—2:36.

Fancy Diving.—Won by Arthur McAleenan, New York A. C., 60⅓ points; C. Behrens, Germany, 58½ points, second; Walter Lee, New York A. C., 48¼ points, third.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 4.—Riding a motor cycle at the rate of a mile a minute, J. N. Constant of New York went over the west bank of the athletic grounds tracks here this afternoon, but was uninjured. He was thrown from the motor cycle when the wheels struck the soft dirt at the top of the embankment, and landed feet first, making a complete turn in the air, in a clump of scrub oaks.

Constant was the only exciting feature of a motor cycle race meet that had more than fifty entries, but less than ten contestants to face to starter. Constant made a sweep of the principal events. T. H. Gutterman, a professional, defeated R. F. Wennstrome in two match races. C. J. Hendrickson won the three-mile novice.

Eighteen-Hole Match at Nassau.

Fourth of July was observed in golfing fashion by the members of the Nassau Country Club yesterday with an eighteen-hole medal play handicap. William F. Richards led the field with a card of 86—11—74. The following turned in cards: W. F. Richards, 85—11—74; A. L. White, 96—19—77; H. C. Folger, Jr., 95—17—78; A. W. Rossiter, 83—5—78; E. H. Milliken, 93—15—78; W. Lounsberry, 95—17—78; H. K. Hudson, 91—12—79; William R. Peters, 99—20—79; W. Gardner, 96—17—79; R. C. McGusty, 98—17—81; W. A. Engeman, 93—12—81; William C. Goodwin, 98—17—81; A. T. Ryan, 101—20—81.

Hedlund Defeats Kiviat.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., July 4.—After suffering five previous defeats at the hands of Abe Kiviat of the Irish-American Athletic Club of New York, Oscar Hedlund of the Brookline Gymnasium Association came back to form to-day and defeated Kiviat in a mile run by the narrow margin of two inches. The slow time of 4:40 1-5 is accounted for by the extreme heat which prevailed. Kiviat defeated Hedlund for the National amateur mile championship at Pittsburg last Saturday.

TWO BURGLARS SHOT FIGHTING POLICEMAN

ONE GETS AWAY OVER ROOFS

Interrupted Visit Apparently Not Their First to the Home of Milton Silverman—Silverware and Gems Gone.

Milton Hirsch, a tenant on the fourth floor of Renault Court, 207 West 110th Street, returned home shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning and was surprised to observe a light in the apartment of Milton Silverman, a contractor and owner of the building, whose apartment is across the hall from that of Hirsch. Silverman and his family have been at their Summer home in Far Rockaway since June 15, so Hirsch hurried down stairs and notified Julius Engle, Superintendent of the building, of the light.

They suspected that burglars had got into the Silverman apartment, so after running to Central Park West, where he got Policeman Nyder of the West 125th Street Station to return with him, Engle armed Joseph Peets, a negro bellboy, with a revolver and ordered him to conceal himself on the roof. Engle, with another revolver, stood guard over the front door, while Hirsch and several other bellboys, all armed, took up posts in the halls. Then Nyder went to the rear of the house and climbed the fire escape to the fourth floor.

He found the window open, and it showed marks of having been jimmied. He entered quietly. The room was in darkness, but a dim light shone from the dining room, several rooms beyond, and there Nyder could see two men moving slowly about. He crept cautiously to the dining room door and suddenly disclosed himself, revolver in hand, to the astonished burglars.

"Don't shoot! You've got us right, and we'll go with you," exclaimed one of the men, apparently in terror, but the next instant he had leaped forward and grappled with the policeman, shouting to his companion:

Round about them dodged the second burglar, his revolver ready in hand, waiting for a chance to shoot. Nyder could not throw off his opponent, but he was able to keep the man's body between himself and the second burglar so that the latter had no opportunity to use his weapon. Nyder himself hesitated to shoot though he had his own weapon handy.

The two fought all over the dining room, smashing the large table and several chairs, and even wrenching the chandelier from the ceiling. In the struggle, however, Nyder was unable always to keep the body of the burglar between himself and the other man, and at last the latter, thinking he saw a chance, fired twice. The first bullet whizzed past the policeman's face and the second made a hole in his uniform blouse, missing his body by a fraction of an inch only.

At the second shot, however, the form of the burglar with whom Nyder was struggling, collapsed in his arms, and the policeman dropped the man to the floor, seeing that he had been shot in the hip. The burglar was not badly hurt, however, and on the floor he got out his revolver.

Nyder leaped forward toward the second man, who, after firing, had run into the hall, when a bullet from the gun of the burglar on the floor whizzed past his head. A second shot followed and then Nyder turned and sent a shot from his own revolver into the burglar's body. The man sank back unconscious and the policeman pursued the second man into the hall.

Throughout the building by this time terrified tenants were peering from doors opened only a crack. From the different floors the guards were shouting to each other. None seemed to have seen the burglar. Apparently he had made for the roof, and this was proved when the reports of two more revolver shots rang out from the roof.

Nyder leaped up the stairs to find Peets clinging to his revolver and running toward the roof of the Dawson Arms apartments at 225 West 110th Street. It was Peets who had fired as the burglar ran past him, and the colored man had seen the fugitive dart down through the roof entrance of the Dawson Arms.

There was blood on the roof over which the burglar had fled and the trail led down to the third floor of the Dawson Arms where Nyder, following, found a terrified elevator boy, Joseph Rogers, who said a wounded man had rushed past him and jumped from a window to a fire-escape a story below. Nyder took the jump also and on the steps of the fire-escape picked up the trail of blood again. The fugitive was not to be seen. The escape gave into the back yard and the blood trail led to the fence separating the houses in 110th Street from those in 111th Street. There it ended.

Nyder gave up the chase there and returned to the Silverman apartment, where the wounded burglar, guarded by Engle and half a dozen other men, had recovered his senses. Nyder searched the man and found on him a jimmy, a gold bracelet, a gold watch and chain, a woman's watch and chain, also of gold, and a revolver from which two shots had been fired.

Nyder called Dr. Donnelly from the Harlem Hospital and the surgeon hurried the burglar there, saying that he probably would die. The man said he was John Maxson of 418 West Twenty-eighth Street. According to the police, Maxson was so angered by the flight of his companion that he told the police the name of the man which, he said, was Thomas Anderson. He did not know his address.

The reserves from the West 125th Street Station were summoned and the block was surrounded in the belief that Anderson must still be hiding in a cellar. A search of every house in the block failed to discover the man, however, and it was decided then that he must have got by a sleepy bellboy in some apartment house in 111th Street. It is believed that the man is wounded in the leg, however, and the police expect to get trace of him because of this.

The police sent for Silverman, and what he had to say makes the police believe that yesterday morning was not the occasion of the first visit of the burglars to the Silverman apartment. Silverman declared that, while he could not tell just what was missnig until his wife had looked over the apartment, he knew that $5,000 worth of silverware and some jewelry were gone.

The burglar who escaped Nyder could have carried no plunder with him—certainly nothing more than a small jewel or two. The silverware must have been taken on another occasion.

The police believe now that the burglars made at least one previous visit and perhaps two to the Silverman apartment, entering it by means of the fire-escape and window, reaching the former from the roof. It would be easy at night to pass a drowsy hallboy and ascend to the roof of an adjoining building from which the roof of Renault Court could be reached, say the police, and it is in this way that they believe the wounded burglar and his companion gained entrance.

It was discovered that the apartments of Harry Welfeld and Joseph Cookman on the fifth floor had been entered, too, but apparently the thieves had taken nothing from these apartments.

CLUE TO QUEENS SLAYERS.

Detectives of the Queens Police Bureau, under the direction of Lieut. Herbert Graham, who are working on the murder and robbery of Julius Weigel at his hotel on the Hempstead Turnpike on last Sunday night came upon some important clues yesterday. They have a positive identification of two of the men who did the job and whom they have traced from the hotel until they reached the city line in Brooklyn. The developments of the day also resulted in a plan of co-operation between the police force of the Long Island Railroad, under Chief Robert Kerkam and United States Secret Service agents to prevent a raid by robbers upon depots and Post Offices on Long Island. This action was taken after it was discovered that the safe of the Long Island Railroad station at Baldwins, eight miles from the scene of the Weigel murder, was blown open Monday night.

Special officers and detectives in plain clothes have been placed on all late trains and trolley cars and at stations along the lines of travel.

The Queens detectives have learned that two of the men implicated in the killing of Weigel were at Kammerer's Hotel on the crossing of the Hempstead Turnpike and the Long Island Railroad shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday night or about two hours before the murder. They asked at the hotel for two sandwiches and two glasses of beer, just as they did later at Weigel's. Krammerer said he served the men, but the look in their eyes was so desperate that he kept away from them and was glad when they left. His description of them is exactly the same as that given by Mrs. Weigel and by the man who was in Weigel's place when they came there. The theory of the detectives is that Weigel had been marked by the robbers and that by mistake they went to Kammerer's Hotel first.

One of the men described to the detectives was about 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height, with dark hair and dark mustache, and wearing a brown suit and a straw hat. The other man was smaller of light complexion, smooth shaven, with a black suit and a derby hat.

The detectives found yesterday that Conductor Langford and Motorman Leary of the Freeport trolley line had carried two men answering to this description to the end of their line in Brooklyn after midnight Sunday. These were evidently the murderers and Langford had called his motorman's attention to the fact that while the men were on the car they were continually shifting around and seemed to be on the lookout. Langford was afraid they might make an attack upon him and told his motorman to be prepared to help him in case of trouble.

These men had evidently run from the hotel across the vacant fields to a point on the trolley near the Springfield pumping station of the Brooklyn water works.

The detectives have lost track of two of the robbers who were at Weigel's place. They were not surprised, therefore, yesterday when it was reported that entrance had been made into the Long Island station at Baldwins and the safe blown open. About $50 in money was taken. The work was that of professionals and they used nitroglycerine.

SLAIN POLICEMAN BURIED.

Policemen, firemen, laymen, and the priesthood paid tribute yesterday morning to the memory of Patrolman Michael Lynch, who was killed last Saturday by John Collins, a negro, in West Thirty-seventh Street. The funeral took place from his home, 301 West 143d Street, and from the Church of St. Charles Borromeo, in West 141st Street.

Commissioner Waldo of the Police Department had given leaves of absence to Lynch's companions in the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, all of whom, in command of Capt. Reidy, were in full uniform at the house. There was no service there, but friends took a last look at the body.

Then a procession was formed, and marched to the church through 143d Street to Seventh Avenue, and then to 141st Street. Passing the house of Hook and Ladder 20, in 143d Street, the cortège moved between lines of the double company of firemen, drawn up, with the two trucks, horses harnessed, in front of the house. As the funeral passed the firemen uncovered and the bells were tolled. In the procession were Commissioner Waldo, Deputy Commissioner Dillon, and Secretary Sheehan.

In the church a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by the Police Department Chaplain, the Rev. Francis J. Sullivan. Father Sullivan preached a sermon extolling the dead man's good qualities and his bravery the day he was killed.

"He died in the performance of his duty," said Father Sullivan, "killed by a coward. He little knew when he left his home that morning that he would be brought back dead two hours later. You men can say, and perhaps are saying, to one another: 'Who's turn next? There's our hero lying dead. How little he knew what was going to happen to him.' Always keep his name in your minds."

There was another procession afterward, with the police band playing dirges, through Seventh Avenue to 137th Street. There the policemen of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station drew up in line for the hearse to pass between, while "Taps" were played by the bugler. Here the police and procession disbanded and the funeral of about fifty coaches proceeded to Calvary Cemetery.

There were two coaches filled with flowers. One set piece was a cross six feet in heighth, with a pillow, and the words "Our Comrade," from the West Thirty-seventh Street police.

TELLS OF JEWEL ROBBERIES.

Ex-Convict Offers to Betray Gang That Looted Thaw House.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Edward Taylor, an ex-convict now in the county jail, has made a confession to the State's Attorney in which he gives names, time, and much detail regarding the diamond robbery in the residence of Mrs. William Thaw in Pittsburg five years ago; the Alberti jewel robbery on Milwaukee Avenue in this city last year, and a jail delivery plot for the release of Maurice Enright, labor leader, charged with the murder of Vincent Altman and William Gentleman.

Taylor agreed, if released, to deliver the plotters into the hands of the authorites, to take them to the Chicago "fence" which has bought much of the robber band's loot, and to try to locate the cache where unsold jewels have been hidden. He was arrested by the police some time ago while coming from the room of a guest in the Palmer House. When searched a key was found which fitted the room of Norman Strauss, a New York diamond salesman. He was in the Alberti store on Milwaukee Avenue when a gang of robbers drove up to the store in an automobile, bound its occupants, and escaped with $20,000 in jewelry. Half of the loot belonged to Strauss. A week ago he wrote to the Pittsburg police promising to disclose the whereabouts of the Thaw diamonds. In response to this letter Lieut. Robert A. Patten came to Chicago.

Taylor named Martin Thorsen as the moving spirit in the Thaw burglary and the Alberti burglary. Thorsen is now in the county jail under indictment for the Alberti robbery. He also charged Thorsen with originating the plot for the jail delivery of Enright. The jewel thieves and the labor sluggers, he said, were to work the jail delivery together.

STRIKE ON MORE SHIPS.

United Fruit and Porto Rico Lines to be Tied Up Next.

It was decided yesterday by representatives of different branches of the International Seamen's Union in this city to call the crew of the Santa Marta of the United Fruit Company on strike to-morrow before she sails for Kingston, unless the company agrees to recognize the union.

When the Almirante of the same line was about to sail last Thursday a small launch with strike pickets on board came along to her berth at Pier 16 East River and the pickets tried to get the union men in the crew to quit, but the hose was turned on the launch from the ship, drenching the pickets, who had to put back.

Henry P. Griffin, Secretary of the committee of the seamen in charge of the negotiations with the companies, said last evening that he is confident that the union men will walk off the Santa Marta.

A final meeting will be held to-day between the strike committee and the Porto Rico Steamship Company. The result of the conference will be reported at a meeting of the union later, and unless the replies are satisfactory a strike will be declared against the line.

MAN WHO BEAT NEGRO BEATEN BY CROWD

WOMEN CHAMPIONED HIM

Though Hundreds Saw Original Assault, None Would Make a Complaint and There Was No Arrest.

What seemed to witnesses to be an unjustifiable beating of a half-witted, undersized young negro nearly caused a riot in West Ninety-sixth Street yesterday afternoon.

Before the excitement which he had caused had subsided the man who had beaten the negro had himself been severely beaten.

The shouts and blows of the combatants emptied all the tenements in the vicinity. Insisting that the negro was half-witted and was known all over the neighborhood to be harmless and helpless, many women joined the crowd and urged their masculine relatives and neighbors to see the man who had beaten the negro soundly thrashed.

The negro, according to the tenement folk, is known in the neighborhood as William Bonapart. A dredge owner named Stokes, whose boat ties up at different upper west sides wharves, gives him, they say, board and lodging aboard the vessel as pay for running errands and doing longshore work. The negro also does odd jobs in the saloon at 830 West Ninety-sixth Street. Judging from yesterday's excitement, he has many friends there.

According to the people of the neighborhood and even McFadden himself, Bonapart crossed over to McFadden's saloon yesterday afternoon and asked to have some of the fresh ears of corn, which, as a special Fourth of July treat, the proprietor was giving away. While asking for the corn the negro, who is light-headed, but who had not, according to the tenement people, been drinking, was overcome by the heat and fell to the floor. McFadden, becoming angry at this, picked him up and threw him into the street, punching and kicking him, according to witnesses.

After lying in the street for a while the negro got to his feet and went and sat as if dazed on the saloon porch. But this seems to have enraged the bartender still more, for he ran out, and after punching the negro several times, commenced to drag him about the street by the heels so that his head beat against the cobblestones. This seems to have been more than the crowd in front of the other saloon opposite could stand. Half a dozen men dashed across the street. Some of them carried the negro, who was unconscious, into the rear of the saloon in which he is employed, while others began to beat McFadden, knocking him down and only desisting when he ran back into his own saloon again.

Some one, meantime, had run up to Amsterdam Avenue and brought Policeman William Carroll of the West 100th Street Station. Carroll saw the negro lying unconscious in the rear of the saloon and thought he was dying. Although the crowd by this time was wild to lynch McFadden and was discussing crossing the street in a body and dragging him out upon the sidewalk, the policeman determined that a chance ought to be given the negro to identify his assailant in case he should die.

"I'm going to bring the man who did this over here so that he can be identified, and not one of you men are going to touch him," Carroll announced cooly. Then he went over and got McFadden and led him through the saloon between two lines of angry threatening men.

"Look out! They'll take him away from you," called a passing citizen who had been watching what the policeman was doing. But this contingency didn't apparently trouble Carroll. Leading McFadden back into the rear garden where the unconscious negro was lying, the policeman tried to rouse the latter and make him identify his assailant. The citizen who had been watching the excitement meantime was trying to quiet the crowd, who, by this time, filled the rear garden and were threatening to "do up McFadden if they got six months for it." Seeing that the crowd was getting more and more angry, Carroll drove them all back into the saloon and kept them from coming into the yard again until the ambulance came.

When Dr. Smith from the J. Hood Wright Hospital arrived with an ambulance he said he believed the negro was suffering more from heat prostration than from the beating which McFadden had given him. He took him to the hospital. Carroll, who had not seen the assault on the negro himself, asked the men in the saloon whether they would make a complaint against McFadden in court. But although many of them said that they wanted to beat McFadden, none of them would make a complaint. So Carroll took McFadden back to his saloon across the street and left him there.

THREE HURT IN RAID.

Mother, Son, and Deputy Sheriff Shot in Melee.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 4.—As the result of a raid on an Italian resort in the town of Murray, Orleans County, early this morning, one man is in the general hospital in this city with a bullet lodged near his spinal column, the man's mother was shot in the right arm, and Deputy Sheriff Scott Porter of Albion was shot twice in the back. Porter was taken to the Orleans County Hospital, where an operation was performed. He may not recover.

The raid followed a notice given to Sheriff Kenyon that 100 kegs of beer had been delivered by a canalboat to John Piedmont's Hotel on the Erie Canal, a mile west of Hulberton, a large settlement of Italian laborers. As the town has no license, the Sheriff sent Deputy Sheriff Tice to the place on Monday night to secure a keg as evidence. Tice was driven away from the place by a mob of Italians. A warrant was then sworn out by the Sheriff, who with four deputies went to the place to serve it.

They entered the hotel and went to the cellar, where fifty Italians were found drinking. The officers arrested Piedmont and his mother, who were escorted to the Sheriff's automobile in front of the hotel. There Piedmont drew a revolver and shot at Porter, the bullet flying wide and wounding Piedmont's mother. He shot again, and Porter fell. A fusillade followed, deputies and Italians exchanging shot for shot for several minutes, till Piedmont fell with a bullet through his back. The deputies then charged the gang, which turned and fled.

Porter and Mrs. Piedmont were taken to the County Hospital at Albion, while Piedmont was hurried to Rochester on a trolley car. Other arrests will be made.

HELL'S KITCHEN'S RACE RIOT.

It is many years ago that Hell's Kitchen, the district south of Fifty-ninth Street, and west of Ninth Avenue, won its name; when policemen covered their posts in couples, and when scarcely a night passed that one or more of these uniformed pairs did not have to stand off an attack by the young men of the neighborhood. Since then the gangs have been subdued, policemen no longer travel in couples, but the spirit of Hell's Kitchen has been subdued only, not destroyed.

Month after month for a year past the old-time residents of the district have watched with increasing anger the encroachments of Austrian immigrants into the neighborhood, and yesterday afternoon the old fighting spirit of the kitchen flared up once more and a score or more of youths attacked a group of Austrians with paving stones picked from Eleventh Avenue, where repairs are under way. Before the reserves from the West Forty-seventh Street and West Thirty-seventh Street Stations managed to stop the fight there were a dozen broken heads, one man was shot, and the saloon of an Austrian, the resort of his countrymen of the district, had been wrecked almost to destruction.

What started the race riot the police could not learn exactly, though they believe that the old-time families of the district took advantage of a row among Austrians to take vengeance on the intruders. The police know that a week ago some one hit Anton Yasprizzo of 770 Eleventh Avenue with a stone, and that Nicola and Frank Rogish of 527 West Fortieth Street were arrested but discharged for lack of evidence.

Yesterday Yasprizzo was in the saloon of Anton J. Ruscovich at 604 Eleventh Avenue when the Rogish brothers appeared outside and sent an emissary in to Yasprizzo asking him to come out and meet them. Yasprizzo tried to avoid the meeting by darting out of the door and making a run for it. The Rogish brothers caught him.

There started a fight then that swept over the sidewalk and finally into the saloon, where Ruscovich took a hand to repel the invaders. Yasprizzo was getting the worst of the battle when some one carried news of it to the poolroom of Migo Wukoievich, at 556 Eleventh Avenue, and Wukoievich and Sam Yurich of 596 Eleventh Avenue, both friends of Yasprizzo, started to his aid.

But by this time the news of the fight was noised all over Eleventh Avenue, and there started a gathering of old timers many times more numerous than the little crowd of Austrians. The paving blocks, piled in heaps along the sidewalk, provided excellent weapons, and in an instant a dozen of the big stones had been showered through the windows of the saloon. Then the Hell's Kitchen gang carried the fight within the saloon doors. The Austrians were driven up stairs to Ruscovich's living rooms, their own troubles forgotten while they made common cause against the new enemy.

The bar was destroyed. Tables and chairs were broken and every bottle and mirror in Ruscovich's saloon was smashed. It was only when there was nothing left to destroy that the invaders emerged again into the street. There Detectives Susillo, Moonan, and Flood essayed to stop them. They were simply swept out of the way and the call was sent for the reserves. Capt. Burfeind and a dozen men came from the West Forty-seventh Street Station only to find themselves powerless. They sent a call for help and more men came from the West Thirty-seventh Street Station. Only then did the crowd disperse.

Of the attacking party the police found none left to arrest; but the Austrians, recalling their own feuds, made counter charges against one another and were arrested. Yurich and Nicola Rogish had to be taken to Flower Hospital, the latter with a bullet wound in the right breast which he said he had got from Ruscovich. Yurich was badly cut about the head where paving stones had struck him. The rest were bruised and cut, too. Ruscovich had charges to make against all the others. He accused Nicola of striking him in the neck, and Yurich of stabbing him there. He had a slight cut. Wukoievich, he said, had hit him with a stone, and Frank Rogish had fired a shot at him which fortunately missed. All were made prisoners.

SMALL RIOT IN THE BRONX.

What threatened to become a real riot started at One Hundred and Forty-fourth Street and Brook Avenue last night, when Policeman William J. Shea of the Alexander Avenue Station struck William Beals of 400 East One Hundred and Forty-fourth Street over the head with his night stick in self-defense. The crowd became so dense and belligerent that the reserves of the Alexander Avenue Station were called out and had a general fight with the gangsters. Four arrests were made.

The trouble started when Policeman Shea told about fifty members of a gang to move away from the corner of One Hundred and Forty-fourth Street and Brook Avenue, where they had gathered to demand money for drinks from passers-by. Beals refused to move on, and struck Shea in the face. Shea knocked him down with his night stick and dragged his prisoner to a drug store at One Hundred and Forty-fifth Street and Brook Avenue. The gang followed, and soon there was a crowd of five hundred in front of the store.

Just then the reserves came up on the double quick. As they forced their way through the crowd William Burtz of 400 East One Hundred and Forty-fourth Street struck Policeman Cuzzio over the head, and in an instant the fight became general. Walter Demper and Lancaster Richards were added to the captives.

Beals was charged with felonious assault, while Burtz, Demper, and Richards were taken to the Night Court and held for further examination on a technical charge of interfering with the police. An ambulance was called from the Lincoln Hospital, and Beals's head was sewed up. Policeman Shea refused medical assistance. All the prisoners were driven to the station house in the ambulance.

FUGITIVE SHOT DOWN PURSUING DETECTIVE

THE RUNAWAY HIT TWICE

Wanted at First for Simple Assault and Charge May Have to be Changed to Murder.

"Where's your lunchman? We want him," said Detective Guaraniere of the West Forty-seventh Street Station to Charles Umhey, proprietor of a saloon at 778 Twelfth Avenue, yesterday afternoon. Raphael Gross, the lunchman, had beaten up Francis Sarno of 46 Amsterdam Avenue, recently, according to the story Sarno had told the police, and he was with the detectives yesterday to point out his assailant. Detective Haley, Guaraniere's working partner, was assigned to the case with him.

Both detectives are short and slight and Umhey didn't believe they were detectives. Even when they showed shields he waved them back, remarking:

"We're going to get him and we aren't going to call on a uniformed man for help," responded Haley, and he started for the stairs leading to the cellar, believing that Gross, who had run from the bar when the detectives entered, had gone there.

The detective had just reached the bottom of the stairs when he heard the reports of four shots, and bounded upstairs just in time to see Gross dart out of a back door into the yard. To reach the door he sprang over the body of Guaraniere, who lay almost senseless on the floor of the back room, shot three times in the right arm and once in the abdomen.

"Gross did it. He's run out back," whispered the wounded detective, and Haley, drawing his revolver, ran into the back yard after the fugitive. Sarno had fled at the first shot, and Umhey stood, too terrified to move at the result which had followed his concealment of Gross in the back room, whither Guaraniere had gone when his partner descended the cellar stairs.

Haley, almost on Gross's heels as he ran into the yard, saw the fugitive clamber to the top of the fence and drop into a coalyard on the other side. Haley followed him. As the detective straddled the fence preparatory to dropping into the coalyard, Gross turned and let fly with the two bullets which remained in his revolvers. Both of them missed Haley, who instantly fired twice at Gross, both the detective's bullets taking effect, one in the righ thigh and other in the right calf of the fugitive.

Gross fell as the bullets struck him and Haley leaped down to grab him. The man had strength still to regain his feet and scale another fence into an asphalt yard. Haley was only an instant behind, but his man had disappeared.

The sound of the shooting had brought Detectives Kear, Fitzpatrick, and Burgess hurrying to the saloon. They had been at a Fourth of July celebration in De Witt Clinton Park, near by. Haley told them of the fugitive and hurried back to care for Guaraniere. He got an ambulance from Flower Hospital and Guaraniere was hurried there by the surgeon, who said that his wounds probably would prove mortal.

Meantime Kear, Fitzpatrick, and Burgess had been searching the asphalt yard, and at last they discovered the fugitive, squeezed so tightly under a pile of barrels that there remained of his clothing only a shirt. The rest had been ripped from his body as he wriggled and crowded under the barrels. When he was finally dragged out he was a mass of cuts and scratches, scarcely a square inch of his skin being free from some abrasion.

Gross was seen to be badly hurt and an ambulance was called for him from Bellevue Hospital, whither he was taken a prisoner. He had nothing to say about his arrest or why he had fired at the detective. For his attack on Sarno he was wanted only on a charge of assault, and this may soon be changed to murder.

Umhey was arrested at Haley's behest, the detective declaring that he had interfered with himself and Guaraniere by concealing Gross instead of revealing his presence in the rear room.

FRACTURED SKULL IN PRANK.

Harry Duffy, 18 years old, an inmate of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, in Lafayette Street, Manhattan, was lying on the sands near Nunley's Hotel, at South Beach, yesterday afternoon, when John O'Neil, another inmate of the mission, approached him, carrying a ten-pound keg which he had found and which he had filled with water.

O'Neil had meant to spill the water in the keg on Duffy as a joke, but when he got within a few feet of his friend he tripped. He fell with the keg upon Duffy's head, fracturing the latter's skull. Duffy was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, in West New Brighton. He may die. Both boys are orderlies at the mission, where they have been inmates for several years. They and some of the other orderlies had gone down to Staten Island for the day.

RESENTS Y. M. C. A. CHARGE.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Representative Towner of Iowa, denounces a statement of the Y. M. C. A., and the Rev. Lloyd C. Douglas that Middle West collegians are without religious instruction.

"The colleges of the Middle West are better morally than some of the Eastern ones," said Judge Towner" and if Mr. Douglas is under the impression that he is about to accomplish the moral regeneration of a lot of young heathens he is doomed to disappointment. I wish to see him carry on his work. He may do much good, but he ought not to underestimate the religious training of college men with whom he is to work."

NEW DECLARATION NEEDED.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., July 4.—The necessity of providing a new Declaration of Independence as a means of resisting the oppressive effects of industrial government was one of the suggestions of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, to-day in delivering the annual Fourth of July oration at Faneuil Hall.

"Of one thing we may be sure," said he, "namely, that industrial freedom will not be promoted by measures which diminish personal self-reliance, voluntary industry, and ambition and earnestness in work. Whatever deprives a man of a personal, individual motive for self-improvement and robust exertion will not make him free, but on the contrary, more servile, and in the long run less intelligent, industrious, and free, for freedom is a matter of character and will power.

"If a man is going to have his will and wishes subordinated to the will of another, and be forced to accept the dictation of another in regard to the ways and means of earning his own livelihood and that of his family, it matters little so far as his condition of freedom is concerned, whether that other be a king, a financier, a trades union, or an association of employes.

"There is such a thing as rational submission in matters of common concern to the will of the majority; but submission to the will of the majority in a numerous body may be as abject a thing as submission to the will of a single despot, or small group of despots, so far as the effect on character goes, particularly if the man who submits has absented himself from the preliminary discussions and the vote. Untoward circumstances beyond his control may force a stout-hearted man to subordinate his own will and wishes and accept a control external to himself, but that only means that circumstances prevent him so far from being a freeman."

Dr. Eliot said that monopolies which are indispensable to efficiency must be regulated by Government and that those which are artificial, and not necessary, must be destroyed. He also declared that a Declaration of Independence if it were written now would among other things set forth that every citizen in a free State has an unalienable right to that amount of employment which will yield for him and his family a decent living; that every worker has a right to be insured against the personal losses due to acute sickness, chronic invalidism, injuries through accident, and the inevitable disabilities of old age; that every man has a right to the normal pleasures and enjoyments of life and leisure to enjoy himself, and that all the instruments of production, including the land and all the means of distributing products should belong, not to individuals, but to the State or to society as a whole.

NEW PAPER AGAINST TAFT.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 4.—The Tribune, E. Tobias Earl's new one-cent morning paper, made its bow to-day. The first page is taken up with commendatory remarks by William Jennings Bryan, Senator La Follette, Senator John D. Works, and Congressman Stevens. Particular attention is paid to local news. The new newspaper opposes Taft and favors La Follette for President, and proclaims itself independent and progressive. The first column is devoted to an attack on Hearst and General Otis, because they refused to permit The Tribune to share the special "mail train" that The Times and The Examiner charter to distribute papers to the outlying districts every morning.

In view of the fact that the idea of the paper was only ten days old when the first copy appeared this morning, the second page is devoted to the story of how it was done from the birth of the idea, growing out of the fight between Mr. Earl and Gen. Otis. The staff is made up of local men principally. There were two dress rehearsals before the first paper came out. John Elliott, formerly Superintendent of the local office of The Associated Press, is managing editor. Wesley M. Barr, formerly of The Herald, is city editor. The telegraph service is obtained by a leased wire to Chicago.

WON'T MODIFY VETO BILL.

Morley Declares Government Will Not Accept Lords' Amendments.

LONDON, July 4.—In the House of Lords this afternoon the Marquis of Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition, moved the official amendments to the Veto bill.

The amendments provide for the exclusion from the operation of the bill of legislation relating to Irish home rule, for a joint sitting in case of a disagreement between the two houses, and for a referendum to the country in other cases.

Lord Lansdowne argued that without such safeguards the Crown, the Church, and the liberty of every institution of the country would be at the mercy of a majority of the House of Commons, which might be representative of a minority of the electors.

The evening was spent in the discussion of Lord Lansdowne's amendment to exclude home rule from the operation of the bill. Lord Lansdowne contended that the referendum was the only reasonable method of discovering whether the country desired home rule for Ireland. Lord Morley declared that the Government could not accept the amendment and argued that home rule was before the country at the last election.

The Marquis of Londonerry and others spoke. A division on the question will be taken to-morrow.

It is understood that the Government will not declare its policy until the committee stage has been concluded. It is believed that the House of Commons will reject the Lords' amendments en bloc and that the House of Lords will finally accept the bill.

DINNER TO MRS. CATT.

LONDON, July 4.—All the women's suffrage societies combined to give a complimentary banquet to-night to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of New York, President of the International League of Women Suffragists.

Mrs. Millicent Fawcett, widow of the ex-Postmaster General, presided, while the guests included the Duchess of Marlborough, the Countess of Selborne, Miss Ellen Terry, and many other prominent women.

Mrs. Catt and the Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw were the principal speakers.

Two Recent Deaths Cast Doubts on Efficacy of Five-Day Period.

Two recent deaths, one certainly and the other probably from cholera, have cast doubts on the efficacy of five days as a detention period at Quarantine for ships coming in from the Mediterranean. An Italian who died of cholera at Auburn had been detained as an exposed person for the regulation five days, and the disease developed three days later.

Early yesterday morning an Italian woman, Annie Natti, died at Quarantine with symptoms suspiciously like cholera. The cause of her death cannot be definitely ascertained until some time to-day. After five days' detention she was released from Quarantine last Thursday as an incoming passenger on the Duca degli Abruzzi, but on Satuday she was returned by the Brooklyn Health Department. The disease, in her case, appeared in eight days.

The Duca d'Aosta, arriving Sunday night, had a sick fireman aboard. The ship was held to await a bacteriological examination of the patient, and it was reported last evening that he seemed to be all right.

It has long been held that five days was the incubation period for cholera, but these two cases have raised the question of the wisdom of a longer detention to prevent the landing of a bacillus carriers."
